FBI Starts Investigation Of Voting In Michigan

Post-Election Battle

By International News Service

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 8.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation late today began a probe of balloting in Jackson and other Michigan counties which may yet swing the State back into the Roosevelt column.

Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, won the State's 19 electoral votes by a margin of 3,404 votes I. N. S. tabulation on the basis of complete unofficial returns.

However, the Jackson County Democratic committee protested against the vote on the grounds that mechanical defects in the county's voting machines made it impossible to vote a straight Democratic ticket. The committee claimed that 1,000 votes were cast before the defect was discovered.

The county, in the unofficial tabulation, gave Willkie a 9,000-vote margin over President Roosevelt.

U. S. District Attorney John C. Lehr ordered G-men to investigate after the county committee filed its protest. He also asked the F. B. I. to investigate other outstate counties which filed their tabulations late and gave Willkie a sufficiently large plurality to swing the vote to him.

Lehr made it plain that the vote would not be changed, regardless of the outcome of the investigations.

May Ask Recounts

Detroit, Nov. 8 (AP).—Both Democrats and Republicans indicated they might demand recounts today in the wake of hairbreadth decisions resulting from Tuesday's general election.

Both national and State issues were involved in the cross currents of party sentiment. Final unofficial returns swung the State into the Republican column nationally behind Wendell L. Willkie and indicated the election of a Republican for attorney general and a Democrat for State treasurer, all by margins of fewer than 7,000 votes in a total of more than 2,000,000.

Late returns from rural districts, coupled with the discovery of errors in earlier counts, upset the narrow lead President Roosevelt had held in the contest for Michigan's 19 electoral votes, and pushed Willkie in front by 6,874 votes.

The complete, unofficial tabulation gave Willkie 1,032,837 votes to 1,025,963 for President Roosevelt.

Six U. S. Destroyers Traded To Britain Reported Sunk

Two Said to Have Been Lost in Vain Fight to Save Empress of Britain From Nazi Attack, Four on Convoy Duty

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

Newport, R. I., Nov 8.—Six of the 50 over-age American destroyers traded to England by President Roosevelt last September 3 for leases on eight air and naval bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere have been sunk in battle with the Nazis, it was learned here today.

Two of the six destroyers, it was understood, were sunk while convoying the Canadian Pacific liner, the Empress of Britain, which was sent to the bottom of the Atlantic by a combined air and submarine attack by the Germans off the Irish coast on October 26. The other four were reported lost in other convoy duty.

Meanwhile, six additional destroyers arrived here today to take on supplies, presumably before being transferred to the British via Canada this week end. Four more destroyers, expected Monday, will complete the original quota of fifty. There have been persistent reports that the United States is preparing to turn over to England even more ships from its fleet, as the British continue warm in their praise of the destroyers which have been arriving in Southwest English ports since September 28.

The first flotilla of four to arrive on September 28 was reported to have escaped safely from a submarine attack during the last night of the trip from a Canadian port.

Wartime censorship barred disclosure of any additional details of the attack, as it apparently has in the case of the six understood today to have been sunk. The Navy Department in Washington reported that it had not heard of the sinking of the six, and refused to give any information on the movements of naval vessels.

The British report of the sinking of the Empress of Britain, issued on October 28, three days after the Nazi report, revealed the landing at a western British port of 598 survivors of the 643 passengers and crew members from the liner, but did not mention any additional ship losses.

G.O.P. to Fight New Deal Plan To Adjourn

President Maps Cruise; Gave Himself 340 Votes In Pre-Election Guess

The first post-election Congressional clash between humbled Republicans and victorious Democrats may come on the adjournment issue.

The Democratic leadership hopes to adjourn Congress until January without more ado, and a White House leadership conference has been tentatively scheduled for next week to work out arrangements.

But House Republicans, who balked an adjournment over the election period, decided yesterday on a flat "No." Seven men stronger than they will be next January, the House minority will force any sine die move to a roll call vote.

President Roosevelt meanwhile told White House reporters he had given no thought to the immediate Congressional program, but may see some of his leaders before he leaves on a needed rest cruise on the Potomac on Tuesday or Wednesday.

As conclusive election returns clinched 449 electoral ballots for the Three men and two women were chosen last night as winners of the five flying courses offered by The Washington Post and four other agencies. They made high scores among 76 who finished the contest, answering all questions published in The Post and announced by Arthur Godfrey over WJSV.

The winners will be guests of honor at an Armistice Day dance of the Aero Club of Washington at the Raleigh Hotel Monday night.

Britain to Get Half of Arms Made in U. S.

England Permitted To Negotiate for 12,000 More Planes

From now on half this country's output of weapons will go to the British Empire, President Roosevelt revealed yesterday.

The announcement, backing up campaign pledges of speedier aid to Britain, was swiftly followed by Defense Commission permission for the British to negotiate with the American aircraft industry for purchase of 12,000 more planes.

A rule of thumb, whereby the two Anglo-Saxon nations will share 50-50 in American arms production, was laid down by the President.

Flying Fortresses Included

The rule, he said, extends even to such highly-prized equipment as the Army's flying fortresses, now rolling off aircraft company assembly lines.

Operation of the new 50-50 rule will lift Britain's share of United States arms output from an earlier ratio of 45-55, the President said.

He emphasized that flexibility will mark the new arrangement for speeding needed war equipment to Britain. Exceptions will be made wherever and whenever application of the rule of thumb would impede this country's own $18,000,000,000 arms program.

Munitions experts interpreted the President's disclosure to mean, for instance, that every other one of the 80 flying fortresses now being produced for the Army by the Boeing Aircraft Corporation would be earmarked for Britain.

Similarly, half the American output of light tanks would go to Britain, even thought there are virtually no British light tank orders on the books here now.

The net effect of the liberalized arrangement, it was said, would be greatly to advance delivery dates for equipment desired by the British.

19 Die When Transport Crashes With Oil Firm's Plane at Rio

By the Associated Press

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 8.—An airplane journey ended in death for 19 persons almost as it started today when a twin-engined transport of the Brazilian V. A. S. P. Line, just taking off from the Santos Dumont airdrome, collided with another plane.

The liner plunged into Botafogo Bay, carrying all its 18 occupants to their death, among them Hernandez Cata, Cuban minister to Brazil; Evendro Chagas, Brazilian scientist connected with the Rockefeller Foundation; Alexander Grieg, Norwegian consul at Santos and Sao Paulo, and Sebastiao Leme Salles, nephew of Sebastiao Cardinal Leme, Archbishop of Rio de Janeiro.

The lone occupant of the other plane, Colin Abbott, 43-year-old British World War flier, died in the wreckage of his plane which plunged into a building. His plane was owned by Shell-Mex Argentina.

The accident, the worst in the history of Brazilian aviation, occurred in full view of thousands and less than 10 minutes before the arrival of a Pan American plane from Buenos Aires carrying an Argentine financial mission on its way to Washington.

Fifteen passengers and three members of the crew were killed aboard the V. A. S. P. liner. The passengers were identified as Cata, Chagas, Salles, Grieg, Gustavo Godoy Filho, Soyby Chaddoud, Argante Fannuchi, Aron Belinky, Eduard Pinguelli, Theodore Weber, Paul Andrighetti, Luis Perlmann, Ladislau Romano, Laerte Araujo and Nadine Kaher.

First American Loss in Sea War; Under Maritime Commission Lease

By International News Service

Melbourne (Saturday), Nov. 9.—Australian Navy Minister William Hughes announced today that the American merchant vessel City of Rayville had been sunk, presumably by a mine.

All but one of the crew of 38 were safely at an Australian port, Hughes declared.

U. S. Consul Confirms Report of Disaster

The State Department early today announced receipt in Washington of a cabled message from American Consul Earle Dickover, in Melbourne, reporting that the United States merchant vessel City of Rayville had suffered an explosion 120 miles off Melbourne in the South Pacific.

The cable, dispatched at 11 p. m. Friday, indicated the ship was still afloat, but State Department officials conceded it might since have sunk.

As released by the department, the message stated:

"The American Pioneer Lines ship City of Rayville had an explosion tonight while off Cape Otway about 120 miles from Melbourne.

"The information came from a lighthouse keeper at Cape Otway. No radio messages were received from the ship. Lights on the ship are still burning.

"Australian naval authorities sent tugs and mine sweepers out and notified fishing boats. There is no definite information as to the cause."

Under Commission Control.

New York (Saturday), Nov. 9 (INS).—The City of Rayville, according to officials of the American Pioneer Line which formerly owned the freighter reported sunk by Australian officials today, was at Melbourne on October 25.

The ship, which American Pioneer Line officials said was under command of Capt. Arthur Cronin, left New York on August 21 and arrived at Newcastle, Australia, on October 19. It proceeded from that port and reached Melbourne on October 25, they said.

The City of Rayville was turned over to the United States Maritime Commission by the American Pioneer Line.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—An entire British merchant convoy of from 15 to 20 ships totaling 86,000 tons has been destroyed in the very middle of Britain's vital North Atlantic life-line by German surface warships, according to today's Nazi claims.

This success in the air and sea counter-blockade of Britain apparently came three days ago, but the heightening tempo of the campaign was reflected in the report of an informed source that today Stuka dive bombers blasted 31,000 tons of shipping to the bottom out of strongly protected convoys and damaged 23,000 tons.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, speaking in Munich on the seventeenth anniversary of the Nazi beer hall putsch, tonight declared he would reject any compromise in the present struggle and said there is "no coalition of powers on earth" that could withstand Germany and her allies, the official DNB news agency reported.

Predicting that Germany eventually will win the present war, Hitler was quoted by the news agency as saying that it is his "unalterable determination to continue the struggle to a clear decision" and that "today I reject any compromise."

"Germany, with her allies, today is strong enough to stand against any combination on earth," he was quoted.

He minimized the British blockade and United States plane production, saying that "German productive capacity is the world's highest."

Bombers Leave Krupp Works A Sheet of Fire

Essen Plant Blasted For Four Hours, Air Ministry Says

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 8.—A four-hour British bombing attack which left the Krupp armament works in Essen enveloped in "one huge sheet of fire"—the longest and mightiest assault yet loosed upon that vital German war foundry—was reported by the air ministry tonight.

It was a bombardment which began a little after 8 o'clock last night and went on intermittently through the night and into the early morning hours. When it was over, returning pilots said that the red result of their work could be seen 60 miles away.

It was in several senses an unprecedented raid, according to British accounts, for it was launched by an extraordinarily big force of medium and heavy bombers, dropping what the ministry called "some of the heaviest caliber bombs yet carried into Germany."

Explosives were loosed by the uncounted ton, fire bombs by the thousands, and every section of the great works was declared hit—workshops, machine shops and even the plants' administration buildings.

All this, said the ministry, was done "under unfavorable weather conditions."

The assaulting forces sprang in waves, it was added, and the second contingent of bombers to reach the

G. O. P. Center Shifts West Since 1936, Election Shows

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
Copyright 1940

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 8.—An analysis of the election returns reveals many curious trends and interesting sidelights for the student of political history.

In a year which saw the Democratic popular majority reduced from 62.5 per cent to 54.5 per cent throughout the Nation and the trend in most States sharply toward the conservative side—two of America's most Republican States, Maine and Vermont, showed a shift almost as marked in the other direction.

DR. GALLUP

Not since the Civil War has Vermont given the Republican candidate for President as small a percentage of its total vote as the 35 per cent cast for Wendell Willkie this year. And in Maine, President Roosevelt ran six points stronger this year than in 1936, and actually came within 2 per cent of carrying the State.

Thus, whereas Maine and Vermont were the two States which stood out against the Democratic landslide four years ago, this year they stood out against the Nation-wide Republican trend.

Another interesting phenomenon is that State lines were not sharply drawn in Tuesday's election—whole areas containing many States tending to vote for the two candidates in almost the same proportion. A man could travel, for instance, from Massachusetts to Illinois, passing through New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana and not find the proportion of Willkie voters and Roosevelt voters changing by more than a few per cent.

This remarkable similarity in the vote of States in this area is attested by the following percentages, which represent the vote for Mr. Roosevelt: Massachusetts 53, New York 52, New Jersey 52, Pennsylvania 53, Ohio 52, Indiana 49 and Illinois 51.

This apparent obliteration of State lines is especially interesting as a check on the effectiveness of State political machines. It may mean that such machines are less effective than is commonly supposed. Unless one makes the untenable assumption that the machines of the two parties exactly cancel each other, a State with a strong Democratic machine should presumably produce a higher Democratic vote than an adjoining State with a weak Democratic machine. And the same would presumably hold true in the case of the Republicans.

Yet the group of States listed above—States in which there are party machines of varying potency—all voted in about the same way.

The center of defection from the New Deal is the Midwest farm

U. S. Red Cross to Withdraw Most of Force in France

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Vichy, Nov. 8.—The American Red Cross tonight was reported to have decided to cease its relief work in France and withdraw practically all its field force from the country.

The decision was said to have been reached after a transatlantic telephone conversation between Richard Allen, American Red Cross European relief director, who is stationed at Geneva, and Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, in Washington.

It was pointed out that the Red Cross has been unable to ship supplies needed for winter relief through the British blockade because the London government did not consider there were sufficient guarantees that foodstuffs, medical and other relief supplies sent to France would not be taken by the Germans and Italians.

The [illegible] had prepared an extensive program of winter relief, which included work in camps where Frenchmen are held as prisoners of war as well as furnishing condensed milk to babies to prevent starvation and protect growing children against anticipated epidemics.

There is also an immediate need of insulin and other drugs which the Red Cross had hoped to fill.

The Red Cross plan also contained provisions for relief work among 250,000 war refugees.

The Red Cross southern headquarters at Marseilles already has closed. The Red Cross left 25,000 francs with the United States consulate there and 10,000 francs with

Greeks Hurl Back Italy's 'Big Push'

Fascist General Reported Replaced By Marshal Badoglio

The Greek high command announced that in all there were five officers among the prisoners taken during the day. In addition, it announced a number of guns and other war materials fell into Greek hands.

Italian air raids were "insignificant" during the day, the communique said, with only one village bombed. One Italian raider was reported knocked down.

At the end of the first 12 days of this new war neutral experts declared the Greek positions now are as good as or better than on the first day of the Fascist assault.

The Italians, according to available military information, had been thrown back both in the center sector and on the northeastern or right Greek wing in the territory of Albania—the country from which the invasion was sprung.

In the center, a large but undetermined number of Italians was reported trapped some days ago, and the action now appeared to be aimed at their encirclement and possible annihilation or capture.

Lines Near Sea Holding

The Greek high command itself had announced that Italian attacks on the Greek left, in the theater near the Ionian Sea, had been repulsed.

Thus the entire Greek line appeared to be not only holding firm but to be pressing back the Italians in a great rough arc.

The day's actions were heavy and artillery fire boomed intermittently through the high, rugged terrain of the defense line. The Italians had brought up heavy mechanized forces. Greek guns were concentrated to protect the coastal route to Janina, a strategic city.

Neutral observers said they could find no evidence of any break in Greek communications or supply and reported that troop and civilian morale was high—due in part, perhaps, to British aid.

"The situation," said a government spokesman, "is thoroughly satisfactory."

Italian air activity is continuing to harass the Greeks, the Ministry of Home Security reporting during the day that Italian fliers had bombed villages, towns, rural districts and shepherds' settlements in the interior.

It was asserted, however, that there had been but "slight damage and few casualties."

The precise nature and extent of British aid to this country was not discussed here, but reports received from Cairo said the British middle east command was giving valuable, although cautious, help.

Reserve officers of the classes of 1914 and 1915 in infantry, artillery, cavalry, motor transport and veterinarian corps were called up, effective Sunday.

Janina Thrust Halted

Belgrade, Nov. 8 (U.P.). — Greek forces appeared tonight to have halted a dangerous Italian thrust toward Janina and in frontier dispatches were said to have pushed forward another three miles in their drive on Koritza, Italian invasion base already reported under the fire of Greek mountain guns.

On the coastal front in the south the Greeks were said to be retreating before Italian forces which had crossed the Kalamas River and were driving to cut the main road between Filiates and Paramythia.

Decisive battles are impending at a number of points along the 100-mile front, frontier dispatches indicated, but heavy rains were said to have prevented any large scale operations today.

In the center, the Italians made a long thrust in the direction of Janina along the main road from Argyrokastron, an Italian base in Albania, apparently trying to infiltrate the region around Janina along valleys of tributaries of the Kalamas.

Italians Bombard British in Desert

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 8.—Skimming low over the palm tops of a green haven in the sand wastes, Italian planes made a night attack on one of Britain's chief bases in Egypt at the Oasis of Siwa, the high command reported today.

Though rocked by heavy antiaircraft bursts, big trimotored bombers, protected by fighting planes, scattered explosives and shrapnel shells on British shelters, supply dumps and motor equipment under the palms, and machine-gunned troop encampments, the communique said.

The attack on the desert base, near the Libyan-Egyptian border and about 175 miles south of the Italian spearhead into Egypt at Sidi Barrani, was the only explicit exploit claimed for the day by the Italians in their two land campaigns.

No troop advances on the two main fronts in Greece were announced, but far-ranging air bombardments were reported, some within sight of Mount Olympus, 10,000-foot peak fabled as the home of the Greek gods, on the borders of Thessaly and Macedonia.

British air raiders, on the other hand, were acknowledged by the high command to have damaged railroad tracks, waterpipes and a freight car at Brindisi, port in the heel of Italy's "boot."

Put on the alert by an implied threat of bombing, Rome prepared to tighten its blackout regulations and rush shelter construction, scheduled for completion next week. Premier Mussolini has inspected Rome's antiaircraft defenses in the past week, an official statement said.

Wanting news of a marked Fascist advance in Greece, Italian dispatches indicated that the march of Mussolini's legions would be accelerated when they reach roads better than the mule paths over which they have had to fight.

Dispatches said that roads at the Greek front were packed with trucks, artillery drawn by horses and tractors, pack mules, soldiers on foot, on bicycles and motorcycles—all awaiting the forward surge.

Long supply trains are bringing up munitions, food, fodder and motor fuel, the dispatches said, while peasants harvest their fields and labor in the vineyards, seemingly unmindful of the advancing columns.

British Admit Worry Over U-Boat Toll

Surface Raider In Atlantic Adds To Navy's Cares

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 8.—Britain claims to have almost as much merchant shipping space as she had when the war began, despite German air, surface and submarine raiders, but officials acknowledged today their concern over the destruction wrought and threatened by Germany's counter-blockade.

The British admit the loss by submarine action of 3,547,000 tons of their own, Allied and neutral shipping in the 14 months of the war (as against the German claim of 7,162,200 tons destroyed by all sorts of action).

This loss, they insist, has been almost replaced by new construction and chartering of non-British ships, but Britain's need for more shipping space and sufficient fighting ships to guard it without weakening other sectors of her naval power is openly acknowledged.

Surface Raiders at Large

The job of keeping Britain's vital cargoes moving has been complicated by indications that German surface raiders, including at least one pocket battleship, are on the loose in the North Atlantic.

The pocket battleship presumably is the Admiral Scheer, counterpart of the Admiral Graf Spee which was scuttled by her own commander after three British cruisers chased her into Montevideo last December. Her working base presumably is some Norwegian port.

Not only must strong naval units be diverted in the effort to track down the pocket battleship but so long as she is on the high seas it seems that stronger forces must be assigned to convoys to and from America.

The 50 American destroyers traded to Britain for bases in the Western Hemisphere have helped bolster Britain's convoy resources, but the needs of the navy run into hundreds of escort vessels, large and small.

Indicative of the need for keeping up her naval guard elsewhere is the belief that Italian submarines, given half a chance, might escape from the Mediterranean to cooperate with Germany's Atlantic U-boats.

[The Italians have declared their submarines already are claiming victims in the Atlantic sealanes.]

Fear Winter Campaign

The British, who divide Germany's submarine toll into 1,596,000 tons for the first nine months of the war and 1,951,000 tons for the next five, just ended, note the increase in the latter period and see indications of an even stronger underwater campaign this winter.

To Germany's submarine bases on the Atlantic, from Norway to Spain, the British credit the growing rate of U-boat successes. These bases have added hundreds of miles to the effective range of the submarines and have permitted greater use of smaller craft of restricted range.

It is probable, the British say, that the Germans have discovered the secret of the Asdic submarine detector with which all British naval vessels are equipped. It has been suggested that the Germans gained their knowledge after the collapse of France, probably through examination of the device on some French warship.

of them by one hard-hitting R. A. F. squadron. Six more German planes were said "probably" to have been destroyed and two damaged.

Mist shrouded the Dover Straits as the raiders roared across to drop many flares, followed by explosives.

The only fatality reported from a Midland city under attack occurred when an antiaircraft shell crashed through the window of one home.

Workers' homes suffered in nine-tenths of the damage rolled up by the bombers, the British said.

Fierce antiaircraft fire on the Thames Estuary was reported to have brought down two of the night's first invaders, though others crashed through the thicket of fire to scatter flares over widely separated areas and send bombs hurtling down after them.

[The two planes bagged by the gunners were not believed to have been counted in the air ministry's total.]

"A large number of dive-bombers with strong fighter escorts attempted on several occasions to attack shipping off our east and southeast coasts," the communique said.

"On each occasion they were heavily engaged by our fighters, and 15 of them were shot down by one squadron. Six of our aircraft are reported lost or missing, but the pilots of two of these are known to be safe."

After a scattering of daylight raids across the country, early evening attacks rattled buildings here, in southwestern England and along the northeast coast. Bombers also were believed to be ranging over Liverpool.

Authorities permitted an announcement that two landmarks famed in British history and literature had been marred by recent bomb hits, the Tower of London and St. Clement Danes Church.

Designed by Sir Christopher Wren, the church was "almost a shambles" inside, its rector said. The tower, which was a prison and execution place for many figures of British history, had been an object of terror or curiosity in London for centuries.

Out over the English Channel, strong British and German forces jockeyed for fighting advantage during daylight and observers reported that the attackers were repulsed.

Italian Press Pours Fury On Swiss

Vituperative Attacks Charge They Ignore R. A. F. 'Violations'

By the Associated Press

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 8.—Switzerland had an uneasy night of air alarms tonight and at the same time Italy—once full of compliments for this little federation—loosed a violent press and radio campaign against the Swiss.

Twice before midnight the air sirens sounded over Bern and other cities in western Switzerland. The first alarm came before the nation's lights went out at 10 p. m. under the army's new blackout orders.

But in Italy, where only a day ago the press complimented the Swiss for this blackout order, certain newspapers and radio broadcasts were turned in sudden fury against the Swiss, who were described as "a people of hotel boys, cashbox keepers and chocolate makers."

The press attacks were limited to a number of less important Italian papers—but they did not pull their punches.

"We will place the name of Switzerland—which for months has allowed air violations by enemy aircraft—side by side with that of our detested enemy," said an article in the Popolo di Brescia, written by a former Italian vice-consul to Zurich.

"The fate of Greece and Turkey already is sealed and so is the fate of the little mercantile, intellectually dull, anti-Italian and anti-German Swiss."

The National Zeitung of Basel quoted the Italian radio as saying:

"The Swiss must not think themselves inviolable—this is our last warning."

Answering Axis attacks on the Swiss for "permitting" RAF raiders to go unpunished for violations of Swiss territory some Swiss papers pointed out that British planes which are over German-occupied territory at least three hours are over Switzerland only half an hour.

If the Axis cannot stop British night raids, they argue, how can the Swiss be blamed?

'No Coalition' Can Win, Hitler Says

cellation was ordered by Hitler himself. In addition to NBC, MBS also had arranged to carry the speech.

[The British radio claimed in broadcast heard in New York by CBS that British air attack threats prevented German stations from giving a direct broadcast of the speech.]

Speaking in Buergerbrau, packed with Nazi "Old Guards," high Nazi officials and the relatives of Nazi "martyrs," Hitler declared, "The German nations will go to victory with unshakeable faith and rock-bound trust in its leaders," DNB said.

"I am convinced that Providence has brought me thus far and has spared me all the dangers in order to let me lead the German people in this battle," Hitler was quoted as saying.

"British Warmongers"

Following is the official German DNB news agency summary of Hitler's speech:

"In 1914 Germany was a land of democrats and primarily a land of peace. Peace was relied on so intensively that one overlooked every possibility favorable to us in an unavoidable conflict for which the rest of the world armed against Germany. . . . At that time, too, England was our enemy.

"When I say England, I realize full well that the people and the leaders there are not identical. That country is controlled by a small clique of international democrats, Jews and plutocrats. They are the same people who agitated for war then as they do now.

"The British warmongers succeeded in mobilizing the world against Germany. . . . It was necessary at first to produce an American conjurer who found the spell on the basis of which the German people were duped into trusting the word and honor of a foreign President."

Hitler condemned the Versailles Treaty, declaring that the main aspects of Germany's postwar inner struggles were a fight "against the people who seemed omnipotent to our country—Jews . . . I always opined that there were no stupider people than Jews and also no more unconscionable and unscrupulous people."

He said that Germany's postwar renaissance aroused the envy of the same men who previously brought war against Germany.

"Churchill and his companions immediately began to agitate. What does democracy or an authoritarian state mean to these international hyenas?"

Hitler said he wanted peace when he came to power.

"I was ready to disarm. If England agreed, good. They did not agree, also good. . . . I decided we would either have no soldiers at all or the best in the world. . . . The German people has not lost anything thereby. . . . Thus far in this war we have lost only a little more than half the men lost in the war of 1870. Reserves of men and material are tremendous. Thus far we have used ammunition amounting to only a part of one month's production.

"Some fields of production have been halted because there are no more facilities for storage of these quantities."

He said that when he became convinced that war was inevitable and that England only wanted to gain time he became anxious to have a war and dedicated his lifetime to it.

"I not only believe I am the hardest man the German people have had for many decades, possibly for centuries, but I also possess the greatest authority. . . . I am convinced that Providence has brought me thus far and has spared me all the dangers in order to let me lead the German people in this battle."

Minimizing American, Australian and Canadian plane production, Hitler said:

"As for American production, not even astronomical figures are supposed to be able to portray its extent. I can state that German productive capacity is the world's highest and that we will not be disposed of because we are able today to mobilize vast European forces, and that is just exactly what I am doing.

"We are prepared for the future as never before. Not a day is lost. German armed forces are the world's best military instrument and are incessantly improved and when the hour of great endeavor again comes I hope to achieve the same results we have achieved thus far."

Hitler declared that Germany with her allies "today is strong enough to stand against any combination on earth. There is no coalition of powers which could withstand us. It is my unalterable determination to continue the struggle to a clear decision. Today I reject any compromise."

Six Wounded Greeks Captured 250 Italians, Sergeant Says

By J. Wes. Gallagher
Associated Press Staff Writer

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 8.—A young Greek army sergeant who spent 15 years of his boyhood in New York and Detroit, told me today that a dawn attack by six wounded Greek soldiers paved the way for capture of 250 Italian troops in Albania.

The hand-grenade attack, he said, was the climax of a day-and-night battle in which 60 other Italians were killed.

Until the start of the war, Sergt. Constantine Kelepousis was a political science student, but today he lay in a hospital with four machine-gun bullets in one arm and another bullet in his leg.

"Several days after the war started," he said, "my company launched an attack into Albania. In one day, we made 15 kilometers (more than 9 miles) and captured many prisoners. Then we came to a small lake with the Italians entrenched on a nearby hill.

"We fought all morning and, that afternoon, the Italians jumped out of their trenches waving a white flag offering to surrender.

"My captain ordered me to take ten men and take possession of the trenches.

"We advanced to within 100 yards of the Italians when suddenly they jumped back into the trenches and began firing on us with machine-guns.

"Five of my men were killed outright. The rest were wounded. We huddled behind rocks all afternoon, tending our wounds as best we could, while the battle continued over our heads.

"The wounded men couldn't make their way back to their lines during the night, but at dawn a heavy fog reduced the visibility to a few feet.

"Instead of retreating, we decided to attack. We could still crawl. And we had a large supply of hand grenades.

"We spaced ourselves over about 75 yards and, crawling forward, tossed our grenades into the Italian trench from short range. The whole thing seemed to go up in the air, amid a terrific explosion, and in a few seconds we heard screams and groans.

"The Italians—those still alive—jumped out of the trench shouting, 'Mother of God, don't throw any more!' They thought they were being attacked by a whole company instead of just six wounded men.

"By that time, our company had heard the shouting and came running across no man's land, taking 250 Italians prisoner. 60 more were dead in the trenches."

Kelepousis has a brother, William, living in Detroit.

Selects to Have Chance To Try for Commissions

Possibility that as many as 80,000 of the 800,000 selectives to be called to the colors in the first 12 months of the draft will be in line for officers' commissions arose last night after War Department announcement of plans for four "officers' candidates schools" in infantry, cavalry and artillery.

Instruction at the schools, and at others that may be created, will be made available to selectives with "outstanding qualities of leadership" in the last three months of their year's training.

While the proportion of drafted men who may be taken into the schools may be raised or lowered according to the seriousness of the national emergency, and the rate of expansion of the enlisted personnel of the service, Army men estimated about 10 per cent of the first year's draft contingent would prove of the caliber to be given the training.

Of the 80,000 entering the schools, many would be weeded out by stiff examinations at the end of the three months courses, it was said.

Meanwhile, the first-year draft picture becomes further clarified with a War Department outline of training methods for the first and second contingents of 400,000.

The original 400,000, to be mobilized by March 15, are to be routed directly to Regular Army and National Guard units after brief "processing" periods at reception centers.

The 400,000 mobilized after March, on the other hand, will not go directly to the active units but will be given three months individual training in 21 strategically located replacement centers, now still in the blueprint stage.

Assignment of the first 400,000 to Regular Army and Guard divisions will depend on which of the expanding divisions have the most immediate need for men in boosting their complement to war strength, and which units are best able to house and equip citizen soldiers. All nine corps areas of the Army already have called for trainees.

All selectives are virtually certain of participating in extensive field maneuvers toward the end of their year's training. The field operations, approximating as closely as possible war conditions, are considered of utmost value in seasoning new soldiers.

In a development at National Selective Service Headquarters which indicated the high command will insist trainees be A-1 physical specimens, Director Clarence A. Dykstra sent letters to all Governors urging only the best qualified physicians be appointed to medical advisory boards.

"We rely on these specialists to assist in providing that no man shall be passed as physically and mentally fit by Selective Service unless he can serve without harm to himself and with benefit to the armed services. The better the physical examinations carried out in the selective service process, the fewer will be the number of men rejected at induction stations and required to pick up again the ways of life and to regain the job they had understood they had left for a year."

On the local front, questionnaires are being returned in a steady stream to all 25 local boards and seven of them—No's 1, 4, 6, 8, 12, 13 and 25—have completed examination of questionnaires and are ready to begin physical examinations of registrants—last stage before induction.

On the lighter side at Selective Service headquarters, it was announced the organization has no facilities for tracing "missing husbands, brothers and other male relatives." Requests for information as to the whereabouts of missing men have flooded the organization, it was said, but since "there are more than 16,000,000 registration cards in approximately 6,500 localities throughout the United States . . . it is not feasible for National Selective Service headquarters to try to locate any one individual."

Convoy Wiped Out, Berlin Claims

export in order to live and fight represent the direst threats to the convoy system which saved Britain's World War commerce and upon which she relies in the present conflict.

[The German radio gave circulation to reports from New York that the British ships, Rangitiki, 16,698 tons, and Cornish City, 4,952 tons, sent SOS messages November 5 that they were being shelled by a pocket battleship of the Graf Spee class—either the Luetzow or Admiral Scheer.]

[In London, the British admitted that strong naval units had to be diverted because of "increasing indications" that a German battleship of the Admiral Scheer class was abroad on the Atlantic, raiding shipping.

[British authorities also admitted concern over the loss of shipping, but maintained that she has, despite the losses, almost as much total tonnage now as at the outbreak of the war.]

British Bombers Fire Krupp Plant

factory area aimed for a chain of fires which already had been left blazing by the pilots who had gone before.

The plant section was straddled by falling bombs from end to end, the ministry reported, "and within a few moments the whole of the factory area had become a mass of raging flames engulfing the long line of buildings and lighting up the sky with a glow which could be seen from 60 miles away.

Fires Seen 60 Miles

"One after the other in a long procession the following sorties (of bombers) came in to unload bombs on the blazing target. . . . At one period of the attack explosions could be seen continuously occurring for fully three-quarters of an hour."

A pilot remarked that he flew over a fire which "must have been nearly a mile long and a quarter-mile wide."

Gunner's Own Story

Here is the story of an air gunner who watched the falling bombs from another plane:

". . . It was one of the most amazing sights I have ever seen on any observation. First of all, there was a terrific yellow flash—not the ordinary bomb burst, but something much bigger than that.

"Then there was a pause of a few seconds and about a hundred yards away there was a great blue flash. Next I saw a chain of fire sweeping across the area from south to north. The flames seemed to be boxed in and running along at the same height just as though the fire was sweeping through some long line of buildings from end to end. It (the fire) took about 10 seconds to travel.

German Bases Pounded

"Violent explosions also were going off all the time. I called up the pilot and said: 'For heaven's sake, turn the aircraft and see what those fellows have done'."

The extraordinary duration of the Krupp attack, and the great success claimed for it, overshadowed the work of other British pilots who followed familiar airlanes for new assaults on old objectives:

The German submarine base at Lorient, France; a synthetic oil reservoir at Cologne; blast furnaces at Duesseldorf and Oberhausen; docks on the Dortmund—Ems Canal, an important inland German waterway; the Rhine port of Duisburg; Nazi shipping at Dunkerque and a whole series of airdromes scattered about Germany and German-occupied territory.

All British planes were declared to have got home safely.

the consulate at Nice to be used for relief and repatriation of Americans stranded in southern France, mostly World War veterans who were living in France and lacked funds to escape when the Germans came.

Red Cross Keeping Up Its Medical Work

By the United Press

A spokesman for the American Red Cross in Washington said last night that the organization has ceased to distribute American food supplies in France because there were no more such supplies, but that its representatives were continuing hospital and medical relief work.

He said American food supplies sent to France before Great Britain clamped on its blockade were now exhausted and that representatives assigned to distribute food probably would leave at the end of this month.

The British, however, have not stopped the flow of medical supplies into France, the spokesman said. Hence, four or five representatives will remain to handle distribution of serums and other medical needs.

Britain Will Get Half of U. S. Arms

and to establish a new schedule of priorities.

Defense Commission clearance for Britain to negotiate for 12,000 more planes, will eventually swell their total of planes ordered here to 26,000. Permission for the British to get the 12,000 was strongly urged by President Roosevelt in a pre-election speech in Boston last week.

Production of the British planes will be geared to production for American needs "in such a way as to prevent interference with our own requirements," the commission assured.

Study is under way of the question of delivery priorities, the announcement said.

In this connection, President Roosevelt told his press conference—his first meeting with the Washington press corps since the election—that the Priorities Board, headed by Donald M. Nelson, would not consider finished articles but rather would work to speed supplies of raw materials, labor and similar components of the finished article.

He cited as an example information that there will be no shortage of steel ingots, but that there might be a shortage of facilities for some of the processes involved in making steel articles. This problem would come under the Priorities Board, he said.

President Roosevelt said also that study of locating steel and aluminum plants on the West Coast was making progress.

In another defense-related statement, the President revealed that Mexican and United States officials are carrying on continuing conversations bearing on joint defense.

The President's announcement of the 50-50 rule on new production was taken to mean that Britain will get only half of new Flying Fortresses produced in the future, not half the bombers now existing.

This interpretation would jibe with reports that the British were interested only in the newer models, which carry several improvements in design.

Kennedy May Yield Post to Biddle

State Department Denies Hull Will Quit In Favor of Welles

Persistent rumors in official quarters of a shake-up in the State Department were given weight last night when a reliable source said that Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., former Ambassador to Poland, will succeed Joseph B. Kennedy as Ambassador to Great Britain.

Biddle could not be reached for a comment. His office in New York reported that he left for Washington late yesterday and was expected to arrive here early this morning.

In Boston, Kennedy told the Associated Press that he was still on the job as Ambassador to Britain and is ready to "be in London within 48 hours if an emergency arises that requires me there." At the same time he said he expected to remain in this country until Christmas.

The State Department officially denied that Secretary Hull will resign shortly and be succeeded by Under Secretary Sumner Welles. An official pointed out that Secretary Hull commented less than a month ago that "in these times" he was needed to serve with the department "in any capacity from a doorkeeper on up."

The Secretary also said recently that "No one can serve in these strenuous times and not at times wish to retire."

Rumors that Under Secretary Welles may succeed Kennedy at the London post could not be substantiated.

Biddle was appointed United States Minister to Norway by President Roosevelt in July, 1935. In 1937 he succeeded John Cudahy as Ambassador to Poland, remaining there until he was forced to flee before the Nazi invasion in the fall of 1939.

Kennedy was named Ambassador to the Court of St. James's in March, 1938, after heading the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Maritime Commission. He returned to this country to confer with President Roosevelt two weeks ago.

On October 23 the New York Post declared that Kennedy has informed the President he will return to his post under no circumstances and that he intends to make public the reasons for his decision.

G.O.P. Plans Fight On Adjournment

President over Wendell Willkie, Mr. Roosevelt revealed to reporters that he had guessed wrong.

Last August when he sealed up his election prediction he gave himself 340 votes—74 more than he needed to win but 109 less than he got. He guessed the same 340 in 1936, when he actually received 523.

A reporter's question as to his fourth term intentions brought a sharp reminder of his campaign statements that there would be a new President in 1944. The President acidly admonished the reporter to return to grammar school and attempt to master simple English.

Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., of the Republican National Committee, announced his decision to fight any sine die adjournment effort on his return yesterday to his House Minority leader's office.

Martin said that the Republican pre-election position that the duty of Congress is in Washington during time of world crisis is "unchanged."

If an adjournment motion is offered, he said he would demand a roll call vote which automatically would force every member of the House to go on record on the question.

Enough Democrats joined with Republicans before the election to stave off a vote, but with the campaign behind them Democratic leaders are expected to make a new effort.

Martin's statement was the second indication in two days that the Republicans plan a vigorous opposition party in Congress. On Thursday, he had called on Republicans to "continue the fight" for Willkie-McNary campaign principles. Declaring for national unity and a strong defense, he had said Republicans will support the President except when he conflicts with those principles.

As most recent "titular" leader of the G. O. P., Wendell Willkie in a national radio address today is expected to keynote the course of the party to those who supported it.

Martin said that for the time being at least he will remain as chairman of the party. If he wins his fights against adjournment, Congress will remain here until the Christmas recess.

Morgenthau Asks Action

House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn recently told reporters there are no important questions pending that cannot go over until January and Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley is understood to share this view.

The President never has indicated his wishes, but Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau Thursday said he would like to have early Congressional action implementing his authority to issue $4,000,000,000 in defense securities.

Among pending measures, that will be killed unless action is taken this session, is the Ramspeck civil service bill permitting the President to bring some 200,000 Government employes into the civil service.

Cabinet Shifts Not Planned, Roosevelt Says

He Hasn't Considered Offering Willkie High Post, Reporters Told

President Roosevelt yesterday allowed his first press conference since the election to pass without disclosing what changes, if any, he plans to make in his Cabinet and other high Administration posts.

Asked about reports that Wendell L. Willkie might be offered an important Federal position, the President replied he had not considered anything along those lines one way or the other.

At the same time, he belittled published reports that there would be a Cabinet shake-up or that Secretary of War Stimson's resignation would be accepted, by saying that such reports did not come from New Deal circles or official quarters but were invented in newspaper offices.

The President was not asked about the persistent reports that Secretary of Labor Perkins will resign in the interests of labor peace, but the question was posed to Miss Perkins herself after a Cabinet meeting.

Labor Peace Moves Foreseen

The Labor Secretary replied by saying she had not read reports of her expected resignation. In regard to labor peace, she said she personally plans no peace overtures, but added, "I rather expect there will be a movement for a rapprochement among labor."

Attired in a dark suit and white-dotted blue necktie, President Roosevelt was in good humor at his meeting with the press yesterday.

He took occasion at the press conference to say that reports Securities Commissioner Leon Henderson would leave that post to become a White House secretary did not originate with the Administration.

Opinion was divided in informed quarters on whether the President would offer an important post to Willkie, or whether Willkie would accept, if it were tendered.

Arguments cited in its favor were the large popular vote amassed by the unsuccessful Republican candidate and the increased national unity that might result.

Wallace Sits In

Arguments against taking Willkie into the Administration were of a practical nature, such as official concern that Willkie could use high Federal position to work for a Republican triumph at the polls in 1944.

Much would depend, it was said, on what Willkie has to say Monday night in a broadcast address he is scheduled to deliver.

Henry A. Wallace sat in at the Cabinet meeting yesterday for the first time as Vice President-elect. He would not discuss reports that after inauguration day he will serve the President as an "Assistant President," shouldering some of the burdens of the Chief Executive.

Editor Answers Ickes on Press

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP).—Herbert Agar, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, declared today that refusal of a majority of newspapers to support President Roosevelt for reelection had nothing to do with freedom of the press.

Replying to Secretary of the Interior Ickes who asserted Thursday that the lack of such support was evidence of the nonexistence in this country of a "truly free press," Agar told journalism students at the Empire State School Press Association:

"The real trouble with the press is that it is run by human beings."

Labor Expects John L. Lewis To Keep His Pledge to Quit

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 (AP).—A growing belief that peace between labor's warring factions may be an immediate result of the election was evident today in high circles here of both the C. I. O. and A. F. of L.

It was based primarily on the increasing conviction that C. I. O. Chieftain John L. Lewis will make good his preelection promise to step aside in the event President Roosevelt won a third term.

Leaders attending last night's regular meeting of the C. I. O. Steel City Industrial Union Council and the A. F. of L. Central Labor Union said they expected President Roosevelt to request a reconvening of the peace negotiating committees of the rival organizations.

Saying such a program "undoubtedly is in the cards," Leo Abernathy, international president of the Bill Posters and Distributors Union, added he thought such a call would come shortly after the close or possibly during the imminent conventions of the two groups.

The C. I. O. will meet November 18 in Atlantic City and the A. F. L. at New Orleans on November 19.

Privately leaders in both factions say they regard Lewis as the chief stumbling block to peace in the house of labor. Throughout his career, they say, he has been an uncompromising battler where the issue involved a principle so dear to his heart as that of vertical or industrial union for mass production industries versus the A. F. L. craft setup.

Many prominent in the labor movement believe a more diplomatic negotiator on the C. I. O. side might be able to bring about peace and that the No. 2 man in the organization, First Vice Chairman Philip Murray, is just such a man.

For 30 years Murray, quiet-spoken, suave parliamentarian and able negotiator, has been at Lewis' right hand as aide, counselor and close personal friend.

Urges Lewis to Quit

Detroit, Nov. 8 (INS).—John L. Lewis should go through with his recently announced intention to resign the presidency of the Congress of Industrial Organizations in the event President Roosevelt was re-elected, Kenneth Vardon, United Dairy Workers president, declared today.

"He took his position," Vardon said. "It was his own limb and he sawed it off himself."

Other leaders believed Lewis would resign, but added that "what John does it up to himself."

Draft Lewis Drive Seen

Denver, Nov. 8 (INS).—Reid Robinson, president of the International Mine and Smelter Workers, (C. I. O.), said today his organization would join a movement to draft John L. Lewis for another term as head of the C. I. O. Robinson said Lewis' personal preference for a presidential candidate "should not deprive labor of a great leader."

President Urges Course in English For Correspondent

President Roosevelt yesterday suggested a grade school course in the English language for a reporter who asked him about a fourth term.

Fred Perkins, of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, asked at the White House press conference if Mr. Roosevelt would stand by his assurances that he would not seek another term. (In a speech November 2 at Cleveland the President had said there would be a "new President in 1944.")

The questioner, Mr. Roosevelt said, had better return to grade school and learn the language—that the statement he issued before the election had been perfectly clear to the President and everyone else in the room.

Perkins started a comeback which was drowned in the laughter of the other reporters, and the President cut in again.

He was not there, he said, to teach the reporter English. The statement had been in English—perfectly clear English. The reporter, he concluded, had better read it again.

Newspapermen recalled that Mr. Roosevelt had once assigned a figurative dunce cap to Perkins because of his queries about a third term.

U. S. Studying How to Halt An Inflation

New Powers Proposed For Emergency Use As Securities Soar

Government authorities checked over their weapons to control any inflation spiral yesterday in the wake of Secretary Morgenthau's request for a $15,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000 increase in the debt limit.

Spurred by a sharp rise in securities prices, officials conferred on means that could be used to puncture an inflation balloon and proposed new powers for use in event of an emergency.

The traditional method of controlling credit by Federal Reserve Bank trading in the open market was admitted to be of small effect these days.

The reason is that member Reserve banks hold $6,800,000,000 in excess reserves, far too large to be influenced greatly by trading in $2,300,000,000 of bonds owned by the Federal Reserve system.

The Reserve Board has power to raise reserve requirements for its member banks, now about 25 per cent below the statutory maximum. This power, however, would not be sufficient, officials felt yesterday. A move in Congress was predicted to raise the ceiling on the reserves that may be required so that the board, in an emergency, could order banks to maintain 100 per cent reserves against deposits.

This weapon against inflation, raising reserve requirements, is officially felt to be inadequate now because the present laws only cover the 50 per cent of the country's banks, with 80 per cent of all deposits, that are members of the Federal Reserve System. Government officials would like the law extended to cover all banks.

Margin Can Be Raised

Another instrument of control reviewed yesterday was the board's power, under the Securities Exchange Act, to raise margin requirements for securities transactions. The requirement is now that 40 per cent of the purchase price of a security must be posted in cash. This could be raised to 100 per cent and would probably dampen speculation, officials feel.

Bank loans, another possible inspiration for runaway inflation, could be restricted, perhaps, by pressure from Treasury bank examiners, officials said.

Runaway inflation in real estate could be curbed if the Federal Housing Administration raised its requirements on insured mortgages, and if the Farm Credit Administration and Federal Home Loan Bank Board tightened their credit requirements.

Commodity Prices

Prices of commodities could be influenced by releasing some of the Government's huge stocks of wheat, cotton, corn and other commodities that are owned outright and held under loan.

Officials were not inclined to favor direct control of prices, calling it too drastic. They hoped, instead, that price rises could be met with publicity and education.

The tariff, they said, would be a handy means to cope with inflationary price increases. Some commodities, such as copper, would jump the tariff wall if the United States price rose too high, while others could be allowed in by lowering the tariff.

Imposing severe taxes on consumption, such as a tax on automobiles, would curb inflationary buying, officials said, but again they viewed such measures as drastic.

Revaluation of the dollar—changing its gold content—was another method to combat inflation suggested by officials yesterday. The President still has power to cheapen the dollar by 9 cents or to increase its value by about 41 cents. Increasing its gold content would tend to fight an inflation spiral, economists believe.

Officials yesterday said that suggestions for further remedies for inflation may be developed when Senator Wagner's Monetary Policy Committee, under way more than a year, begins hearings.

Miss Cochran Hailed by 1st Lady

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—For the third time, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today presented Jacqueline Cochran with the Clifford Burke Harmon Trophy, carrying with it the distinction of being the world's greatest feminine pilot.

"To win this three times," remarked Mrs. Roosevelt, "is a very wonderful thing."

"We are very happy," replied Miss Cochran, wife of the financier, Floyd B. Odlum, "to have you for the First Lady of the land again."

FBI Investigates Michigan Vote

In one county election officials discovered that results reported as complete actually included only a count of "straight ticket" votes.

The dramatic finale was closest in the race for attorney general. The unofficial complete return gave Herbert J. Rushton, Escanaba Republican, a margin of 3,776 votes over Raymond W. Starr, Grand Rapids Democrat.

The contest for State treasurer was nearly as close, showing a lead of 4,608 votes for Theodore I. Fry, Lansing Democrat, over his Republican opponent, State Senator Felix H. H. Flynn.

Phila. Records Impounded

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—While a Federal grand jury questioned Pennsylvania Republican and Democratic party leaders about pre-election spending, five U. S. marshals took over records of the Philadelphia registration commission, impounding them for a hearing today.

They acted under an order by Judge Harry E. Kalodner handed down in response to a petition by the Democratic city committee which charged that "thousands" of Philadelphians were deprived of the right to vote at Tuesday's election.

The petition charged registration lists contained names of persons dead for a year or more and of others disqualified because of change of address.

Appearing before the grand jury which is investigating alleged violations of election laws were more than a score of leaders in both major parties in the State. They were ordered to submit by next Tuesday a list of contributions and expenditures between May 1 and election day.

Lothian Becomes Knight of Thistle

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—King George today conferred a knighthood of the Order of the Thistle, one of Britain's most distinguished orders, on the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States.

Lord Lothian is now in England on a brief furlough.

City Vote of 60.3% Swung Key States for Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt, a survey showed yesterday, received 60.3 per cent of the major party votes cast last Tuesday in the country's 18 major cities, and piled up a 2,414,366-vote popular plurality in these population centers.

In the country as a whole, the Chief Executive won a third term with 54.6 per cent of the vote, and a popular plurality of 4,484,151 on the basis of incomplete tabulations. Latest figures showed he received 26,297,788 votes to 21,813,637, with 120,417 of the Nation's 127,245 precincts accounted for.

Every city with more than 400,000 population went for Mr. Roosevelt except, perhaps, Cincinnati. Wendell Willkie carried Hamilton County (Ohio), which includes Cincinnati and surrounding area, by a vote of 155,111 to 148,402. Separate figures for Cincinnati were not available.

Survey Key States

Big city votes were directly responsible, too, for carrying some of the larger States into the Roosevelt column. Mr. Roosevelt, for instance, carried New York State by 233,093 votes. The State's two largest cities, New York and Buffalo, gave him pluralities of 729,836 and 37,312, respectively.

The President's margin over Willkie in Illinois was 94,338, while Chicago gave him an ege of 295,206.

In Missouri, St. Louis gave Mr. Roosevelt a plurality of 64,792 votes and Kansas City gave him 30,248. He carried the State by 89,788.

Wisconsin went into the Roosevelt column by 20,674 votes, with the Democratic ticket having a 73,186 edge in Milwaukee.

Mr. Roosevelt lost Michigan by a handful of votes, but carried Detroit by 173,192. His plurality in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, which includes Cleveland, was 138,024, and was just under the margin, 142,936, by which he carried Ohio.

Altogether, the cities polled 11,689,022, or about 24 per cent of the 48,111,425 votes which this tabulation covers. Their total population is 23,854,185 or 18.1 per cent of the national total, 131,409,881.

9,000 Mobilized For Chest Drive

Last Reports Made By Workers Ready To Begin Nov. 13

Leaders of 9,000 volunteer workers met yesterday at 719 Fifteenth Street Northwest to make their last report before the Thirteenth Annual Community Chest Campaign gets under way November 13.

Maj. Chauncey G. Porter, general chairman of the campaign, in whose office the meeting was held, told the unit leaders reports indicated an "unusual degree of readiness and eagerness" on the part of volunteer workers.

The poster design chosen to illustrate the campaign slogan—"Once a Year—They Look to You"—was exhibited by Bruce R. Allen, chairman of the publi relations unit. Photographed and arranged by George Lohr the poster shows the faces of 20 persons typical of those helped by Chest agencies and will be displayed on 15,000 easel cards in stores, banks and Government departments.

A new note will be founded this year in the use of white flags bearing the red feather symbol of the Chest campaign, which will be flown by taxicabs, street cars and trucks The feather again will be worn as a lapel or hat ornament by individual givers.

Allen praised the cooperation of newspapers and said that without them it would be impossible to reach the citizens of the community with the Chest's message.

Army Ordered To Cooperate With Labor

Assistant Secretary of War Patterson, declaring that the "great mass of American labor and its responsible leaders are cooperating with the Army in preparing for national defense," yesterday directed subordinates to give full cooperation in return.

In a statement setting forth the War Department's labor policy on cantonment construction, Patterson said that "labor standards as to wages, hours of work and overtime, among others, must be maintained if the defense program is to go effectively forward."

"The Army and each officer in it," he said "must cooperate with labor, to the end that the defense program may move forward without interruption or delay and that our country may have and keep that real and visible national unity which is increasingly essential to any effective defense in modern total war."

Strike Threatened

Patterson noted that the Army's labor difficulties so far have been minor. Discussing the recent one-day strike at Fort Meade, Md., the Secretary declared it resulted from a "temporary misunderstanding," and that he expected no further difficulties of this sort. Construction of the Forth Meade barracks, to be used by National Guardsmen and Selective Service men from this area has not been delayed by the episode, he said.

Work at Fort Meade was halted for three days when 250 carpenters walked out after their demands for double time for Saturday and Sunday work were not met. Although they were working five eight-hour days, the carpenters claimed they were entitled to double time, of $2.50 an hour, for all holidays under War Department policy. They returned to work pending negotiations which eventually met their demands.

There is concern here, however, over a threatened strike at the Vultee Aircraft plant at Downey, Calif., which has orders for $37,000,000 worth of Army planes. Labor leaders say that 3,500 members of a C. I. O. union at the factory have voted to strike if their demands are not met.

The Defense Commission said that "every means possible will be used to prevent a walkout."

Assistant Secretary Patterson said the Army's policy was patterned after rules laid down in the World War and provided for payment of union wage scales and an eight-hour day, with not less than time and one-half for overtime. It is governed, he said, by acts of Congress and policy statements of President Roosevelt and the Defense Commission, providing for a basic 40-hour, 5-day week.

Running Three Shifts

He stressed, however, that the 40-hour week could not be applied to factories producing warplanes, tanks and other munitions where facilities are limited and skilled labor scarce. All arsenals and many plane factories are now running three shifts of six days a week on an overtime basis.

"In no case throughout the entire defense program is delay being allowed to result from fixed limitations on hours of work," Patterson said.

Funeral Planned For Judge Raedy's Mother Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Raedy, 65, mother of Judge Ellen K. Raedy of the Municipal Court, will be held at 8:30 a. m. today at her home, 1407 Delafield Place Northwest, followed by requiem mass at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart at 9 a. m. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Raedy died Thursday at her home. She was the wife of Capt. Michael L. Raedy, a retired member of the Metropolitan Police force.

Mrs. Raedy was a native of Limerick, Ireland, and came to this country at the age of 13. She was a member of the Sodality of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart and of the Third Order of St. Francis.

Surviving, besides her daughter and husband, are two sons, Daniel J. and Michael L. Raedy, both attorneys.

Chief Engineer of Tacoma Bridge Blames Its Collapse on Poor Design and 'Economy'

By the Associated Press

Tacoma, Nov. 8.—Clark W. Eldridge, chief engineer of the ill-fated Narrows Bridge, said today State highway engineers had protested the design but that it was built as it was in the interests of economy.

The bridge collapsed during a gale yesterday.

"The employment of Eastern engineers was because of a requirement by the money-lending agencies that engineers of national reputation be employed," Eldridge said.

He added the State was told it could not have the money unless Eastern engineers were used.

The span, opened four months ago, was built with a WPA grant of $2,800,000 and an RFC loan of $3,520,000.

Carmody Announces Probe

[Federal Works Administrator Carmody, who announced Thursday his agency would investigate the bridge crash, said yesterday he was awaiting reports from the scene before taking any further action.

[He had no comment to make on the Eldridge criticism that Federal agencies dictated the choice of engineers for the bridge.

[It had previously been stated by Carmody's office Thursday that PWA officials review plans for all structures before granting funds and then assign an engineer to make inspections all during the construction.]

Bridge authorities conferred today on rebuilding plans and State officials sought to place blame for the collapse.

Crews of workers dislodged concrete blocks from the sagging approaches to relieve the strain on the two big towers and the main suspension cables.

The Washington Toll Bridge Authority held a preliminary meeting at Olympia to discuss yesterday's collapse and the matter of insurance adjustment. Gov. Clarence D. Martin reiterated that the bridge, third largest single suspension span in the world, would be rebuilt.

Civic leaders said they would ask that the replacement of the $6,400,000 structure be a two-deck bridge, the lower one providing a rail connection between Tacoma, near which is the Army's rapidly expanding Fort Lewis and McChord Field, and Bremerton, home of the Puget Sound Navy Yard.

State Senate Probe Urged

Major problem incident to this proposal was whether the two main towers would stand the weight of an additional deck.

State Senator Joseph D. Roberts, Seattle, said he would propose that Lieut Gov. Victor A. Meyers name a Senate committee to investigate the bridge collapse.

"The State highway commission undoubtedly will ask the Legislature for State aid in reconstructing the span," Roberts said. "If the House and Senate are to act intelligently on this, the members should know why the bridge collapse occurred and who is to blame. If we wait until the Legislature convenes, it will be too late."

Representative John M. Coffee, of this Congressional district, viewing the catastrophe scene—in which no lives were lost—promised "a fearless investigation, regardless of whose toes are tread upon."

Meantime, a fourth survivor of the spectacular collapse recounted a thrill-packed walk across the span. He was Winfield Brown, 25-year-old College of Puget Sound student who had driven to the bridge to watch it sway, then decided o walk across it "for the thrill," paying the 10-cent pedestrian fee.

"I got plenty of thrill for a dime," he exclaimed today, bandages covering multiple abrasions on his knees.

"I walked across and back. People were going by in cars all the time and were laughing because of the rippling motion. I decided to walk across again.

"When I was nearing the middle, the rippling motion stopped and the bridge suddenly began to sway madly from side to side. A car was just going by me and it smacked into the curb and a man jumped out. (This was Leonard Coatsworth, News-Tribune reporter who abandoned his car and crawled off the bridge.)

"The bridge was cracking and groaning and I was scared. As I watched the man jump from his car I was thrown to the pavement. He went down too. We tried to get up but the swaying motion made it impossible.

"Goner for Sure."

"I was certain I wasn't going to make it. I was so seasick I couldn't stand up. Sometimes the bridge tipped right on its side and I could look straight down at the water, 190 feet below me. I thought I was a goner for sure.

"Finally I got to my feet. I noticed the other man couldn't stand at all. Then he started to crawl and so did I."

Besides Coatsworth and Brown, a man and woman abandoned a truck on the bridge and fled to safety.

Police Check Pistol for Clew In Sniper Hunt

Suspected Owner And Friend Held In Assault Case

Ballistics examination of a .38-caliber revolver was continued last night as police tried to determine if the weapon was one used by a mysterious sniper to murder four men and wound three others.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said there was a chance the pistol might prove to be the murder weapon.

In the meantime, two men were in custody. They were arrested following the complaint of a colored man that he was accosted last Tuesday night by a man with a "black gun."

Raymond Quigley, colored, of 929 Twenty-third Street Northwest, told police he was threatened by another motorist on New Hampshire Avenue Northwest. Tracing the armed driver through his automobile registration, police found the suspected weapon and two other pistols of .32 caliber.

The man was arrested despite his plea that he had no knowledge of the assault. He was held under $25,000 bail on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon and probably will be arraigned in Police Court this morning.

The second man, a 24-year-old attorney, was charged with being an accessory in the assault on Quigley. He was held at the District Jail in default of $5,000 bond pending a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage next Tuesday.

3 Communist Party Officials Fight Contempt Charges

Three Communist Party officials pleaded not guilty in the District Court yesterday to indictments accusing them of contempt of the House of Representatives.

The alleged contempt consisted of refusing to answer questions before the Dies Committee. Those accused were Philip Frankfeld, executive secretary of the New England Communist Party; Dr. Albert Blumberg, secretary of the Maryland-District of Columbia Communist Party, and Patrick F. P. O'Dea, leader of the Young Communist League of Massachusetts.

The men refused to reveal names of members of their organization when asked by the committee.

Navy Institutes Superbattleship Mass Production

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

New York, Nov. 8.The New York Navy Yard, Brooklyn, has instituted a miniature mass production program by making duplicates of all parts constructed for the 45,000-ton battleship Iowa, now under construction at the yard, for its sister ship the Missouri, the keel of which will be laid in January, it was learned today.

The duplication program may cut a year off the scheduled 49-month construction of the Missouri.

Fifteen hundred tons of steel has already been fabricated for the Missouri. The parts are chiefly hull and deck sections, tanks, doors and other gadgets. The machinery which is made outside of the yard is not being duplicated in the same way, but all parts made at the yard will be duplicated. The design of the two ships is identical, although changes may be made during construction.

132 Pictures by 'Semiprofessionals,' All-American Exhibition and Works Of American Etchers on View Today

The Corcoran Gallery of Art will present three special exhibitions today, representing the work of painters and printmakers who range from the internationally famous to the rank unknown, some of whom have never had a picture on public display before.

Considering the obscure artists first, 83 of them—alumni and advanced students of the Corcoran School of Art—will show their pictures in the school's third annual exhibition.

These are the "semiprofessionals," many of them society matrons and Army officers' wives and teen-age youths. They include a mother and son, Mrs. Emilie M. Arlt and Paul Arlt. A good many worked their way through art school.

The lone entrant who is neither advanced student nor alumna is Sonia Biskin, who succeeded in having two pictures selected by the jury, though she has had only one year's training in the school, on a scholarship.

Names of the competitors—the show is a competition in the sense that all 132 pictures on display are for sale, priced from $3.50 to $50—give an inkling of their cosmopolitan heritage. To mention a few: Muller, Nordgren, Ginsberg, McClellan, Gustavson, Zerega, Trois, Vagnoni, Prencipe, Lee, Dinowitzer, Kasparian and Ogilby.

A mixture of "greats," "unknowns" and moderately prominent artists is represented in the all-American painting exhibition which is the nominal headliner of the three-in-one bill opening today. A traveling display, it presents 53 pictures—one from each of the 48 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

They were selected by local juries at the behest of Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corp., exhibited at the two world fairs and then purchased by Watson.

Chosen to represent the District was "Modern Puritan," a woman's portrait, by Nan Watson, wife of the art critic, Forbes Watson.

The best known American etchers and engravers over a three-century span, including Whistler, Bellows, Kent, Homer and others, are represented in the exhibition illustrating the history of printmaking in this country.

Assembled by the American National Committee of Engraving, headed by John Taylor Arms, the subjects range from serious historical scenes to slapstick cartoons.

All three shows will last until December 1.

Va.-Maryland Ferry Service For Bay Urged

Plans for Widening Nearby Roads Placed Before Commission

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8.—After an all-day hearing for the four eastern districts, the State highway commission took under advisement this afternoon requests for revisions in tentative allocations for 1941-42.

One of the major requests filed with the commission was for establishment of a Northern Neck-Eastern Shore ferry service, which, advocates said, would bring to Tidewater Virginia much of the Eastern Shore trade that now flows north to Baltimore and other cities.

The hearings here for the Richmond, Fredericksburg, Suffolk and Culpeper Districts followed a similar meeting at Roanoke Thursday, when representatives of the Salem, Bristol, Staunton and Lynchburg Districts appeared. Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley said a good deal of time would be required to study the various proposals submitted and work out the final allocations.

State Senator R. O. Norris, jr., of Lancaster; former Delegate R. Hill Fleet, of Irvington; former State Senator George L. Doughty, of Accomack, and Malcom Bridges of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce were spokesmen for the combined Richmond-Northern Neck-Eastern Shore delegation seeking the ferry service.

They told the commission that a private service operated across Chesapeake Bay some years ago showed constant growth but had to be abandoned because of an inadequate ferryboat. A State ferry service, they argued, would be the equivalent of 22 miles of road building, the distance across the bay between the neck and Eastern Shore.

Delegate Maurice Rosenberg of Alexandria and Martin Greene, of the Alxeandria Chamber of Commerce, urged the widening of Route 236 from Annandale into Alexandria to care for an increased volume of traffic incident to the greatly enlarged population of that area.

Frank C. Hanrahan, Arlington County manager, and C. L. Kinnier, county engineer, placed before the commission tentative road allocations for Arlington County totaling $209,000. Funds would provide for the widening of Lee Highway from North Danville Street to Rosslyn, completion of Columbia Pike through the county with four lanes from Route 1 to county line, and widening Route 1 from Highway Bridge to Four Mile Road.

3d Term Finds 'Deep Satisfaction' in Vatican

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 8.—President Roosevelt's reelection has been greeted with deep satisfaction in the Vatican, where the President enjoys great popularity because of his decision to send diplomatic representatives to the Holy See, and also because of his democratic and pacifist policy, it was stated today. The Vatican, it was said, has not been officially told of the British government's decision to reserve full liberty of action concerning air raids on Rome.

Capital Will Honor Dead of World War

President to Make Address at Tomb Of Unknown Soldier

Washington will celebrate the twenty-second anniversary of the World War Armistice Monday with city-wide programs ranging from the wreath-laying of the American Legion to demonstrations of local peace organizations.

The Federal and District governments, libraries, banks and most chain stores, and the District's public and private schools will close in commemoration of the national holiday honoring the World War dead. Department stores and many of Washington's smaller business establishments will stay open, however.

President Roosevelt will speak at American Legion services before the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington at 11 a. m., laying a wreath at the marble slab. Secretary of War Stimson and the Legion's National Commander, Milo J. Warner, will also make addresses.

Jewish war veterans will conduct their annual services in the Jewish Community Center tomorrow at 8:15, with Commander Benjamin Aronsohn presiding.

The American Legion Auxiliary will dedicate stained glass windows in the Fort Myer Chapel in memory of departed veterans at 1:30 p. m. Monday, with the American Legion commander speaking. Disabled veterans will hold their services in Walter Reed Hospital at 9 a. m. and at the Washington Cathedral at 4 p. m.

Bishop James E. Freeman will deliver an address at President Wilson's tomb in the Bethlehem Chapel, Washington Cathedral, at 3:15 p. m. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will be present.

More than 500 Boy Scouts and Scouters will participate in the Scouts' observance of Armistice Day. They will meet at 10 a. m. at the Fort Myer Chapel entrance to Arlington Cemetery and march to the Tomb of thet Unknown Soldier for their ceremonies.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold their twenty-first annual Armistice Day ball in the Willard Hotel beginning at 9 p. m. Brief ceremonies will be held at 11 p. m.

Antiwar placards will be carried in a poster parade by representatives of District peace associations. The parade is sponsored by the Citizens Committee Against War, affiliated with the Keep America Out of War Congress. The time and route will be announced tomorrow.

Meanwhile, antiaircraft units of the D. C. National Guard will participate in three Armistice Day celebrations on a trip through Maryland and Virginia. They will march in parades at Brunswick, Md., Sunday and in Martinsburg, W. Va., and Keyser, W. Va., Monday.

Sunday, members of the Third (Marne) Division of the District American Legion will place a wreath with the division insignia on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 12:30 p. m.

area, and particularly the Dust Bowl area. The sharpest defection came in North Dakota, where the vote for Roosevelt this year was 25 percentage points under his vote in 1936.

South Dakota, Kansas, Colorado, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Montana showed a decline of from 11 to 17 points in Democratic vote.

South Dakota now holds the distinction of being the most Republican State, having taken that honor from Maine and Vermont which shared it in 1936.

Five years ago scientific sampling procedures were first applied in measuring the division of sentiment on political candidates and political issues.

The accuracy of these methods has improved year by year. The established scientific polls registered a high degree of accuracy this year when the survey results are compared with election results.

The Fortune poll was within 1 per cent of perfect accuracy in its estimate of the popular vote for Roosevelt. But section by section the Institute's figures were closer to the actual election results.

Generally speaking, the Institute's errors were of underprediction, whereas Fortune underpredicted the vote in the North and overpredicted the vote in the South.

When the results of the Institute poll and the Fortune poll are compared with the unofficial election returns on a sectional basis, the picture is as follows:

| | Gallup Poll % For Roosevelt | Error | Fortune Poll % For Roosevelt | Error |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| New England (Me., N. H., Vt., Mass., Conn., R. I.) | 50.5% | —2.6 | 48.4% | —4.7 |
| Middle Atlantic (N. Y., N. J., Pa.) | 49.5 | —2.9 | 48.1 | —4.3 |
| East North Central (Ohio, Ill., Ind., Mich., Wis.) | 47.8 | —3.1 | 47.0 | —3.9 |
| West North Central (Minn., Iowa, Mo., N. D., S. D., Neb., Kan.) | 46.6 | —2.2 | 41.6 | —7.2 |
| South Atlantic (Del., Md., Va., W. Va., N. C., S. C., Ga., Fla.) | 68.1 | —0.4 | 76.0 | +7.5 |
| East South Central (Ky., Tenn., Ala., Miss.) | 66.1 | —4.0 | 80.4 | +10.3 |
| West South Central (Ark., La., Okla., Tex.) | 73.0 | —1.1 | 81.5 | +7.4 |
| Pacific Coast (Calif., Oreg., Wash.) | 56.0 | —2.0 | 50.8 | —7.2 |
| Mountain (Mont., Idaho, Wyo., Colo., N. Mex., Ariz., Utah, Nev.) | 51.7 | —4.2 | 45.1 | —10.8 |
| Average | | 2.5 | | 7 |

Institute State figures are reported above by census divisions on the basis of unofficial returns received to date.

The Institute's final pre-election report showed Roosevelt with 52 per cent of the total popular vote, or only 2.5 per cent less than he received.

The Institute likewise reported a figure for each of the 48 States. The average deviation between the poll figure and the election result in the 48 States was 2.5 percentage points—the highest State-by-State accuracy ever achieved in the history of national election polls.

In fact, the error went over 4 per cent in only three States in the Union—Utah, Idaho and Maine.

Following is a comparison of the Institute report and the election on a State-by-State basis:

| | Gallup Poll % For Roosevelt | Actual Election % For Roosevelt | Deviation |
|---|---|---|---|
| Kansas | 43% | 43% | 0 |
| Louisiana | 86 | 86 | 0 |

Immaculate Conception Parish to Observe Triple Anniversary With Exercises Tomorrow

BOY CHORISTERS OF IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CATHOLIC CHURCH

By Robert Tate Allan

The historic Catholic Parish of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N Streets Northwest, organized during the tumultous days of the War between the States, tomorrow will celebrate a triple anniversary—the diamond jubilee of both the founding of the parish and of the Sister of Charity School, and the fiftieth anniversary of the Brothers of Mary.

Rev. Cartwright

Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard's fortieth year as organist-choir leader will be observed on Tuesday night.

Jubilee Sunday will begin at 10:30 a. m., with Solemn Pontifical Mass, celebrated by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Washington and Baltimore, assisted by the Right Rev. Msgr. Lawrence J. Shehan, assistant at St. Patrick's Church.

Other officers of the mass will be the Rev. Charles Roach and the Rev. I. Mitchell Cartwright, deacons of honor; the Rev. Joseph P. Christopher, deacon of the mass; the Rev. Francis P. Harrity, subdeacon; the Rev. Walter Schmitz, S. S., master of ceremonies, and the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., preacher.

Boy's Choir to Sing

Boy Choristers of the Immaculate Conception Boys' School will sing Perosi's Mass under the direction of Charles A. Benson, with Prof. Howard at the organ. Other masses will be said tomorrow at 2, 7:15, 8:15, and 9:15 in the church and at 9:15, 10:15, 11, 11:35 a. m. and 12:15 p. m. in Hurney Hall.

At 7:45 p. m. the anniversary of the school will be celebrated with a Solemn Benediction service celebrated by the Most Rev. John McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Washington and Baltimore.

The Rev. Francis P. Harrity, of Worcester, Mass., will be deacon; the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra, assistant pastor of Immaculate Conception, subdeacon, and Dr. John K. Cartwright, pastor, preacher. Prof. Howard will lead girls of the Immaculate Conception Academy in a musical program.

Immaculate Conception Church had its inception in the fall of 1864, when the Rev. J. Walter, then pastor of St. Patrick's, undertook the organization of a new parish within the northern limits of his own. The cornerstone was laid on Sunday, October 30, that year, by Father Walter, assisted by the Rev. P. F. McCarthy, of St. Patrick's, and Father Boyle, of St. Peter's. The architect was William Hutton.

Father McCarthy became the first rector of the church, the building for which was dedicated on July 2, 1865, the Feast Day of the Visitation of the Blessed Mary.

New School Erected

The rector's first act was to persuade the Sisters of Charity to establish a parochial school. With the result that their work proved so successful numerically and spiritually that in a few years a new school and residence was erected for them at Eighth and Q Streets Northwest, present site of the Academy, one of the outstanding schools of this archdiocese.

In the school for boys that was established in the basement many men who were later to become prominent in the city's life were taught rudiments of their primary education. Among them were the Rev. F. McKenny, president of St. Charles College, and the Rev. Charles E. Bartlate, pastor of St. Teresa's.

The congregation grew rapidly, and in 1875 the new church was dedicated under its present name by the most Rev. James Roosevelt Bailey, Archbishop of Baltimore. When Father McCarthy died in 1882, he left behind him a church almost debt-free, and schools for girls and boys.

His successor, the Rev. Stanislaus F. Ryan, enlarged the girls' school and in 1890 secured the Brothers of Mary to assume charge of the boys' school, which under his leadership prospered and gave a system of free education to every lad in the parish. Father Ryan died in 1903.

The most notable achievement of his successor, Father Marr, was the erection of the school building blessed by Bishop Owen E. Corrigan, of Baltimore. Father Marr died in 1914.

The Rev. Michael J. Riordan, present pastor of St. Martin's Church here, came as rector in 1914, and under his guidance the $58,000 church debt was reduced, the church redecorated and the new lighting system installed. The Rev. James Connell served from 1921 to 1930.

Following him as pastor was the late Rev. Francis J. Hurney, then assistant pastor of St. Patrick's, and who, in his brief but fruitful ministry, established himself as one of Washington's best-beloved priests.

Gift of Friend

The Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, a gift of a generous friend of Father Hurney, was the initial undertaking. Then came the Washington Catholic radio hour. He built well, for the Grotto is still a center of great devotion and the "hour" is now progressing in its eleventh season. Sometime ago an altar was dedicated in Father's Hurney's memory. The Catholic War Veterans named a post after Father Hurney, who was a World War chaplain.

Dr. Cartwright, then assistant pastor of St. Patrick's took over the pastoral tasks at Immaculate Conception Church upon Father Hurney's death in 1933. His administration has been marked by the continuance of the radio hour, the fostering of the schools, reorientation of the academy, now with the largest enrollment in its history; the organization of the choir which, under Mr. Benson's direction, is one of the city's foremost musical groups, and the recent renovation of the church.

Dr. Cartwright yesterday had warm praise for his coworkers of the parish and brother-priests who have shown much interest in its progress, among them his assistant, the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra; Dr. John Tracy Ellis and Dr. Ignatius Smith, O. P., both of Catholic University; Father Joseph Bradley, second assistant at Immaculate Conception Church, Prof. Howard, Mr. Benson and others.

Gives Organ Recital

Prof. Howard will celebrate his four decades of association with the parish by presenting an organ recital at the church on Tuesday at 8 p. m., assisted by the senior class of the academy, with Charles B. Wood as soloist. Dr. Cartwright, parishioners and other friends afterward will tender him a reception.

Born in 1870, Prof. Howard began his musical studies at the age of 8. After studying piano with William Waldecker, one of the foremost local musicians and teachers, he went to Berlin in 1888, studying in Stern's Conservatory and with Xavier Scharwenka. Returning here in 1892, he became organist at Calvary Baptist Church.

Coming to his present position in 1900, he led in the staging of the "Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance" and other operettas through the boys' and girls' schools. In 1907 he conducted a season of grand opert under the direction of Katie Wilson-Greene, well known concert manager.

Mr. Howard served as dean of the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists for three years.

Mt. Pleasant Congregation

Dr. Fred Sherman Buschmeyer will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Reason Grown Courageous" at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. The Adult Forum will meet at 9:30 a. m. and continue its study of the social, cultural and religious environment of the world into which first century Christianity was projected. All interested persons are invited to join the group.

Second Baptist Topic

"The Guidance of God in a Sinful World" will be Dr. J. L. S. Holloman's sermon theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Second (colored) Baptist Church.

Children To Celebrate Luther's Birth

Youth From 20 Churches to Take Part in Exercises

Children from 20 Lutheran churches in the Washington area will participate in exercises at 3 p. m. tomorrow at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, marking the 457th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth.

The program will be sponsored by the Children of the Church organization of the United Lutheran Church in America, a missionary project, which, according to Miss Ella Engel, national secretary, has brought contributions of $13,961 for home and foreign missionary work in the last two years.

The combined choirs will sing; Mrs. Merle Cain, of Reformation Lutheran Church, will present the foreign mission work, and later the children will march around the statue of Luther at Thomas Circle.

St. Mark's. "Being a Christian Today" will be the theme of the sermon by the Rev. J. Luther Frantz at the 11 a. m. service.

St. Ansgar. Services will be conducted tomorrow at 11 a. m. at 1308 Vermont Avenue by the Rev. S. Christian Andersen. The topic will be "Eschatology as Taught by Our Lord."

Atonement. The Rev. Howard E. Snyder will preach at 11 a. m. on the theme of "He Hath Appointed a Day."

At the 8 p. m. vesper service, the Rev. James T. Powers will preach on "How Much Do We Want Peace?"

St. Paul's. The Rev. Henry W. Snyder, jr., will be ordained tomorrow at 3 p. m. by the Rev. A. J. Traver, D. D., president of the Maryland Synod of the Lutheran Church, and Dr. H. W. Snyder, pastor of the church and the candidate's father, will preach the ordination sermon. The younger minister has been called as assistant pastor of the Lutheran Church of Frederick, Md., of which Dr. Traver is the senior pastor.

Takoma. "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" will be the title of the sermon that the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer will deliver tomorrow at 11 o'clock.

Reformation. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder will preach at both the 11 o'clock and 8 o'clock services. "What Can Christ Do for People Who Crack Up in Days of Crisis?" will be the night subject; "The Christian Faith and Physical Healing," the morning topic.

Christ. The Rev. J. Frederic Wenchel will preach the last sermon in a series on "Is Life Worth Living?" discussing "Life Most Worth Living."

Grace. Sunday's worship program will be built about the general theme of "The Place of Lutheranism in Our Modern World," with Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski preaching at 11 a. m. on "Lutheranism Faces the Future."

Augustana. Holy Communion will be observed at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow. Dr. A. O. Hjelm will preach the sermon, and the choir will render, "I Have Longed for Thy Saving Health," by William Byrd.

Georgetown. "Salvation Is of the Jews," will be the subject of the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor, tomorrow at 11 a. m. "The Jew's Greatest King, David," will be the topic of the Luther League at 7 p. m., with Catherine Stevens leading.

Dean Powell Will Preach At St. Paul's'

The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, Dean of Washington, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish, reviewing the highlights of the recent Episcopal general convention in Kansas City.

Our Savior. Services for tomorrow will be Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m.; junior church and church school at 9:30 a. m., and sermon by the Rev. Alvin Lamar Wills, at 11 a. m., on "Stand by the Church."

Ascension. The services tomorrow will be Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and sermon by Canon Raymond L. Wolven at 11 a. m. The Young People's Fellowship, beginning tomorrow, will meet at 7 p. m.

St. Columba's. "Coworkers With God" will be the Rev. E. A. LeMoine's sermon topic at 11 a. m. service tomorrow.

St. John's. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn will preach tomorrow at 9:30 and 11 a. m. The Rev. John G. Magee, new assistant minister, will preach at 8 p. m. The full choir of men and boys, under the direction of Arthur Howes, organist and choirmaster, will sing "Grant Me True Courage, Lord," by Sebastian Bach, at the 9:30 a. m. service, and "Turn Back O Man," by Gustav Holst, at 11 a. m. The latter anthem will also be sung at the evening service by the mixed choir, under Mr. Howe's direction.

Clergymen Asked To Mention Chest Drive From Pulpit

Tomorrow having been designated as Community Chest Sunday, Coleman Jennings, president of the Chest, in a letter addressed to ministers of local churches, is asking that some portion of their services a week from today be devoted to a reminder of the Community Chest drive in the Nation's Capital.

The thirteenth annual Community Chest campaign for the voluntary support of social welfare services in Washington and vicinity will open on November 13 and continue through November 26. Approximately 9,000 unpaid volunteers, many of them prominent in church activities, will carry on the solicitation during that period.

"Once a Year—They Look to You" is the slogan used to keynote the appeal for human needs, for which this year the money goal sought is $2,000,000.

"I know that we can rely upon the power of the religious forces of the city at this vital time," said Mr. Jennings, in making his appeal to the clergymen.

During the pre-campaign period volunteer speakers assigned in response to requests made through the Chest Speakers Bureau are appearing before church groups comprising more than 900 persons. "Doorways of Washington," the 15 minute Technicolor motion picture showing scenes of Chest agency services is also being shown before many caurch audiences.

First Church's Jubilee Year Nears Climax

The diamond jubilee year of First Congregational Church will reach a climax in the coming week. There will be special services tomorrow.

MR. SWEET

William E. Sweet, moderator of the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches and one-time Governor of Colorado, will address a vesper service and Congregational mass meeting tomorrow at 5 p. m., while at 11 a. m. Dr. Howard Stone Anderson will deliver the anniversary sermon on "This Is Our Gospel." A reception will follow vespers.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, Dr. Anderson's predecessor as First Church pastor, will deliver the address at the anniversary banquet on Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. when Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, will preside.

Dr. Anderson

The anniversary address on Friday at 8 p. m. will be heard from Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, pastor of Old South Church (Congregational), Boston, and recently elected president of the American Board, oldest foreign missionary society in America. A historical photographic exhibit will be displayed all week through the courtesy of Miss Ella J. Morrison.

Among the hymns to be sung tomorrow morning will be "God Be With You," written by Dr. Jeremiah E. Rankin in 1882, while First Church pastor, and "Speak to Me, Lord," composed by Martin D. Schram, present member of the congregation. There will be a duet by Marjorie Brett and Dale Hamilton.

Dr. Stafford

Harvey W. Goddard is seventy-fifth anniversary chairman.

Covenant, First. Armistics Day will be the theme of the service at the services tomorrow morning, with a special program of music by the choir. Dr. Albert J. McCartney will have as his subject, "My God, My God, Why?"

Christian Science Sermon Announced

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m., and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend the services including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 28: 1, 9. "Unto thee will I cry, O Lord my rock . . . Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance; feed them also, and lift them up for ever."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other." (Matthew 12; 13).

"MY FAITH LOOKS UP TO THEE"
• • • REV. RAY PALMER • • •

My faith looks up to Thee,
Thou Lamb of Calvary, Savior divine;
Now hear me when I pray,
Take all my sin away,
O let me from this day be wholly Thine!

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS

These lines of tender emotion were written by a young teacher in a ladies' school in New York. Kept in his pocketbook for many months, it was not until Dr. Lowell Mason, a friend, asked for a contribution to his hymnal that the hymn was printed.

Armistice Day To Be Church Theme Here

Most Congregations Plan Special Services Tomorrow, Monday

Special religious services here tomorrow and Monday will commemorate the signing of the Armistice of 1917.

The Unknown Soldier's Tomb at Arlington and various churches will be the scenes of tomorrow's observance, while Monday's rites will be centered at the Washington Cathedral.

The District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association will sponsor the Arlington service tomorrow at 3 p. m., when Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church and president of the Washington Federation of Churches, will deliver the main address and the following will place wreaths:

Page McK. Etchison, president of the Bible Association, for the World Sunday School Association, of which he is an officer; H. C. McClintock, of Elkton, Md., for the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes, which he heads, and George E. Harris, for the Bible Association, of which he is executive secretary.

Quartet to Sing

Dr. Charles E. Resser, president of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association, will give the invocation, and Harlan Randall and the Westminster Quartet will sing. Elton H. Brown, sr., is in charge of arrangements.

The Woodrow Wilson Armistice Day committee of the District of Columbia, of which Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams is chairman, will hold a service at 3:30 p. m. on Monday in front of Wilson's Tomb at the Washington Cathedral, with the late President's widow and other close friends attending.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will speak then and also at 4 p. m. at the sixth annual Armistic Day rites sponsored by the National Capital Chapter, Disabled American Veterans, on the main floor of the Cathedral. The American Red Cross, headed by Miss Mabel Boardman, and other patriotic and service groups will participate in the latter service.

The Very Rev. Henry B. Washburn, of Cambridge, Mass., will address regular services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Cathedral, and the Rev. William Murray Bradner, Canon Precentor, at 4 p. m.

Service for Guardsmen

Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church and new Protestant chaplain of the District Police and Firemen's Society, has invited the District National Guard to attend Armistice Sunday rites at his church, Fourth and B streets southeast, tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. Member of other service branches are also invited.

The annual memorial service of the George E. Killeen Post 25, American Legion, and its Ladies' Auxiliary, will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Grace Episcopal Church, Georgetown, with the speakers including William H. Hargrave and Mrs. Helen McCabe, department commander and president, respectively; Jerome McKee, past commander of the post, and the Rev. M. M. Perkins, host rector.

"The Mothers of Our Boys" will be the Rev. Leslie L. Bower's Armistice Sunday sermon there at Fifteenth Street Christian Church at 11 a. m., and "A Power Greater Than War," 8 p. m.

Dr. Ze Barney Philips, Senate chaplain, and rector of Epiphany Church, will deliver an appropriate patriotic sermon tomorrow at 11 a. m., when there also will be special music.

The large service flag will be displayed tomorrow at Metropolitan Baptist Church, where Dr. John Compton Ball, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Blackout America Must Not Permit."

The Sons of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will take part in services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, where the Rev. Frederick J. Bishop will preach on "Christian Patriotism."

Ninth Street Junior Church Will Celebrate

The Junior Church of Ninth Street Christian Church will celebraje its eighth birthday tomorrow at 11 a. m. by following the same program used at its initial service.

Eight members of the Junior choir, former members of the Junior Church, will sing, and Mrs. H. B. Douglas and Dorothy Johnson will speak. Dr. Clifford H. Jope will address the regular service at the same hour on "What Makes a Nation Great?"

National City. "I Am a Debtor" will be the theme upon which Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, pastor, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Columbia Heights. Continuing the Month of Evangelism, the Rev. A. P. Wilson will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Choice of Moses." In the evening a dramatic fantasy of the life of Jesus, "The Prince of Peace," by Minnie Frost Rands, will be given by the Prince of Peace Players under the sponsorship of the Gleaners Class.

Association Chooses Universalist Church

As American Education Week begins today, the Education Association of the District of Columbia has named the Universalist National Memorial Church as its house of worship for the week-end. The theme for American Education Week is "Preparing for the Common Defense" and the theme for Sunday is "Enriching the Spiritual Life." In keeping with the thought of the week, Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister, has chosen for his topic at 11 a. m., "Education's Part in the Common Defense."

French Service Scheduled

The Rev. A. F. Liotard will preach at the French service at St. John's Episcopal Church tomorrow at 4 p. m. On Tuesday evening at 8:15 the young people's Franco-American group will meet in the parish house of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, when Mr. Liotard will speak about Turkey and Greece, from which he has recently returned.

Dedicatory Services Planned At Foundry Methodist Church

NEW CHANCEL setting of Foundry Methodist Church, dedication ceremonies for which will begin tomorrow

Religious and Educational Leaders To Participate in Series, Which, Starting Tomorrow, Will Continue Through Dec. 19

The first of a series of services dedicating historic Foundry Methodist Church's new chancel worship setting will be held tomorrow according to Dr. Frederick Brown Harris.

Bishop Leonard of Bishop William Fraser McDowell.

The dedication ceremonies will continue through December 19. At the special services, outstanding national religious and educational leaders will occupy the new memorial pulpit erected in honor

Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, resident bishop of the Washington area will occupy the new pulpit tomorrow at 11 o'clock, at which the new Letts Memorial Window will be unveiled and the chancel consecrated.

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives and the Rev. Eddy Lucius Ford, director of Religious Education of Foundry Church, will also take part in services.

At the evening service, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, resident bishop of the New York area, will occupy the national McDowell Memorial pulpit. The Wesleyan Singers of Baltimore will take part in the program.

Participating clergymen at the evening service will include Dr. G. Ellis Williams, superintendent, Washington West District; Dr. Richard L. Shipley, editor of the Methodist Recorder; Dr. John C. Millian, director of Religious Education of the Baltimore Conference; Dr. Chesteen Smith of the Baltimore Conference; and the Rev. William A. Keese, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church.

The worship setting of the church has been completely transformed into a chancel setting, which includes the McDowell Memorial Pulpit; a new altar of carved Indiana limestone; a chancel passion window of blue and ruby stained glass; a carved Reredos having as its central theme the portrayal of Christ drawing to Himself all men.

Other items in the new worship setting are a lectern, erected in honor of Bishop Edwin Holt and symbolizing the unification of the Methodist Church; altar lamps in memory of Clotilda Lyon McDowell; golden altar flower vases, altar cloth, golden candlesticks, and altar desk.

DR. HARRIS

There are seven clergy chairs in the sanctuary, the Wedderspoon Chair dedicated to the following former pastors of Foundry Church: Bishop Luther R. Wilson, Rev. Robert M. Moore, Rev. Walter E. Burnett, Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, Rev. George Clarke Peck, and Rev. J. Lewis Hartsock.

As a part of the new chancel project the organ of Foundry Church has been rebuilt and enlarged. Organ chimes have been added in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. Wellen Fisher. The organ and chimes will be dedicated on Sunday evening.

Speakers scheduled to take part in the dedication ceremonies during the next four weeks include Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, dean of Drew University; the Rev. Harold Paul Sloan, editor of the New York Christian Advocate; Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, former resident bishop of the Washington area; Dr. Harry N. Holmes; the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bistop of Washington; the Rev. Robert M. Williams, minister of Asbury Methodist Church; Dr. Carl Rasmussen, of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa.; Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation; and Dr. H. J. Burgstahler, president of Ohio Wesleyan University.

In connection with the ceremonies, there will be an anniversary fellowship banquet in the dramatic hall of the church on Thursday evening, November 14, which will mark the sixteenth anniversary of Dr. Frederick Brown Harris' pastorate at Foundry Methodist Church.

The toastmaster at the banquet will be the Hon. Arthur S. Flemming, civil service commissioner. Bishop and Mrs. Adna Wright Leonard will be guests of honor. The speakers will include Dr. J. R. Edwards, pastor of Union Methodist Church, this city; the Rev. Benjamin Meeks, pastor of Calvary Church, Frederick, Md., and other former district superintendents and pastors who went into the ministry from Foundry Church.

Baptist Church SundaySermon Topics Listed

The Rev. J. Martin England, missionary from Burma and a native of South Carolina, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Chevy Chase Baptist Church. Stories of favorite hymns will be told by the Rev. Edward O. Clark at 8 p. m.

East Washington. "Bring a Friend Sunday," sponsored by the local National Christian mission committee, will be observed at tomorrow's services. The Rev. Glenn B. Faucett will speak at 11 a. m. on "True Friendship" and at 8 p. m. on "Friends to the World."

North Washington. The Rev. Henry J. Smith will speak on "Elemental Expectations" at the morning service and on "Self-Restricted Vision" at 7:45 p. m.

First. "A Just Peace" will be the subject of the sermon to be delivered by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, tomorrow at 11 o'clock. The senior choir will sing "Judge Me, O God," by Mendelssohn, and the solo, "Recessional," by Reginald De Koven, will be sung by Ruth Reumann Hall. At the evening service Dr. Pruden will speak on "The Miracle of Prayer."

Calvary. Dr. W. S. Abernethy will preach tomorrow morning on "Victory Plus." For the children's story sermon his subject will be "That Second Mile." The ordinance of the Lord's Supper and the giving of the hand of fellowship by the minister will come at the close of the service. "The Well Is Deep" will be Dr. Abernethy's subject for the evening service. He will be assisted by Roy Parker and Helen James, of the Young People's group.

Daughter Receives Bulk of Estate Of H. F. Woodard

Henry F. Woodard, who practiced law in Washington nearly half a century before he retired in 1935, left most of his $667,000 estate to his daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Woodard Finley, 2825 Magill Terrace Northwest.

Mr. Woodard was 74 years old when he died on October 29, at his home, 3148 Cleveland Avenue Northwest. His will was filed for probate yesterday.

The estate included securities and cash valued at $250,000 and $417,000 in real estate. The realty included a portion of the LaSalle apartment building.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Burdine

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Anne Burdine, 81, 6603 Eastern Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., who died Thursday at Garfield Hospital, will be held today at 11 a. m. at the Warner E. Pumphrey funeral home, 8424 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

The Rev. J. Herbert Garner, pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Washington, will conduct the services. Honorary pallbearers will be Frank Lane, Jerry Hobbs of the Montgomery County police force, William Whalen of the Takoma Park town police force, Charles Clements, Albert Gude and H. P. Ware.

Dr. Spottswood to Preach

Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood, minister of John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, Fourteenth and Corcoran Streets Northwest, tomorrow at 11 a. m. will preach the final sermon in the series from the book of Job, using as a subject "Spiritual Rebirth."

Va. Utility Acts To Forestall 'Blackouts'

Emergency Circuits Planned; Will Build $200,000,000 Addition

A $2,000,000 addition to the power plant of the Virginia Public System was being pushed to completion last night as the utility arranged emergency circuits in a double-barreled move to forestall any repetition of the blackout of 25,000 Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax County homes Thursday night.

An augmented force of engineers was prepared to work continuously until the new 15,000-kilovolt ampere generator would be ready to operate.

The 15,000 kilovolts would boost to 24,000 the potential power of the system. While the 5,000-kilovolt generator that failed Thursday is not yet back in operation, approximately 9,000 kilovolts are available from "booster" service.

As additional insurance against another power failure, the utility took these steps: A bookup was arranged with the Virginia Electric Power Co., linking the Alexandria plant to power sources in Fredericksburg, Occoquan, Alexandria and Arlington County; the Public Service Co. arranged a tieup between the Alexandria plant and its generating station at Bremo Bluff.

Meanwhile, the utility company's switchboard was flooded with calls from indignant citizens. Many persons sought an explanation of the fact that the Thursday night power failure and a shorter blackout Wednesday occurred at the same hour, approximately 5:42 p. m.

Officials insisted the repetition was merely a coincidence. The more serious break Thursday was caused by a generator blaze which burned insulation from wiring. Snapping of a transmission line by the wind was the origin of the earlier power failure, they said.

Maynard Magruder, chairman of the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission, last night declared his unit would launch an investigation of the power failure at its next meeting.

Roosevelt Speaks Tonight At Press Club

'Off-Record' Speech, Military Display to Highlight Dinner

President Roosevelt will deliver his first speech since the election tonight at the annual members dinner of the National Press Club. Following tradition, his talk will be "off the record."

Others to be hosted by more than 400 club members at their annual banquet for the Chief Executive will include Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, Secretary of Commerce Jones and Postmaster General Walker.

A mommoth military display with elaborate Army maneuvers will highlight the dinner, followed by an entertainment program arranged and presented by Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Club members in charge of the annual dinner are President Richard L. Wilson, Committee Chairman Walter Karig, Frank Waldrop, William H. Mylander, Oliver Hoyem, Howard Acton, Ernest K. Lindley, and George Stimpson.

Participating in the program will be the United States Navy Band Orchestra, conducted by Lieut. Charles Benter.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Walsh, Formerly of D. C.

Funeral services for Mrs. Arie Blair Walsh, 87, former Washingtonian, who died Thursday in Annapolis, Md., will be held at 9:40 a. m. today at the Hoppings funeral home, Annapolis, to be followed by a mass at St. Mary's Catholic Church at 10 a. m. and burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery in Washington at noon.

Mrs. Walsh was the widow of James F. Walsh and a native of St. Marys County, Md. When 15 years of age, she moved to Washington and resided here until eight years ago, when she made her home in Annapolis. Her death occurred there at the home of her son, Frank B. Walsh.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. J. C. Duke and Mrs. Joseph Richards, of Washington; Mrs. Herbert Emerson, of Sioux Falls, S. D.; Mrs. Frances Weeks, of Pelham Manor, N. Y.; Mrs. Lester Hutchinson, of Bayside, N. Y., and a son, Frank B. Walsh, of Annapolis.

D. C. Red Cross Appeals for More Blood Donors

The District Red Cross Chapter yesterday issued an appeal for 50 more male blood donors in connection with the preparation of plasma by Naval Medical School.

To date 71 volunteers have registered with the chapter. Twelve of these have already made donations of blood.

The medical school project is part of the national defense program. Names of prospective donors are forwarded by the Red Cross to the school, which calls for volunteers as needed.

Men desiring to register are requested to telephone the chapter office, National 5400, branch 244.

Paint Salesmen Open 3-Day Convention

More than 150 members of the National Paint Salesmen's Association arrived here yesterday for the opening of their fourth annual three-day convention. An informal dinner at the Wardman Park Hotel headquarters opened the conclave, headed by President James D. McDonald of New York.

Principal event of the convention calendar is a banquet scheduled for 7:30 p. m. today, followed by a floor show and dance. A sightseeing tour will close the convention tomorrow afternoon.

Palestine Appeal Group to Hear Sir Norman Angell

Sir Norman Angell, British statesman and Nobel Prize winner, will address the semiannual conference, United Palestine Appeal, tomorrow at the Ambassador Hotel.

There will be three sessions. The first, in the morning, will deal with administrative activities of the seaboard area; the second will be a luncheon and reception to Sir Norman, and the third a general session closing the day's activities.

The movement's national leaders, including Henry Montor, national executive director, U. P. A.; Rabbi Isadore Breslau, Washington, chairman of the appeal for the seaboard area, and Daniel Ellison, Baltimore, president, seaboard Zionist region, will participate.

'A Dispatch From Reuter's,' Earle, Pays Tribute to World's Newsmen

Edward G. Robinson Starred as Creator Of News Agency; Colorful Stage Revue

"A DISPATCH FROM REUTER'S," Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Valentine Williams and Wolfgang Wilhelm, adapted to the screen by Milton Krims, starring Edward G. Robinson with Edna Best, Eddie Albert, Albert Basserman, Gene Lockhart, Otto Kruger, Nigel Bruce, Montagu Love, James Stephenson, Walter Kingsford, David Bruce, Dickie Moore, Billy Bevan, Richard Nichols and Lumsden Hare. Directed by William Dieterle. At the Earle Theater.

In "A Dispatch from Reuter's," the current screen attraction at the Earle Theater, the Warner Brothers and William Dieterle, their ace director of biographical subjects, have adhered to the same dramatic formula and the same high standard of production values and cast made familiar by their earlier releases of such comparable films as "The Life of Emile Zola," "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "Juarez" and "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," all directed by the highly proficient, if slightly stereotyped, Mr. Dieterle.

BELL

Based upon the creation of the first news agency and dedicated to the freedom and integrity of the press, the picture finds high interest and tense drama in a field long and inexplicably ignored by the cinema. While its appeal will be intensified in the eyes of newspaper folk, the mounting drama inherent in a story of bitter competition, struggle and sacrifice will furnish ample entertainment for any audience.

The action is initiated in the early boyhood of Julius Reuter, a youngster fascinated by the speedy communication afforded by the telegraph and keenly conscious of the value of swift news transmission. He is discovered next, 16 years later, intent upon establishing a pigeon post to bridge the gaps between the uncompleted wire systems. When telegraphic communication completely supplants his beloved birds, the idea of a universal press association, served by wire, is born. The revolutionary boldness of the scheme meets with rebuff on every hand. Only Sir Randolph Persham perceives its value and is willing to loan the considerable sums of money necessary for a practical test. The experiment meets with such success that rival companies spring up, led by Anglo-Irish, which, at first, seems to have outwitted Reuter at his own game by secretly stringing its own private wires. The tables are turned in the stirring climax of the picture, when Reuter beats the world on the news of President Lincoln's assassination, is haled before Parliament for circulating rumor instead of fact and is vindicated only when Anglo-Irish is forced to admit the accuracy of his report hours after its release.

Into this dramatic framework have been fitted a considerable degree of suspense, a meed of comedy and the warm pattern of Reuter's personal romance. The play has been scrupulously produced, sensitively directed and is admirably acted by a cast of splendid ability and balance.

Following his outstanding success as Dr. Ehrlich, Edward G. Robinson brings to the screen an equally well-drawn and convincing character study of the adult Reuter, man of vision, imagination, indomitable will and an unshakable conviction that the press must be free and its news unfailingly authentic. His dealings with the pompous bankers, to whom he first served stock market reports, strikes the keynote of his abhorence of all chicanery. In his transmission of the speech of Emperor Louis Napoleon is found the genesis of the news bureau and in the Lincoln episode the stanchness of his character. In all of this, the star is ably supported by Edna Best in the role of Ida Magnus, the daughter of Dr. Magnus and first to have faith in the dreamer's aspirations. Gene Lockhart is cast in a role almost identical with his earlier overstuffed banker in "Edison, the Man" and plays it with comparable skill. Nigel Bruce, as the friendly backer, and Montagu Love, as the publisher of the London Times, Reuter's first antagonist and later most helpful friend, both are strong figures in the story's development. As Reuter's poet-assistant, Eddie Albert is responsible for most of the action's quiet comedy.

Harry Anger's new "Frills and Fun" stage revue is a smooth-running and colorful offering in which the Roxyettes cleverly "prologue" the individual specialties. These are supplied by the Lime Trio, two comic stooges and the world's most amazing acrobatic contortionist; Mark Dawson, a Thor-voiced barytone, announced as "the find of the week;" Frank Paris and his manikins and Nirska, a spectacular and immensely artistic "fire-dancer" in the Loie Fuller manner—if there is anyone in the audience whose memory goes back that far.

"Wacky Wild Life," one of those audacious Merrie Melody color cartoons; Eileen Ritter's assertively mandatory "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike" session and the salving, post-election issue of the picturized news events complete a program of conspicuously substantial worth.

"The Long Voyage Home" Realizes Full Power of O'Neill

By Richard L. Coe

"THE LONG VOYAGE HOME," Walter Wanger-United Artists picturization of four one-act plays by Eugene O'Neill, adapted to the screen by Dudley Nichols, with John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell, Ian Hunter, Barry Fitzgerald, Wilfred Lawson, Mildred Natwick, John Qualen, Ward Bond, Arthur Shields, Joseph Sawyer, J. M. Kerrigan, Rafaela Ottiano, Carmen Morales, Carmen D'Antonio, David Hughes, Billy Bevan, Cyril McLaglen, Douglas Walton and Constantine Romanoff. Music by Richard Hageman. Directed by John Ford. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

"The Long Voyage Home" scales unaccustomed heights of film magnificence.

John Ford's widely-heralded screen treatment of four one-act plays by Eugene O'Neill opened yesterday at RKO-Keith's to hearten those who seek something more than rosy hero-worship in their films. It is a forthright, stunning saga of man's unending quest for something he can but vaguely sense.

Make no mistake about it, "The Long Voyage Home" is not for the filmgoer who must have points bludgeoned home with emotion, sentiment or flag-waving; it states the lot of men with merciless realism and pathetic detail. Yet so relentless is its focus on truth that "The Long Voyage Home" boasts the qualities of a screen Odyssey.

Dudley Nichols has woven his screen-play from O'Neill's four short plays of the S. S. Glencairn—"The Moon of Caribbees," "Bound East for Cardiff," "In the Zone" and the episode of the title, "The Long Voyage Home." They form a properly inconclusive story of the Glencairn's voyage from the tropics back to England. The time has been skillfully shifted to the present war and its terrifying effects on the individual.

A Motley Crew

Ole Olson wants to go to his home in Sweden after ten years of knocking about the sea. Smitty is on the Glencairn to forget his disgrace at having drunk himself out of the Royal Navy. Cocky has a trusting, credulous humor. Driscoll is the essence of Irishmen; he's always ready for a fight and when he asks for whisky he specifies "Irish" whisky. The hopelessness of Yank's deathly sickness is a telling note that is never too stridently sounded. But there is no lack of understanding humor.

The all-important setting of the S. S. Glencairn is brilliantly photographed by Gregg Toland. One feels the heavy morning mist, the settling of the munitions-loaded ship as it hits the storm waves of the north Atlantic. One hears the creaking of the hawsers, the dreadful squeeking of the chains as the anchor slips loose, banging against steel. One all but smells the air, from the luxuriant tropic warmth to the penetrating salt of the foggy north. Were it only for this remarkable success in capturing the atmosphere of a grimy tramp, "The Long Voyage Home" would be an outstanding achievement.

But there is so much more: The striking burial of Yank at sea. No heroics here, only the grim duty and then it is done. The awful weakness in men which leads them to suspect the worst in others, as exemplified in the "In the Zone" episode and gallant Smitty. The bumboat women and their smuggled rum. The Limehouse crimp and his shanghai technique. Freda and her wretched lie. (The women, by the way, all represent the forces of evil.)

Is Superbly Played

The players are superbly equal to the task this exceptional script assigns them. Thomas Mitchell has never been finer than he is as the gruff Driscoll and when he is taken back to sea by a cruel fate (an excellent variation of the original play), one feels, as the brief epilogue observes, that this is the way of the sea and of life's endless searching. John Wayne, Ian Hunter, Barry Fitzgerald, John Qualen, Wilfred Lawson, Arthur Shields and Mildred Natwick are all outstanding in this excellent company.

So much and more is "The Long Voyage Home," an eloquent film, stirringly directed by the masterful John Ford and a memorable experience because of the truth in its writing. To miss it would be to blind oneself to the force of adult filmmaking.

Also on the Keith bill are Walt Disney's "Mr. Mouse Takes a Trip" and the latest Universal newsreel.

'Abe Lincoln in Illinois' Back At Popular Prices at the Met.

"ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS," RKO-Radio picturization of the play by Robert E. Sherwood, adapted by Grover Jones and Mr. Sherwood, starring Raymond Massey, with Gene Lockhart, Ruth Gordon, Mary Howard, Dorothy Tree, Harvey Stephens, Minor Watson, Alan Baxter, Howard da Silva, Aldrich Bowker Maurice Murphy, Louis Jean Heydt, Clem Bevans, Harland Briggs, Herbert Rudley, Andy Clyde, Roger Imhof, Edmund Elton, Leona Roberts and Florence Roberts. Produced by Max Gordon. Directed by John Cromwell. Presented for the first time locally at popular prices. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

How a great man became great in the eye of the public, almost against his own will, when his own inner desire was only for a simple, easy-going life—this is the story of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," one of the greatest films of the last decade. Now being presented at popular prices for the first time, at the Metropolitan.

All the probabilities are that there is more inner truth in "Abe Lincoln of Illinois" than you will find in many histories. The Robert E. Sherwood prize-winning play, on which the picture is based, is a remarkable psychic study of the Great Emancipator and those smaller figures with which his destiny was entangled.

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois" has little in common with other biographical pictures of recent years. Its entertainment value is never submerged in overdone heroics or dried out in "improving" angles. It is just the humorous but heroic story of that supreme but typical American, Abraham Lincoln. He didn't want to be a national hero. He didn't want to be President. He just wanted to stay home. And look what happened.

Odd and chilling foreshadowings of destiny lurk in corners of the dialogue. There's a shiver in the moment when Lincoln, speaking of his first trip to New Orleans, says, "I was afraid all the time I was there. Of the people. I thought they were going to kill me. I don't know why I thought it."

The psychic element in the relation between Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd Lincoln is adeptly indicated. When Mrs. Lincoln breaks into a hysterical cry that her husband hates her, you get the feeling that she is right, in a way. Not that her husband hates her personally, but that he hates his destiny of which she is part. That they are both entangled in a tragedy of human personalities, she doomed to nag, irritate, antagonize and spur him unhappily onward, while he is fated never to know personal happiness or personal freedom. It was a situation in which both parties were martyrs.

But not all of the picture is keyed so grimly. The frontier wrestling matches, the episode of the escaped pigs, much of the political campaigning all are packed with typical American humor.

While Raymond Massey's superb interpretation of Lincoln overshadows the entire picture, there are other notable characterizations, especially those of Ruth Gordon, as Mary Todd; Mary Howard, as Ann Rutledge, and Gene Lockhart, as Stephen A. Douglas.

A Larry Clinton musical short includes the hottest of swing, while the current newsreel carries a highly diverting resume of election day doings. MARY HARRIS.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Nov. 8.

THE VISIT of Schiaparelli reminds me of what happened when she first came to town some years back. Adrian really went to town—gave her a party at his home, asked 20 of the biggest stars, including Joan Crawford, Kay Francis, Virginia Bruce, and many others, to model his loveliest clothes and put on a fashion show. She was like a child with a new toy. Next day came an earthquake. You've never seen anyone get out of town quicker . . . Now we're not aiming to have the earth turn over for her, but the town's waiting to welcome her.

Curt Bois has always wanted to do a picture with Ernst Lubitsch. (Name anyone who hasn't!) But every time Lubitsch wanted him, Bois was tied up with a stage show. Lubitsch sent for him again the other day to do a role in "That Uncertain Feeling," but Bois had to turn it down because he's directing the stage production called "Thank You, Columbus." Lubitsch wrote him a note saying, "The wisdom of your decision will depend upon whether or not my film is better than your show."

The casting battle over "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is almost as great as was the late political campaign. Author George Kaufman favors Cary Grant. Studio would like either Orson Welles, Charles Laughton, or John Barrymore. Now that serials are so popular, why not make it in that form and do "The Man Who Came to Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner," using one in each?

The day after Maris Wrixon got the lead in "The Case of the Black Parrot," refugees film cutter, Rudy Fehr was handed the job of editing the picture. Both were happy till they discovered the other had the job. You see, Rudy and Maris are man and wife. What a spot! If he gives her too much footage, the studio has him on the carpet. If he leaves her on the cutting room floor, his home life will be ruined.

Heimo Haitto, 15-year-old violinist in "Magic in Music," hopes at the end of his present concert tour to return to Finland and go on the radio free for the privilege of saying after each broadcast, "Mother, this is Heimo. Please get in touch with me. I'll wait here three days." He was separated from his mother during the Russian invasion, hasn't heard from her since.

DURING THE LAST NINE DAYS of the campaign, the employes in the Washington office of the C. I. O. all wore "Vote for Roger Babson" buttons. Before John L. The employes refused, and finally they and Dan Lewis effected this compromise—Babson buttons.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (INS).—When my old friend Cecil B. De Mille wants something he usually gets it. He's wanted Cowboy Bill Boyd for one of his pictures a long time and now, by some cagey maneuvering he's signed him for a top role in "Reap the Wild Wind."

PARSONS

Let me tell you how it came about: Harry Sherman holds Bill Boyd's contract and there is a clause forbidding him to appear in any other Western background film.

De Mille wanted Bill for roles in both his latest—"Union Pacific," "Northwest Mounted Police"—but Sherman said, "Nope, they're 'Westerns.'" So when De Mille sent the script of "Reap the Wild Wind" to Sherman, asking to borrow Boyd at the same time, he wrote on the front of it: "This is a sea picture!"

Charlie Grapewin gets the cussed, cussin' role of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road," a part that has been rumored for Walter Brennan, Henry Hull and half a dozen others. Well, good actors that they are, I'm sure no one could be better than Mr. Grapewin. Remember how wonderful he was as grandpa in "Grapes of Wrath"—and Jeeter is not unlike grandpa.

Snapshots of Hollywood and Philadelphia Collected at Random: Fred Brisson airmailed Roz Russell a diamond ring to Kansas City. If it is returned airmail he'll know what she means. If she comes home wearing it they're engaged. Why don't you speak for yourself, Fred? February is the date set for the wedding of Paul Kelly and Pretty Claire Owen, M.-G.-M. stock player; Elsie Janis was the one-woman riot of the Will Rogers Memorial Dinner at the Beverly Hills Hotel. It was a gay event (just as Will would have wanted it) but Elsie outdid herself in her imitations of the three Barrymores.

Somerset Maugham is so interested he may come to Hollywood for the premiere of Bette Davis in his favorite story, "The Letter;" it's Dean Jagger's birthday and he's made so many costume pictures Mrs. J. is giving an 1861 costume party at home; Chester Morris and Lillian Barker will be married at Frank Morgan's home November 30.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

THE WINNAH!

How and why he won and the fight he still has to face

No other man even got past the preliminaries and into the ring for the title bout three times—Roosevelt not only reached the finals three times in a row, but won every time. A champion, indeed—yet there's a fight before him which will make the election campaign seem like a sparring match. "Only the productive can be strong—only the strong can be free," was Willkie's battle cry, and its implications remain.

For Sunday Post readers Robert Albright reviews the campaign and ponders its lessons. How did Roosevelt win? Because he was a super-skillful politician? Because of the crisis abroad? Because he is the idol of the public? And why—why did the third-term issue, the war party cries, the stirring Willkie campaign fail to impress the voters? Or did they completely fail? Doesn't the size of the Willkie vote flash its warning? What that warning is, and how the President may react to it, is also part of Albright's article.

Hedley Donovan takes up the story at the border and looks abroad at wars across both oceans. He reviews the Roosevelt foreign policies, one by one, outlines the problems that lie ahead for the third term, shows how the weight of the re-election may tip the scales of world affairs.

FICTION, RECIPES, BOOK REVIEWS, COMICS, SPORTS, SPECIAL ARTICLES, PICTURES--A LOT TO ENJOY IN SUNDAY'S POST

Good Neighbors and Good Recipes

No kitchen is so cosmopolitan as the American, yet even in American kitchens the food ideas of our neighbors to the south are sadly neglected. So from Argentine, from Brazil, from Peru come recipes and food ideas gathered by Martha Ellyn from Senora de Guerrero and Senora Garzia, of Argentine; from Senora de Hasslocher, wife of the Brazilian counselor; from Mrs. Paul Ledig, who has lived in Peru for years. You'll find these Latin-American ideas well worth a trial. They include a stew, a salad, a new way of cooking duck, suggestions involving quinces, peanuts, shrimp. Don't miss Miss Ellyn's Sunday article!

U.S. Marine Corps Vigorous at 165!

Even a marine would find his knees creaky at the age of 165, but though age may retire the individuals it only makes the corps as a whole more vigorous, more sure of itself than ever before. Older than the Army or the Navy (of which it is now a part), older even that the Nation which it serves, the United States Marine Corps is being reorganized and expanded to keep it young and fit. J. Gilbert Norris tells you the story of the Marines on Sunday's Army and Navy page, with pictures of leathernecks in action.

DOZENS of DEBS

What makes this debutante season different from any Washington has ever seen? Elizabeth Henney tells you. What kind of fashions are chosen by Washington's debs? Marshall Adams describes two entirely different types. Who are the current season's debutantes? See for yourself—in Sunday's Post. Sunday's rotogravure section, all eight pages of it, is devoted entirely to the Washington debutantes of 1940-1941. And in Sunday's society section Hope Ridings Miller outlines the White House social season plans.

Algernon's No Sissy

as Hitler Found Out!

Air Marshall Sir Charles Algernon Portal's hobby is falconry, so his friends call him The Falcon. And a keen-eyed hawk, indeed, the Germans found him on the day they had planned for the invasion of England. In "The Man Who Fooled Hitler," C. Patrick Thompson introduces you to Britain's new air leader and his right-hand man, Sir Hugh (Stuffy) Dowding, tells of their exploits in England's defense, their hopes for finally taking the offensive against Germany.

39 Sunday Post Comics

In addition to practically all your daily Post favorites you'll find these comics in Sunday's Post: Prince Valiant, Right Around Home, Nippie, Looie, Bos'n Hal, Alley Oop, Foozy, Brick Bradford, Just Kids, Etta Kett, Fritzi Ritz, Nancy, Captain Easy, Alexander Smart, Elmer, Captain and the Kids, Hawkshaw the Detective and Buck Rogers.

BOOKS:

Children, Art, War

"The bombardment of London will be almost worth it, if it blows up Epstein's statues," was a bomb-shelter joke in London last week. Equally caustic is Jacob Epstein's opinion of his critics, an opinion fully expressed in his new book, reviewed in Sunday's Post. Also on the book page, "I Rode With Stonewall" (a memoir of Gen. Jackson) and a list of outstanding children's books of the year.

"Once Aboard the Whaler" by Ben Ames Williams, is Sunday's Novel

Toppy Huggit had never seen the sea. So when Uncle Seth gave him ten dollars he went to New Bedford, the port from which his father had first sailed on a whaler. And in New Bedford things started to happen. A murder. A mysterious packet and map which Toppy was supposed to have, but didn't. The "job" which turned out to be aboard the whaler. The captain's daughter, who took pity on the greenhorn, saved his life, taught him navigation. The grumbling crew and the "accidents" that befell those who refused to join the plot. The whales. The mutiny. The—but read the story for yourself! Enough happened to Toppy Huggit on that first whaling voyage to make one of the best sea yarns you've ever stayed up late to read. A story by Ben Ames Williams—complete in a separate, 16-page tabloid section of Sunday's Post, with illustrations in color.

Time For Giving

Mrs. Roosevelt was right when she remarked that the Community Chest is fulfilling an "absolutely vital" need. She was right when she referred to the institutions "below the standard we would like to see them have," which cause problems in District welfare. Reporters and members of Congress discovered that Mrs. Roosevelt hadn't exaggerated the pitiful lack of space, and other handicaps, on her visits early this year to the Home for the Aged and Infirm and the Receiving Home for Children. The revelations helped the Welfare Department to get from Congress a slight increase in funds, but the main problems of additional housing and personnel remain unsolved.

It is good in this connection to hear that the Welfare Board and the District Commissioners are considering an appeal to Congress for land. On a large tract outside the city they would establish, eventually, the Home for the Aged and Infirm, two industrial home schools, and the National Training School for Girls. This project would do much to make Washington institutions the models Mrs. Roosevelt and the rest of us wish. But until the District has its own government, any improvements will depend on a Congress with less time than ever for local affairs.

In the meantime the agencies of the Community Chest must carry a heavier burden because in many cases they hesitate to use overtaxed and unsuitable public facilities. This is, perhaps, a temporary problem. Those who will be called upon for support of the Community Chest must not overlook the permanent place of the Chest in community life. As an official of the Social Security Board has emphasized, the Chest is not a substitute for assistance by the Government. In a democracy, certain duties devolve upon private generosity, without which the whole system of social security would fall apart.

The Tacoma Fiasco

It would appear from the meager evidence now available that the long suspension bridge over the Tacoma Narrows of Puget Sound collapsed for the same reason that the walls of Jericho collapsed under the blasts of Joshua's trumpet. The bridge was "out of tune." That is to say, a dissonance, or lack of vibrational harmony among the various parts of the structure, was created under the pressures of the heavy winds common to those parts.

Thus serious defects of design, rather than defects of materials or construction, are indicated as the cause of the fiasco. The Tacoma Narrows Bridge was one of the three longest suspension bridges in the world. But never before had a bridge of such length been designed with so narrow a roadway. The ratio of width to span was 72, almost a third more than in the Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco, itself an extreme example of narrowness.

The point here is that the wider a suspension bridge in relation to its length the greater the diffusion of vibrational stress. In the case of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge vibration seems to have been greatly aggravated by the solid steel girders whereby the floor was affixed to the cables. A design calling for girders of this type was inexplicably substituted for a prior design in which open truss girders were specified. However, it had been calculated that the floor system would "resist the lateral force developed by a wind blowing at 90 miles per hour with a horizontal deflection of 20 feet."

Thus this bridge, so lately considered a marvel of engineering not only because of its length and narrowness, but also because of the unprecedented speed at which it was constructed, has proved a costly business. Under slightly different circumstances it might have been tragic. Connecting as it did the city of Tacoma with the rich Olympic peninsula, it was considered an important item in the national defense. Now, even if the superstructure has not been irreparably damaged, it will be many months before the bridge can be repaired and original defects corrected.

Responsibility appears to rest primarily upon the Washington State Department of Highways whose engineers prepared the design. The Public Works Administration, which, with the RFC, advanced grants of nearly $6,000,000 for this project, has done well to launch an investigation of the whole matter. But one lesson is already plain; a much closer Federal scrutiny is needed of the engineering aspects of projects in which the Federal moneys are invested.

Our Electoral System

Proposals that the Electoral College be abolished and that Presidents and Vice Presidents hereafter be chosen by popular vote are coming from both sides of the political fence. Chairman Edward J. Flynn of the Democratic National Committee condemns the present electoral system because in some instances it "might defeat the will of the majority." Republican Senator Lodge has announced his intention of introducing a constitutional amendment to abolish the Electoral College, which he regards as a useless relic.

There are a number of reasons for criticism of our electoral system as it now operates:

1. A small majority of popular votes may give one candidate a very large percentage of the electoral vote. This week, for example, Wendell L. Willkie received about 45 per cent of the major party popular vote, but only 15 per cent of the electoral vote.

2. Under the present system the winning candidate may actually have fewer votes to his credit than the loser. Cleveland's popular vote exceeded that of Harrison in 1888, when Harrison was elected, and Tilden, with 250,000 more votes than Hayes in 1876, was counted out by one electoral ballot.

3. The system gives undue emphasis to a relatively small number of popular votes cast in the South. Alabama, for instance, has as many electoral votes as Iowa, but Alabama extends the franchise to only about one-fourth as many persons as does Iowa. This disparity comes about by reason of the fact that electoral votes are based largely on the population of the various States, without regard for the fact that the Southern States keep many of their people away from the polls by literacy tests, social pressure and poll taxes.

In contrast to these points of weakness two much stronger arguments in favor of the present electoral system stand out:

1. It is an integral part of the American plan of government. Mr. Flynn should not forget that the Electoral College more closely reflects the popular will than does the Senate. Each State has the same proportionate influence in the election of a President as it has in the enactment of legislation. To disturb this balance would be a blow to the Federal system—a system which is particularly well adapted to the needs of a country as large and diversified as the United States.

2. No less important is the influence of the Electoral College upon the two-party system. Election of the President by popular vote would be a great encouragement to minority parties. Since the two-party system has many advantages in promoting unity and encouraging continuity of national policies, Congress is not likely to approve any proposal that would tend to split the major parties into ineffective factions.

When these major considerations are analyzed Mr. Lodge's proposal takes on the appearance of an invitation to jump out of the frying pan into the fire.

Hawaii—Our 49th State?

The people of the Hawaiian Islands have voted for statehood within the American Union. But this is only the first step toward the grant of a request which would add a forty-ninth star to the American flag. Armed with the mandate, the Hawaiian Legislature will now petition Congress for statehood, and it will then be up to Congress to pass upon the petition.

Of course, Congress could have acted even without the prior formality of a plebiscite. But a poll of the people had been commended to the islands by Congress itself—at least by the Joint Committee on Hawaii which was set up in response to the statehood agitation. The committee felt that it hadn't a clear enough signal of Hawaiian opinion upon which to base a conclusion. This was not due to lack of knowledge. Rather it was due to too much knowledge; for the committee went about its task with a praiseworthy diligence and even conducted hearings on the spot. But the committee heard so many points of view, so much difference of opinion, that it sought refuge in recommending recourse to the good old American custom of the ballot box.

Judgment on Hawaii's request will necessarily take account of the deeper background. Does it flow naturally from a people's feeling that since the annexation of 40 years ago they have developed a oneness as an American community? It would be difficult to answer this question in the affirmative in Hawaii's case. Certainly there is no question about the high quality of the Americanism of Americans in Hawaii, or of the growth of Hawaii's material status. Out of the island paradise, the people have made such a rich domain that the Territory tops 14 of the States in payment of Federal income tax. Yet any claim in behalf of statehood that Hawaii is a full-fledged American community is vitiated by the fact that a third of the population is Japanese.

The statehood agitation, rather, has roots in the New Deal. When sugar control was first introduced, Hawaii was classed among the "foreign areas" along with nonterritories like Cuba, and the designation threw a scare into the island sugar planters. Hawaii, it is true, subsequently found a place alongside the domestic areas for purposes of sugar control. But a fear had been born in the islands—a fear which was intensified by instances of what the Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association thought were further discriminations. So statehood, which had never hitherto had sugar planter support, began to find back of it the resources and the organization of Hawaii's Big Five.

Nowadays there is another factor to be borne in mind when an Hawaiian petition comes to Congress. Hawaii stands in the very center of the complex of our Pacific strategy. The joint committee in 1937 mentioned this situation, couched as "the present disturbed condition of international affairs," as one reason for putting off statehood. Well, if international affairs were disturbed in 1937, what shall we say about international affairs in 1940?

Clearly, if this argument were valid in 1937 for putting off statehood, it is doubly valid in 1940. Time has become the enemy and not the friend of Uncle Sam's Pacific island in this particular aspiration. Indeed, international relations are so disturbed—as much in the Pacific as in the Atlantic—that, in view of Hawaii's key importance as a sort of American Gibraltar, Congress will no doubt be more interested in what the military and naval authorities have to say about the status of Hawaii than in the result of the plebiscite.

A Constitutional Issue

The proposal to tax income from all future issues of Federal, State and municipal securities raises a constitutional question which Secretary Morgenthau ignored in urging abolition of existing tax exemptions. The constitutional issue arises only in respect of Federal taxation of State and municipal issues, since Congress has the right to authorize the States to tax income from Federal securities. And of course the Federal Government may and does tax income from its own obligations when it chooses to do so.

In repeatedly recommending reciprocal taxation of public issues by the Federal Government and the States the Administration has assumed that such action would not require an amendment to the Constitution. Its position was strongly indorsed in an exhaustive study dealing with taxation of Government boldholders and employes, published by the Department of Justice two years ago. In that report it was pointed out that of all the cases dealing with Government bondholders only one—the Pollock case—directly grants an immunity against a nondiscriminatory Federal income tax to the holders of State and municipal bonds.

The Department of Justice experts held that there were excellent grounds for casting aside the precedent set by this case, citing numerous decisions of an incompatible nature. A mass of evidence was also presented in support of the thesis that the sixteenth amendment empowering Congress to impose taxes on income "from whatever source derived" was intended to authorize Federal taxation of income from State and municipal bonds as well as salaries of State and municipal officers.

Less than a year after the Department of Justice issued its report, the Supreme Court upheld the validity of a tax imposed by New York State on the income of an employe of the HOLC in the O'Keefe case. Certain earlier decisions were held to be overruled "so far as they recognized an implied constitutional immunity from income taxation of the salaries of officers or employes of the national or a State government or their instrumentalities." After this decision Congress passed legislation providing for reciprocal taxation by the Federal and State governments of the salaries of public employes.

The bearing of this important decision upon the right of the Federal Government to tax income from State and municipal issues is a moot point. A Department of Justice memorandum to a special Senate Committee on Taxation, published last March, quoted excerpts from the O'Keefe decision as at least indicating the accuracy of the department's conclusion that Congress has the power to tax without discrimination the net incomes arising from interest paid on State bonds.

Especial importance was attached to the court's statement that the "theory which once won a qualified approval that a tax on income is legally or economically a tax on its source, is no longer tenable. That dictum was believed by the Department of Justice to question if not overrule the Pollock case. At least it encourages the Administration to seek to eliminate tax exemption for State and local issues by a mere Act of Congress. However, the precedents which stand in the way of such action have not been specifically overruled. And if tax immunity for future State issues should be legislated out of existence by Congress, the constitutional issue would be promptly raised.

Many a self-made man did an excellent job of it, considering the poor quality of the material he had to work with.

The average person has his work arranged to conform to a schedule and routine that doesn't require more than ten minutes of actual thinking in a week.

Status Of Representatives

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Michael Cudahy, the appointee of Mr. Roosevelt as American Ambassador to Belgium, is reported to have stated by way of apology for the President's use of the term "My Ambassador," that "the chancelleries of Europe would laugh at the ignorance displayed by the Republican candidate for the Presidency" in objecting to this declaration.

May a member of the middle class dare to remind Mr. Cudahy that America is yet a Republic and that her citizens are still free and equal, whether in holding high office by the will of the people or by pursuing the more humble tasks that unite to keep our land great. All ambassadors from such a nation are the envoys of a sovereign state and not of an incumbent in office. It is poor taste, to say the least, in any temporary executive to bear too heavily on the personal pronoun.

As for the "chancelleries of Europe" they may have more polished manners than Mr. Cudahy would imply. If, however, such departments are ignorant of the true status of a representative from a great democracy, this might be a favorable time to inform them of the right of the citizens of the United States to look on all their paid representatives as the people's servants and not as their superiors. Indeed, Mr. Cudahy himself might pause for a little instruction on this point before his future addresses.

Pegler's Views

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial comment in The Post of November 6 is in the best American tradition. Acceptance of the verdict of the people and national unity are a complete answer to the foes of democracy.

But does The Post think that the acrimonious, slanderous articles of Westbrook Pegler with their vitriolic attacks on the Roosevelt family help toward such a conclusion?

I am a thorough believer in free speech and fair criticism from whatever source, but I should like to see all the mud-slinging which has prevailed in this bitter campaign consigned to oblivion and for the sake of the whole Nation's welfare, I think Mr. Pegler might be asked to moderate his publicly expressed views. "United we stand, divided we fall." H. T. COOKE.

Bombing Of Shrines

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If we may judge by what has happened throughout this war, including the carefully studied and deliberate bombings of St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey in London and of Canterbury Cathedral—located many miles from any possible military objective—we are justified in expecting that Athens will be systematically "strafed" unless Mussolini is informed, and believes, that for every bomb that falls upon Athens another, or two or three, will fall upon Rome. A strong declaration to that effect by Mr. Winston Churchill would do more to protect Athens and Greece than a thousand planes well manned could do.

Of course, the thought of bombs showered upon St. Peter's is revolting, but not more revolting than the fact of bombs showered upon shrines equally as sacred in the affections of many millions, such as Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral. If Italian air forces are to be used to bomb the sacred shrines in England, there is only one effective measure at command of the British, namely, the bombing of those shrines in Italy which the government of that country knows to be so enormously important to it as sources of revenue. ### How To Organize

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There must be many of us who see in the union of the English-speaking peoples or a union of the democracies the one possible preventive of the world chaos that we are facing.

The formula for Hitler's poison is "Divide and Conquer." Is not "Unite to Defend" the logical antidote?

To be effective we must organize. But how? We are all over the world. Every one of us would give every available minute to furthering this idea if we knew how. Is there not someone somewhere who can tell us?

Had No Vote

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read your editorial on "Liberty and Unity" in The Post of November 5. In it you say, ". . . there is nothing finer or more inspiring than the acceptance by the minority, without rancor or reserve, of the decision expressed by the majority."

Just here is where I rise to remark that I will not accept without rancor or reserve the decision expressed by the majority if that decision defeats my candidate. Early in September I registered in Cook County, Ill., according to the instructions of the attorney at registration headquarters. At the earliest date possible in October I sent for an application for a ballot.

Not until after I had sent another air-mail special delivery request and a telegram did I receive the required application form, in the meantime having executed and mailed a reconstructed application form intended for use in another county. I sent in the executed application by fastest mail, but to this day I have not received my ballot.

Not all the officials in the State of Illinois or in the United States could persuade me that this thwarting of my effort to vote (the same thing happened to many others) was not deliberate.

Now, Mr. Editor, are we who have been so treated required to accept "without rancor or reserve" the election of a party which sponsors such treatment of decent citizens? If I had no other reason for wishing to see the present incumbents driven to cover, this restraint of my right to vote would stir me to righteous wrath. IRATE.

"That Is Why"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think this great Nation of ours should be commended for its wide thinking and choice selection in re-electing Mr. Roosevelt at such a time as this.

All America knows we need a person well acquainted with affairs abroad as well as at home, and one who is already familiar with his surroundings and hence can give more time to the welfare of the Nation.

To have changed at this time would have been detrimental to our great U. S. A.

God ever cares for his own and always sends a Moses to lead his children across the Red Sea. Truly this Moses has led us and we still have confidence that he will lead us out of our present crisis. That's why we great Americans re-elected Mr. Roosevelt for the third term to deliver us at such a time as this.

A Little List

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Peace! It's wonderful! The roar of Niagara has subsided. During the din of debate we heard much language about the Indispensable Man. Now that the "tumult of the knocking and the shouts" (Longfellow) has died, let's enjoy quiet fun thinking of the names of men who are not indispensable.

Here is my list:

Cactus Jack.
Al. Smith (also Cotton Ed.)
Girdler, Lewis and Pegler. (They never would be missed.)
Dave Lawrence, P. P. P. (political prognosticator peculiar).
Dunn and Hurja (pronounce: "Done, and Who're you.")
Ironpants Johnson.
Mark (God save it!) Sullivan.
Political Orator Joe Louis.
National Mentor Lindbergh.
Bruce Barton (the man nobody falls for).
Edmund K. Goldsborough and—er—oh, yes—

Thinks We Have A Monarchy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The political philosopher of another generation will surely wish to know why the people of the United States, after 151 years of a democratic Constitution, rejected it and reverted to the monarchical principle. Careful inquiry will reveal to him these causes:

1. He will make some allowance for the subtle psychological infection of fashion, example and world practice. Almost every other country in the civilized circuit had abjured democracy or suffered its overthrow. In the place of the democratic system each of these nations had adopted or accepted some form of absolutism. Obviously this vast backward rush to the caves could not fail to have some effect here.

2. But far more important than this, he will find that the methods of teaching American history, followed in nearly all our schools after 1920, was a tremendous factor in the reversion. For 20 years the pupils in our schools had been instructed from textbooks and otherwise that there was nothing admirable about the American story, but it was all sordid and despicable.

Naturally, the pupils concluded that if American democracy was unworthy of respect, if it meant nothing to itself or the rest of the world, we might better be done with it. For in none of these textbooks that I and others have examined is there a line or a word to suggest that democracy is valuable or in any way better than monarchy.

3. He will also find, I think, that one inherent fault in our system of representative government had a large share in breaking it down.

The defeat I mean is in this, that it steadily and insidiously inculcates and nourishes the idea if "Let George do it." The idea of hiring someone else to do what we ought to do ourselves. The idea of hiring a ruler or governor that will relieve us of care and concern about public affairs and the general welfare. The idea of hiring a ruler instead of ruling ourselves.

So when democracy is revived two centuries hence, its wise advocates of that day will probably insist upon having it in substance and not in shadow; upon having government of the people by the people as an actuality and not as a phrase. And then the story and lesson of our collapse this year will be invaluable.

CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.

Peccavi

WE WERE at the passage in Vergil's Aeneid where Aeneas describes his tantalizing vision of Queen Dido, the deceased Queen of Carthage. "As to embrace her I inclined," he says in nice English—whose English I do not know; it might even be mine—"she faded, vanished from my sight." At this point the teacher interrupted the torture of the current translator and leavened the general tedium with the following anecdote:

It seems that another student, laboring with a literal translation of the same passage, rendered it in this wise: "I—I—I got—I got my arms around her neck . . ." The scholar stopped, stumped. He looked up at the teacher helplessly: "That was as far as I got." The teacher adjusted her glasses. "That was far enough! Sit down, please."

Even a radio comedian would have been gratified with the hilarity this story provoked. Any joke, however tame, in any Latin class will induce side-splitting laughter, unduly prolonged to stay the moment when the teacher calls on the next victim to translate. And this teacher loved the appreciative laughter no less than the radio comedian does. She had a repertoire of about six such stories, and I am sure she had never failed to tell one of them to any class at the proper point in all the many years she had been teaching the young idea to spout Latin.

Latin, never popular with American students, is becoming less and less insisted on in school curricula. But it must never be allowed to die out altogether. There are the professions, law and medicine, where it is quite indispensable. And it has other uses and satisfactions, too, such as being able to translate a few words, even if they don't make sense, in State mottoes and in inscriptions on public buildings.

Our Vergil teacher took time out one day to tell us that "Tu doces" on the side of an ancient tea chest was the worst pun on record. She really loved it. You will, too. "Tu doces" when translated becomes: "Thou teachest."

Another tale which stopped the class was the one about the American alone in Rome. He recalled that Latin came from Italy, and he knew no Italian. He addressed the bewildered hotel elevator operator. "Resurge!" he said, pointing dramatically upward. Then, indicating his bag on the floor: "Requiescat in pace." Translated, the Latin means, "Arise!" and "Let it rest in peace." Boy, that one got us.

Once I thought of teaching Latin myself. This may be the reason I have treasured these yarns so carefully. No doubt my subconscious mind intended using them each year on my own students. Thwarted in the matter of teaching Latin by a too-realistic head of a department, I have not had sufficient opportunity for airing my collection. I had, indeed, almost forgotten them until I read recently a review of a book by a Latin scholar who indulged himself in the fascinating business of translating English verse into Latin, certainly quite a stunt, if you can do it.

There was a time when I knew the Latin translation of "Yankee Doodle." But it has completely eluded me. I recommend the exercise of translating this immortal song in Latin to anyone in the audience who feels capable of it and who hasn't anything sane to do over the week-end.

The habit of lightening with anecdotes a subject which can be, and to most students is, quite dull is almost universal with Latin instructors. The Latin professor who presided over my struggles with Terence and Horace had a much greater fund of favorite stories for each of his various classes than did the Vergil teacher. "Woody," I used to think, was in his anecdotage.

This was one of his: An English tobacco merchant who specialized in a popular brand of chewing tobacco had been very successful and rose rapidly in the world. His social aspirations even overreached his business progress. His training, however, fitted him more for the manufacture and vending of tobacco products than for the social whirl, and he was the butt of much ridicule. Nevertheless, after considerable maneuvering he managed to have himself dubbed a knight of the realm.

But despite his title people continued to laugh at him and his aspirations. He had a coat of arms drawn up and emblazoned on the doors of his handsome coach. It displayed the implements of his trade—crossed pipes, a tobacco pouch and a plug of chewing tobacco. In clear gold letters was the motto, a plaintive Latin query: "Quid Rides?" meaning "Why do you laugh?" The jesters insisted on leaving off the question mark and reading it not as Latin but as English.

These stories did not help much in the final examinations. But they did help no end during recitation periods, especially when you were unprepared with the lesson. And, alas, I must record that they are virtually all I recall of the many days spent in Latin classes.

Like all genuine anecdoters, "Woody" was partial to puns. And he also loved terseness, that sine qua non of all humor. In the following he found both. There was, according to "Woody," a British general in India who was noteworthy for two things. First, he was a brother of the genius, or whatever you choose to call him, who invented logarithms. Secondly, he captured Sind, in India. Why he still Hindustani to me. But I do like the general's cabled report of his conquest to the British war office. It was just one word: "Peccavi." Translated from the Latin that means: "I have sinned."

The Shape Of The War

NOW AS FROM the beginning of this war, now as in the first World War, now as in the Napoleonic wars, the outcome depends upon the control of the Atlantic Ocean. In the end the victory will go to the powers which can use the ocean to supply themselves and can cut off their enemies from the non-European world. For Europe cannot be conquered in Europe. Europe cannot be organized as a self-contained empire. Europe cannot live within Europe. Europe cannot be at peace within itself unless it is at peace with the outer world of Asia, Africa, and America.

For though men talk of "Europe" as if it had a political and geographical existence, in fact Europe has no frontiers and no one can say where Europe begins and ends. Is Russia, for example, a part of Europe? Are northern and western Africa a part of Europe? Is the Mediterranean which washes the shores of Europe, Asia, and Africa a European sea? Are the Middle East and the Moslem world a part of Europe? Are the colonies and protectorates of Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Portugal, Spain, and Italy a part of Europe, scattered as they are throughout the world? Is it not evident that "Europe" is inextricably connected with the whole world beyond the continent of Europe, and that, therefore, the control of the waters which connect or separate the continent from the outer world must decide the fate of the continent and of most of the outer world as well?

THIS IS THE REASON why Hitler's victories on the land of Europe did not finish the war. This is the reason why even the invasion of Britain or the destruction of Britain from the air would only be the means to an end, the means to the control of the Atlantic Ocean. This is the reason why the renewal of his war against British shipping is much the most serious of all his efforts to win the war. This is the reason why the neutralization of this threat is the principal task in the present phase of the war.

Public opinion has at times exaggerated and at others it has underestimated the critical importance of sea power in this war. The exaggeration has consisted in thinking that Germany could quickly be starved into submission or revolt whereas, in fact, all experience shows that even the most stringent blockade produces its effects slowly. The underestimate has consisted in thinking that if the blockade did not win the war quickly, it would never win the war. Yet the developments in Europe since Hitler overran the continent in June demonstrate that his victories, though spectacular, are indecisive, that he cannot organize and consolidate what his armies have conquered. Since there is no army opposing him, since the Royal Air Force can as yet only hamper and annoy him, it is evident that what is denying him the fruits of his victories must be the British navy.

But when we look for the effects of British sea power on Hitler we must not look primarily at the food rations of the German people or even at the German supplies of oil and raw materials. We must look at the political effect. The pressure of British sea power is driving Germany, Italy, Russia, and France apart, is making unworkable the new European order of which so much has been said. The pressure will, if sea power remains invincible, do to Hitler what it did to Napoleon: it will deprive him of his allies and transform them into his enemies.

CONSIDER, FIRST, the case of Russia. It is evident that Russian policy has been dictated solely by fear of the German army, and that this, rather than any ideological consideration or imperialistic ambition, explains the Stalin-Hitler Pact, the partition of Poland, the occupation of the Baltic states, the Finnish war, and the seizure of Bessarabia and Bukovina. It is equally evident that it was the pressure of the blockade on Germany which explains the German advance through Hungary and Rumania and the whole effort to set the stage for a campaign against Suez, the Dardanelles and the oil fields of the Middle East.

We do not know whether Russia will participate in this campaign as an accomplice of the Axis, or stand aside, or even eventually support the Greeks, the Turks, and the British. But we can be reasonably sure that Russia will go with Germany only if Stalin thinks it is too soon to be safe to oppose Germany, and that he will go against Germany if he thinks this is not too dangerous an operation. But what he must know, what everybody knows, is that while Russia will go with Germany while she must go with Germany, if the blockade continues Germany must finally attack Russia and get at the supplies of the Ukraine and the Black Sea region. Thus the effect of the blockade is to engender an irrepressible conflict between Germany and Russia. This conflict will eventually be precipitated by Germany if Germany is strong in arms but desperately pressed, or by Russia herself if Germany's military power begins to show signs of deteriorating.

This is what it means to say that the effect of sea power is to drive apart Hitler's partners and allies.

CONSIDER NEXT the case of Italy. It is reasonably clear that Mussolini entered the war last spring thinking that the collapse of France would bring peace quickly, and that he must have the legal status of a belligerent in order to share in the dismemberment of the French Empire. But on two critical points Mussolini's calculation was wrong. Britain did not capitulate and did not negotiate a peace at the expense of France. And Hitler made his armistice with France at the expense of Italy.

For while in the German armistice, Hitler opened up a land connection with Spain, in the Italian armistice Mussolini was not allowed to occupy the southern coast of France and make a land connection with Spain. Though Mussolini had been the one who really helped Gen. Franco, Hitler kept him separated from Gen. Franco—on land by unoccupied France and at sea by the British navy. Nor was that all. Though Hitler took from France everything he needed in order to fight England—all the bases and jumping-off places for an invasion—Mussolini got nothing to help him in his war against England in the Mediterranean. Moreover, it has been Hitler and not Mussolini who has been negotiating with M. Laval about a "new European order" though the Italians had been allowed to think that the Mediterranean, Spain, the French African empire, and French Syria were in the "living space" of Italy. Finally, though the Italians have always supposed that in Central Europe they were the dominant power in Hungary and Rumania, they have been pushed out of Central Europe as they have been pushed out of Spain and France.

ALL THAT ITALY has had out of the war is the loss of her position in Spain and in Central Europe, the threat of a deal by M. Laval which would make France rather than Italy the first lieutenant of Hitler, and the chance to fight a dangerous and exhausting war against the superior power of the British navy.

None of this tends to solidify the Axis or to prepare the Italian people to endure a long siege and a difficult war in the Balkans and Africa, and an aerial bombardment of their cities. What has brought the Italians to this position? In the last analysis it is the sea power of Britain. That is what compels Hitler to sacrifice his ally in order to fortify himself in Central Europe, in Spain, in France; that is what imposes upon Italy the more difficult and the more dangerous and the least profitable operations of the war. Whereas Hitler has conquered landlocked countries that the British navy could not defend, Mussolini has to attack countries like Greece and Egypt in the face of the British navy.

THE CASES OF RUSSIA and Italy show how inexorably the pressure of sea power forces the conqueror of the continent, be he Napoleon or Hitler, to take measures which undermine his political position on the continent. But the effect goes much further. The pressure of sea power must inexorably undermine the position of the conqueror in the occupied territories. For it forces him to take measures which even defeated peoples will not at last tolerate, measures which discredit among the occupied peoples all the men who have tried to serve themselves by placating the conqueror.

Experience told us that this was to be expected: the reports which begin to come through from Scandinavia, from Poland, Holland, Belgium and France are cumulative in showing that as the British resistance continues, as the power of the blockade and the air force make themselves felt, the subjugated peoples become more and more ungovernable.

"We're In Again"

The President—Well, dear, we're in again!

Mrs. Roosevelt — Good. That makes me one of the few columnists who was on the right side from the start. How do you feel?

The President—Fine. I feel so good I could go on holding this job forever.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Shush! Not so loud.

The President—Were you worried over the outcome at any time?

Mrs. Roosevelt—I couldn't be a woman and not have worried.

The President—Why?

Mrs. Roosevelt—Only a woman knows what it means to have to move.

The President—I never even thought of moving.

Mrs. Roosevelt—It was quite noticeable.

The President—I knew the public would return me.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Yes, but if you had lost all you would have done would have been to finish some state papers while I did all the packing.

The President—Well, we won't have to move for another eight years, my dear.

Mrs. Roosevelt—How do you make it eight years?

The President — Eight years make one term, don't they?

Mrs. Roosevelt—No, Franklin. Only four. But I don't blame you for getting a little confused.

The President—I didn't sleep last night. I just couldn't stop laughing.

Mrs. Roosevelt—What was the big joke?

The President — John Lewis. How did you sleep?

Mrs. Roosevelt—Not very well. I kept thinking how I'd have to go on keeping the diary for the newspapers for four years more.

The President — Don't worry about that. You can use some of the columns you wrote during the last four years.

Mrs. Roosevelt—I resent that.

The President—Now don't get upset. Remember what I've said about unity and good feeling.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Don't you think we ought to have the Willkies over for lunch, just as a gesture?

The President—Those Tories!

Mrs. Roosevelt—Remember what you said about unity and good feeling.

The President—What a mandate it was!

Mrs. Roosevelt—Oh, Franklin, I wouldn't jump at that conclusion. After all, you took a terrific nose dive in the popular vote.

The President—There you go spoiling my day!

Mrs. Roosevelt—I think it well for you to note that the difference in the total vote between you and Mr. Willkie was only a couple of million.

The President (firmly)—A mandate is a mandate.

Mrs. Roosevelt—What are you chuckling over?

The President—I was just thinking of Jim Farley. He never thought I could do it.

Mrs. Roosevelt—Let's be fair with ourselves, Franklin. You weren't so sure, either! You never once discussed the third term.

The President—Oh, people don't care about such things in modern times any more than they do about the budget and other nonessentials.

Mrs. Roosevelt — What about having the Willkies over for lunch?

The President—It might be gracious to send them a letter wishing them better luck next time.

Mrs. Roosevelt — What next time?

Afterthoughts

The question before America today is this: What to do with old campaign buttons?

Father tabs States with a pin,
Sister and Harry
Put down ten and carry—
Migosh, how the figures roll in!

There was one paramount consolation to everybody today; not a voice anywhere said: "The future of America depends on what you do tomorrow!"

Somebody called up this department and demanded: "Who won the election, Clare Boothe or Dorothy Thompson?"

Today's most embarassing cases: The fellows who absentmindedly went to work still wearing the wrong button.

Victorian Reprobate

AS STRANGE a childhood story as you may meet is reported in I. A. R. Wylie's "My Life With George: An Unconventional Biography" (Random House, $3). For this is the story of a girl child who grew up hating men because she hated her father.

The title is misleading. "George" is the name Ida Wylie, novelist, gives to that busy subconscious from whom all natural writers draw their "stuff." "We professional writers," she says, write as we breathe." They cannot explain themselves. They drift through life in a sort of daze, living one life on the surface, another on paper. Their families call them sensitive and temperamental: for true writers live on suffering. Suffering, their own or anybody else's, is a large part of their stock in trade. When an author thinks he is feeling worst, his "George" is busy, gleefully taking notes for future reference.

"Writers," as Ida Wylie defines them, are different from "journalists." The journalist records literally and at once. The true writer does badly under pressure. "George" mulls over events as they happen; years later, he rings his mysterious bell to announce that a story or a novel is ready to be set down. When Ida Wylie's dearest friend lay dying, she could feel George busily scratching on his pad. "This is how it feels to be heartbroken—this is how a lovely old woman dies," George was saying. Ida Wylie consciously was disgusted with George. But years later she used the death scene he had observed, and deliberately revived her own grief to give a story moving authenticity.

But "George" is not the hero of her story. Her father, Alexander Coghill Wylie, a virtuous Victorian reprobate, walks into the book on page 13 and keeps it brilliantly alive for 130 pages; after he dies, the story is only that of the life of I. A. R. Wylie, a competent craftsman of the novel and scribe for "George," but not nearly as entertaining a human being as Alec.

From the day of his birth to the day of his death, this angry daughter says, Alec never had a penny that he could legitimately call his own; but he always lived high. Not wildly, but well. He never drank to excess, he never cheated or stole, and he never loved more than one woman at a time. He believed in himself utterly, and borrowed miraculously with full faith, each time, that he would soon be able to repay with interest. He regarded himself as a high-minded man betrayed by heartless wives, surrounded by false friends and hounded by undeserved misfortune. He was a big, handsome man, a sort of character out of Ouida, who exuded an atmosphere of pomp and circumstance, and lived in a state of unamused indignation at his outrageous creditors. Once he was almost elected to Parliament.

His Scottish father early sent him to Australia with a letter of credit; which was exhausted en route. In Sydney he gave his friends a farewell banquet, and left by the back door of the hotel. The bailiffs traced him to the harbor, but Alec climbed to the masthead of a departing ship whose master refused to postpone sailing until the young man climbed down. On the way to England, Alec borrowed money from this captain, and on his return, brought suit against his Australian creditors for disgraceful persecution. The suit, Miss Wylie understands, still lingers unsettled in the archives of the British courts.

IN ENGLAND Alec married a lady whom he assumed to be a composite of La Gioconda, Venus de Milo, Mme. de Stael and St. Theresa, took a large house on St. Edmunds Terrace in London, and fell in love with a neighbor's daughter, a lady named Christine who nursed his wife while she bore him two children, and stoutly defend Alec when his wife divorced him. Alec proposed to Christine, was accepted and departed again for Australia. But on the steamer between New Zealand and Australia he met a well-to-do girl, and three weeks later he married her. She became Ida Wylie's mother; when she returned to England, Christine took care of her, too. She died with Christine's hand in hers; and Christine virtually adopted the baby. Alec had his wife's ashes sealed in a brassbound Greek urn which he later pawned.

The day after the funeral Alec proposed again to Christine; much to his astonishment she refused him. Two weeks later his small daughter was witness to a second unsuccessful proposal. Next Alec tried to remarry his first wife; in due time, after an episode with a Paula and another with a Maisie, he married a wealthy woman named Maud. Every day Christine came over the hill to give orders to Alec's servants—or when there were no servants—to dust the house, make the beds and get the meals. She was Ida's real mother, and when once Ida saw Alec strike Christine, she rushed at her father kicking and screaming. Christine patiently explained that it was all an unfortunate reaction: Alec had eaten chutney, and chutney never agreed with him.

Meanwhile Ida, as she confesses, developed into a consummate liar and a pretty good thief. Incidentally, she whiled away the hours by writing "books." When Alec discovered that his daughter was a liar and a truant from school (he never learned of her thieving), and particularly when he saw the child bite his Maud, he was virtuously outraged. He denounced Christine for her neglect, sent Maud packing, replaced her with a faded madonna named Ann, and, eventually, sent Ida to school in Belgium.

The child developed a talent as a cyclist and as a linguist; at the age of 19 she earned £100 for her first novel, which made her independent of her father. Later she lived eight years in Germany, and, returning became a devout suffragette, regretful only that she never succeeded in getting herself arrested. She tells with high spirits of the suffrage fight, of the German character, and of her difficulties and triumph in Hollywood. But after Alec, all the rest seems an anticlimax.

She has pungent things to say about authors who write "for the market," about "literary crossword puzzlers" like Joyce, about the stultifying effect of most schooling, about America before and after the crash, and about the taboos of Hollywood and the American magazine. In novels and plays, she says, one may be honest. In the magazines one may not write about Catholics, Christian Scientists, Methodists, Jews, Fascists, Communists, chiropractors, advertisers, labor problems, divorce, birth control, suicide, or the simple life without radios and motorcars. That, she thinks, is the main trouble with America; but she likes the country, and lives here.

Humphreys' Case

THE UNITED STATES Board of Tax Appeals handed down a decision on October 8 in which this queer bureau assumed some of the authority of a criminal court by way of claiming for the Federal Treasury an income tax, plus appropriate penalties, on ransom paid for the release of a kidnaped citizen. The man thus found guilty by the Board of Tax Appeals of kidnaping never was prosecuted for the crime. The board is supposed to be as neutral as a court, but actually it occupies the position of a collection agency and has an interest in cases which come before it.

The defendant in this case was Murray Humphreys, a well-known Chicago racketeer of the Al Capone era and type, who, since repeal, has muscled his way into the dairy business in Chicago, where not a few well-known brigands have retired to more or less conventional commerce. Humphreys was one of many gangsters indicted in the cleanup of Chicago, which was accomplished by the intelligence unit of the Treasury but which often has been erroneously credited to the FBI. He had been a bootlegger and a power in the dry-cleaning racket and enjoyed, in the peculiar social scale of Chicago, a substantial reputation as a hoodlum.

INDICTED in June, 1933, he fled to Mexico and returned in October, 1934, to plead guilty and receive a sentence of 18 months in prison plus a fine of $5,000. He served 14 months, receiving the usual discount for polite behavior.

The criminal aspects of the tax evasion having been concluded, the Government still maintained its claim for the unpaid taxes and penalties. The unreported income included money received from the dry-cleaning racket and $50,000 paid for the release of Robert G. Fitchie, president of the Chicago Milk Wagon Drivers Union—an historic case. Fitchie, then 74 years old, was kidnaped on December 21, 1931, and was released two days later, after Steve C. Sumner, the secretary-treasurer of the union, also an old man, had left $50,000 on the seat of a parked car. Sumner later identified Humphreys as one of the men who took the $50,000 from the car and further said he recognized Humphreys' voice as the one which, in several telephone conversations, negotiated the ransom.

IN REACHING its verdict of guilty of kidnaping against Humphreys, the Board of Tax Appeals took into consideration evidence shown by Humphreys' bank accounts and gave weight to the testimony of Sumner against Humphreys' claim that the kidnaping was a fake. In this connection it should be noted that the nature of many labor unions is such that it would not be thought improper of a union official to dip into the treasury to ransom a kidnaped brother official. This obviously invited officials to go absent for a few days and to help themselves to the members' money in amounts to be reported as ransom payments.

The Board of Tax Appeals decided that Sumner was an honest witness and said, "We are convinced that his identification of petitioner (Humphreys) as the man who took the $50,000 from the automobile is correct."

It often has been urged that in the cases of criminals who report income obtained by illegal methods the rate of tax should be much higher than that provided for legal income. Court decisions have been discouraging, however, on the ground that this would constitute an abuse of the intention of the Income Tax Amendment and the Revenue Act. The intention is to tax income, not to punish crime, and the consequence of all this is that the income on a criminal who admits his criminality in his return is taxable at the same rate as that of an honest, useful citizen.

IN THE FINAL decision of this case the United States Government becomes the major beneficiary of a criminal act whose victim, whether Fitchie or the union treasury, has no financial redress. The Government takes its regular cut of the $50,000 plus a penalty of 50 per cent of that tax for Humphreys' failure to declare and pay, but not as a penalty for the actual kidnaping.

By the Government's own decision it is helping itself to money extorted from an innocent party. The Treasury has no intention—in fact, no right—to return such money to the original victim.

No Particular News From President

IT WAS the first press conference after the election—after what, whether you like it or not, was an historic event and is likely to have future significance—namely, the first election of any President to a third term. There was anticipation that this press conference might be important. This notion was increased when, during the morning, newspaper offices were advised that the conference would be postponed, from the regular hour, 10:30, until noon. The attendance was large, perhaps 200 as against a customary 75 to 150. While they waited in the outer lobby, photographs of the crowd were taken. A few of the correspondents, gossiping with Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, as he emerged from the White House offices, were told by the Senator that the approaching conference would be important. But all this anticipation turned out to be only surmise based on the circumstances.

When the newspaper men entered the President's office, his opening remark was that he did not have any particular news. He began with some routine announcements, about more or less perfunctory addresses he is to make during the coming few days. Thereafter, he said, about Wednesday of next week, he would go down the Potomac for three or four days' rest. As questions from the newspaper men began, most of these, too, were relatively unimportant. To one about the Naval Hospital, Mr. Roosevelt replied with lengthy details about architecture.

INTEREST stirred for the first time when someone asked about that preelection estimate which Mr. Roosevelt had said he had made and put in his desk about August 1st. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had been away off—his estimate of his electoral vote had been only 340. One correspondent, with an eye to news of local importance in various States, asked Mr. Roosevelt just what States had surprised him by going in his favor. That Mr. Roosevelt discreetly evaded.

One interesting question asked for comment on certain printed stories that Mr. Roosevelt might put Mr. Willkie in his Cabinet, and make other Cabinet changes. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had not yet given consideration to anything within that general field. Then he went on to sharp criticism of specific newspaper stories which described their information as having come from "New Deal circles" or "high official sources." Mr. Roosevelt said those stories had not come from such sources at all. About four or five specific stories, Mr. Roosevelt delivered this concrete rebuke — stories about changes in the Cabinet and other parts of the Administration; about an understanding of the United States with Britain and Australia, with reference to the Far East. Mr. Roosevelt's repudiation of these stories, while direct and specific, was not in temper.

ONLY ABOUT one question did Mr. Roosevelt show acerbity. The questioner reminded Mr. Roosevelt that he had said, during the recent campaign, that he would not be a candidate for a fourth term. The questioner wished to know whether this was a definite putting aside of a fourth term. Sharply Mr. Roosevelt told the correspondent that he had better go back to grade school and learn to read the English language. Persistently the questioner tried to achieve, about a fourth term, that which in the past has proved elusive about a third term. He tried to get from Mr. Roosevelt a clearly unequivocal declaration. Mr. Roosevelt, seeming to think the declaration he had already made was clear enough, repeated that the correspondent should read the plain words of his statement.

One question brought out rather important information. The question was about the allocation of war materials now being manufactured in the United States—how much goes to the British, how much to our own forces. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he was sometimes described as a "rule of thumb," man, and accepted the description as accurate and complimentary. He said that as between the British and our own forces, the present rule is roughly that 50 per cent of the new war material goes to the British, 50 per cent to our own forces. Questions brought out that the President was referring to newly made material, as it comes out of the factories—not necessarily to material long in possession of our forces. Further questioning brought out that the 50-50 rule applies to all kinds of new war material—varieties of war planes, armament, what-not. The rule, of course, is a rough one—there are many exceptions. The 50-50 proportion represents some stepping up of aid to Britain. In the recent past, the ratio to Britain has been perhaps 45, with 55 to ourselves.

OUR anticipations of something possibly dramatic turned out to be without justification. It was just another press conference. Yet obviously the occasion did have dramatic possibilities—and that kind of opportunity is something that Mr. Roosevelt ordinarily does not pass up.

President Thanks Commissioners For Reception

The President yesterday formally expressed his appreciation to the three Commissioners for arranging his reception Thursday on his return to the Capital.

A letter to the city heads from the President follows:

"Dear Friends: I want you all to know how much I appreciate the wonderful welcome which you arranged for my return to Washington this morning. Nor can I restrain an impulse to congratulate you on the excellence of the arrangements, which were carried out with such all-around efficiency.

"Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in this assurance of heartfelt gratitude to you and to all who cooperated with you.

"Very sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

First Lady Gives $25 To Oklahoma Prisoners

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Mrs. Alan Shaw, secretary of the Committee to Defend Political Prisoners in Oklahoma, said yesterday that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had contributed $25 toward defense of 12 persons charged with criminal syndicalism.

Mrs. Shaw's husband is among them. The committee was formed after Robert Wood, State secretary of the Communist Party, was held for syndicalism. He later was sentenced to ten years in prison under a wartime Oklahoma law not previously invoked. The law makes advocating the overthrow of the Government a felony and, as a Communist, Wood was convicted. The others have not gone to trial.

Greek Church Head to Officiate At District Mass

His Grace, Archbishop Spyrou Athenagoras, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in the Americas, is expected to arrive in the Nation's Capital today and officiate at solemn high mass on Sunday at the Church of Saints Constantine and Helen, Sixth and C Streets Southwest.

The prelate, who was born near Janina, Greece, in the center of the present Balkan war zone, will refer to the struggle between his country and Italy in his address at the services, according to the Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor, who will assist at the mass.

Cameras Click in Navy Building As Espionage Watch Is Tightened

Associated Press Photos.

1, NAVY DEPARTMENT EMPLOYES lined up to get their "names" made up for photographing with their faces.

"SCREEN tests" for all the employes in the Navy Department's headquarters were the order of the day yesterday as officials mapped plans for tightening their 24-hour watch over defense secrets.

The employes in the Constitution Avenue building will all have their pictures taken, and later they may have to carry or even wear them to work.

Officials described the move as being in line with the department's policy of preparing for "any eventuality." They said it did not indicate that they had uncovered espionage or sabotage attempts in the building.

THE employes' pictures will be printed on cards bearing their names. Similar cards will be prepared for naval officers on duty in the department and newspapermen assigned there. There is a chance, it was said, that the pictures might go on buttons, which could be worn by employes for ready inspection.

Art of Contest Winning Taught In Y. W. C. A. Class

BREATHES there a housewife who can resist the lure of a contest? Just complete this jingle," says the radio announcer with easy optimism, and in the background one hears the soft flutter of $100 bills falling into the laps of lucky contenders.

F. Stellwagen

But actually luck isn't all, says Florence Marshall Stellwagen, who has made a profitable hobby of "contesting" and teaches a class in the subject at the Y. W. C. A. "You'd be surprised at the number of contestants who don't really read the rules. Hundreds of entries aren't even read because of some minor infringement. Then it's important to know the tastes of the sponsor; for instance, Procter & Gamble prefers a simple statement to clever writing."

Typical of her winnings: a $65 man's suit (Why It Pays a Man to be Well-Dressed), $100 for a Burma Shave jingle and $50 for revealing why she likes a brand of bobby pins. In her "Y" course she lectures on the slogan, the limerick, the naming contest and the 25-word statement. Most of her pupils win something before the end of the term. Her prize graduate has won three automobiles.

ADD SUPERSTITIONS—If you leave the house, then have to return for something you've forgotten, always sit down a moment before starting out again. Even if you don't need the rest, that makes it a new journey and heads off bad luck . . . The sensible spinster leaps from her chair if someone starts to sweep under it; she knows that otherwise she won't be married.

COINCIDENCE — Mrs. Richard D. White, of Arlington Village, recently had a telephone call from a man who wanted to know if she was the Mrs. White he had met at a party the night before. She hedged, because she had met some new people the previous evening and wasn't too sure of their names. He then said, hesitantly:

"Well, are you the Mrs. White who became the mother of triplets today?"

She had no doubts on that score, replied with an emphatic "No" and hung up. When she saw in the newspapers that another Mrs. Richard White had had triplets, she regretted being so abrupt.

But here's where the coincidence comes in: Two hours after the phone call, her husband heard a feeble sawing under the front porch. They traced the sound to three tiny newborn kittens, offspring of a neighborhood pet.

A couple who have taken in a British child for the duration of the war report that he is adaptable and never complains, but that he sometimes is unintentionally critical. One day when he entered the house in muddy boots, his foster mother asked reprovingly, "You wouldn't do that in your own home, would you?" . . . "Oh, no," he said; "I wouldn't wear muddy boots into the drawing room there—but you haven't a drawing room."

Tiger Eye— Smart New Color

Two sensations of this season are the tawny cat-like color called "tiger eye" and the amazing fabric that substitutes for suede. Still a third sensation is David Lewis' upholstery theme for one of his most popular bags, shown above. The "tiger-tiger" color idea, a deep, rich, tawny-golden shade, is sophisticated with either brown or black, clothes especially smart when used for bag, gloves and hat. The fabric, known as Antelle, looks and feels as soft as suede yet doesn't rub off

'Dressmaker Look' Is the Chic Thing In Upholstery

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

That dressmaker look continues to be the chic thing in upholstery. But there's a difference in the way it's interpreted this year and previously. Now it's the dressmaker touch of a coutouriere rather than of the little seamstress around the corner. In short, urbane simplicity of line, elegance of fabric, one interesting detail of ornament—this is the recipe. No fussiness, no clutter, no naivette, which the dressmaker vogue in upholstery was represented occasionally in seasons past.

Another significant and growing trend in upholstery fashions is toward the armless upholstered chair. The popularity of this type of chair is easy to explain; first, it is graceful and smart looking; second, it is much less bulky than other easy chairs and therefore fits into places where there wouldn't be space for an arm chair; third, it is grandly comfortable and that's quite an achievement in a side chair. The favorite version of these chairs has a tufted back and a plain kick pleated skirt. And velvet and satin are the favorite materials for covering them, though occasionally they're shown in a spectacular big scale chintz.

In sofas and arm chairs, coverings without detail except for this same straight kick-pleated skirt are seen in the most fastidious places. And instead of those bulbous "over-stuffed" pieces, which many of us still use alas, the decorators in the better stores are giving us gracious slender upholstered furniture that is nonetheless comfortable for all its svelte figure. Though this fashion for reducing has been prevalent in furniture for some seasons, there is still much too much fat furniture about, and more's the pity, especially in small homes where space for the extra pounds can't really be spared.

Trimmings, such as deep rope fringe and looped boucle fringe, are used but with great reserve. This care and restraint makes their use doubly important and effective.

While Men Rail Against Dieting, They Prefer Girls Streamlined

Victor Moore and Lester Gaba Both Take Stand for Svelte Figure—in Women; Writer Towne Warns Against 'Diet Look'

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT is sauce for the goose is so frequently derided as applesauce for the gander that when I ventured to ask a few men about Manhattan to tell me what they really think about women dieting, I humbly expected them to poke fun. But from all I gather, dieting is a very good thing—for women!

You get a clearly defined line on the masculine way of thinking from Victor Moore, the genial and popular comedian, who promptly told me that "I am plump—I wouldn't say fat—but I tried once to starve myself to lose weight, which I did successfully. But I gave it up and am now enjoying life and eating whatever I crave."

Streamlined Women In Demand

But here it comes, the old double-cross standard! "Of course, the gals have to be more careful than men," Mr. Moore continued, "and I believe that the old saying, 'nobody loves a fat man,' applies more so to the ladies. I like 'em streamlined myself!"

Well, nothing could be plainer than that! A man likes to eat, but he likes women to be slim! And if further clarification is needed, it is amply furnished by Lester Gaba, designer, artist and creator of those incredibly haughty and superbly svelte window mannequins. Mr. Gaba started off with the objection that I had asked the wrong question!

"It shouldn't be 'should a woman diet'?" declared Mr. Gaba, "but rather, 'should a woman mention dieting'?" The point is, no man likes to hear the gory details! The charm and beauty a woman is trying to achieve will be somewhat dispelled if she gives away the secret. For a woman to discuss her diet with a man is to disillusion him as completely as if she let him see her in cold cream and curlers. Let her diet as intelligently and as secretly as possible!"

So—women talk too much! Well, that seems to be the way most men feel. It's nice going, Mr. Gaba, and so is what follows:

"I am absolutely in favor of women dieting, for two reasons," he stated. "First, that's the only way a woman can keep a figure of which she is proud. Second, most men are unconsciously disgusted by a woman who thinks too much about eating or who appears to like it too much. When a man is with a woman, he likes to think of her as something aesthetic—whether he realizes it or not! And, furthermore, he likes to imagine that she is so interested in him that nothing else matters—not even food."

'That Diet Look' Must Be Avoided

Charles Hanson Towne, the writer put his finger on a sore point with the assertion that "I said once, when asked what I dislike most about modern women, that it was 'that diet look!' And I still feel that way. I like women to eat the lunches I order in advance—and not to nibble at a dab of spinach the size of a lark's egg.

"I dislike extremes of any kind, fat women or overly thin women! But women will go on being sheep and the slaves of fashion experts—and that's all there is to it. And I really love them and wouldn't have them change for the world!"

Being a writer, Mr. Towne manages to cover quite a lot of territory in a few words. I agree that the "diet look" is not pretty—but neither is it necessary! And what I heard Mr. Towne say, louder than anything else, is that he doesn't like women who are too plump!

If you are in an argumentative mood you might object that these are the opinions of only three men, and that there are plenty of others who staunchly declare they prefer women to be plump. The answer to that is: They seem to date the slim girls! And if that sounds too pat, think this one over: Why is it you never hear of a man divorcing a slim wife to marry a fat secretary?

The thought processes of the average man are so involved that only the conclusion is obvious—and that is: The woman who diets to please men—does!

Tossed Green Salad

So simple, yet so hard to achieve is a really fine salad. And like other simple things such as coffee, tea, buttered bread, it's nothing if not perfection. It's a temptation to substitute a fancy salad for a good one—there's a big difference. Properly made, a salad of fresh greens and vegetables is the noblest of them all, and the only way is to have the vegetables crisp, dry, cold, then toss them in a salad bowl with olive oil, vinegar and seasonings to taste. A small tray with cruet and containers for seasonings is a nicety, along with a pepper mill for fresh ground pepper.

Wanting Close Friend as Frequent Dinner Guest, Bride Asks How to Prepare Her for Their Humble Fare, Made Necessary by a Limited Budget

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a recent bride, and a month ago my husband and I had an office friend of mine as a guest at Sunday dinner. I should like to ask her again, but hesitate to do so because we have so little money to spend on groceries and cannot offer an elaborate meal—but just the kind of simple food that we usually have ourselves, on Sunday. We had cake and ice cream for dessert last time she was here, but we cannot afford to splurge that way very often.

I am afraid if I asked her again, and sat her down to a simple meal without dessert, she might be slightly offended, thinking "familiarity breeds contempt,"—since naturally we wouldn't discuss our limited funds with a guest. For another thing, I don't want to put her under obligation to entertain us in return, because I know she can't afford it; and, also, because I cannot eat any and all foods, owing to a stomach ailment.

However, since we are both so fond of her, and find her such good company, we would like to have her often. But how can we prepare her for our simple fare? And how soon can I ask her again, without making her feel she is indebted to us? RECENT BRIDE.

Offer "Pot Luck" In Off-hand Manner

DEAR R. B.: The customary way of preparing an invited guest for simple fare at one's table is to ask him to take "pot luck." Or you may go further and be quite explicit about what you plan to serve. You may say, for instance, "Won't you have supper with us Sunday evening? We're having Boston baked beans and brown bread and not much else. They're a specialty with us on Sunday evenings, and I know you'll like them, the way I fix them."

Since you don't want to put your friend under impressive social obligation to you, ask her for Sunday breakfast or Sunday supper, instead of Sunday dinner. That way, you rule out costly roasts or chops or steak or fowl—and eliminate a lot of cookery work, besides.

Sunday breakfasts are an increasingly popular form of casual entertaining amongst persons who spend most of their lives in offices. Sometimes called "brunch," they are a combination breakfast-lunch, served around 12 o'clock, with the guest breaking away from two to three hours later. The menu may be as simple or as elaborate as you wish.

Fruit or fruit juices, scrambled eggs with bacon or sausages, toast and marmalade and coffee make a delicious midday Sunday meal. Or you may substitute griddle cakes or waffles for the eggs. Or you might have hominy and sausages served with fried apples or apple rings. With hominy cheap and apples plentifully in season now, that is a most economical menu.

The Boston baked beans mentioned above are a general favorite for Sunday night suppers. They satisfy the greediest, as well as the most discriminating, appetite. I went to such a supper just last Sunday evening, where everybody insisted on at least two helpings of the beans. They were baked with salt pork and flavored with molasses. We also had brown bread, cottage cheese, radishes, carrot and celery sticks and stacks of small sandwiches. When the hostess later brought in a dessert course, everyone threw up their hands in despair. We had eaten so much substantial fare that we just had no place left for a sweet.

The way to be a good hostess, incidentally, is to enjoy your own parties. If your budget obliges you to serve the simplest of food, never apologize for the fact. Just be sure that what you offer is well cooked and attractively presented.

Now, as for how soon again, or how often, to ask your friend to a meal—why, just ask her to come whenever you want her. Everything seems to have its compensations, and one of the happier compensations of living on a limited budget is that your friends are delighted to help you write your own rules for entertaining.

If you form the habit of asking this friend of yours in for a "bite" as cheerfully as though it were a banquet; and if she sees you aren't standing on ceremony about extending invitations, she will never be burdened with a feeling that, "Now, it's my turn next to have them at my house." She will enter with you into the spirit of true hospitality, which is the spirit of sharing—and will be as happy to come as you are to have her. M. H.

Hollywood, Calif.—The slimmer Sylvia Sidney says she lost 20 pounds with the following simple diet:

Sylvia launched her diet with a week of nothing but orange juice and milk, nourishing but streamlining.

Replaced refined sugar with honey, less fattening but containing necessary food elments.

Eliminated all starches but one baked potato a week.

Turned down all desserts but jello. (She still eats jello at teatime while making "Carnival.")

Ate nothing but broiled, lean meats and nonstarchy vegetables.

Drank a daily thining cocktail brewed from beet, celery and carrot tops.

Improve Your Letter Writing

IF YOU find letter writing hard, what a vast empty space one little sheet of notepaper can seem! How will you ever manage to fill it?

But letter writing needn't be just one long struggle to fill up space. There are dozens of topics—the things you do, the things you think! Just forget that now-I'm-writing-a-letter stiffness, learn some of the simple ways to please and interest and you easily dash off charming notes.

Are you stuck with a thank-you letter to write? Tell the other person how you felt when you opened her gift, what use you're making of it. She'd love to know! "Dear Mary, what a thrill to get the adorable little boudoir pillow. I could hardly open the package, I was so excited. If only you could see how nice it looks in the place of honor on my bed . . ."

Writing a letter of sympathy? Be brief, sincere. Simple natural words, "I want you to know how much I feel for you," are worth more than all the pompous phrases you could think up.

And in your letter to friends you're sure to please if you realize the other person likes some attention. "These crisp autumn days remind me of you and those hilarious weiner roasts. Remember?" Then, when your mind's off yourself, you bubble along without self-consciousness.

All your letters will go more smoothly when you don't have to hesitate over points of English, good form. A widow you address as "Mrs. Henry Smith," not "Mrs. Mary Smith." Is it correct to end with "Sincerely?" No, neither grammatical nor courteous. Write "Sincerely yours."

End letter-writing struggles, learn to write delightfully with the help of our 40-page booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Gives many examples of social, friendly and business letters to help you improve your correspondence. Has pointers on vocabulary, English, letter etiquette, stationery; love letters, too.

Send 15 cents in coin for our booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions" to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Mary Selden Kennedy Wed to A. R. Moulton

Many From Capital Drive to Warrenton For Ceremony; Bride Given in Marriage By Her Uncle, Dr. Mason, of Washington

MANY YEARS AGO Worth's sent from Paris to an American bride a beautiful veil of rose point lace. Yesterday that bride's great-great granddaughter, Miss Mary Seldon Kennedy, of Warrenton, wore that veil with her gown when she was married to Allan Royal Moulton 2d.

Many drove down for the ceremony from Washington, where the bride has important family connections. Her uncle, Dr. William Beverley Mason, of this city, gave her in marriage, and Mrs. Mason was also present.

The wedding, one of the most important of the Virginia season, took place at 4:30 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anthony Kennedy, of Culpeper Street. White and green were the decorative motif, and the window before which the ceremony took place was banked with white chrysanthemums. Tall white Cathedral tapers lit the scene.

Officiating minister was the Rev. Ellison Smythe, of Warrenton. The bride wore a white panne velvet gown made with a sweetheart neckline. The waist was shirred from the shoulders, and the long tight sleeves extended to points over the hands. Her heirloom veil was fastened to her dark hair in coronet effect and was lined with tulle. She carried a round bouquet, with white orchids in the center and a shower of valley lilies.

Mrs. Douglas Rathbone Smith, of Alexandria, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Peggy Townsend, of Washington, and the Misses Betsy Charington, Sarah Warren and Doris Becker, of Warrenton.

Dandridge Kennedy Is Best Man

The bride's brother, Dandridge Kennedy, of Warrenton, was best man, and ushers were Douglas Rathbone Smith, of Alexandria, Dandridge Kennedy Mason, Robert Woods and James Clark, all of Washington.

Mrs. Smith's costume was of dusty pink corded silk, fashioned with a long waisted, tight fitting bodice and a square neckline. The long sleeves were made of open work material at the top. A Juliet cap and gold slippers completed her costume and she carried an arm bouquet of blue delphinium and maiden hair fern, tied with wide blue ribbon streamers of green ribbon.

Mrs. Kennedy had chosen for the occasion a handsome costume of heavy crepe silk in a Dubonnet shade. Lace trimmed the waist and she topped off her costume with a small hat of feathers to match and a cluster of orchids. Mrs. Mason wore dark green silk and a cocoa tan hat trimmed with two small birds.

When she left for her honeymoon after the reception which followed the ceremony, Mrs. Moulton wore an olive green wool suit with a black hat and black accessories.

Many There From Capital

Many from Washington were present at the wedding and reception, among them Mrs. John Caswell—she is the bride's first cousin—and Mr. Caswell. Others included Countess Betty van der Straten-Ponthoz and her brother, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, daughter and son of the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz; Miss Eleanor Meem, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Miss Elaine Darlington, Mr. and Mrs. William Beverley Mason, jr., also cousins of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jones, Mrs. Mayo Smith, Miss Nancy Mayo, John Caswell 3d, Jock Merriam, John Galliher, Judson Bowles, and Frederick Nechlin. Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Smith entertained at cocktails earlier this week in honor of the young couple.

Other guests were the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon D. Scott, of Hewlett, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. William M. Galt, of Richmond, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simms Eichelberger, of Dayton, Ohio.

To Make Home In Washington

Present from the hunt country were Mr. and Mrs. Newell Ward, Mr. and Mrs. William Seipp, the Misses Jane Wilbur and her debutante sister, Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Haserick, Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Charrington, Mr. and Mrs. David Mack Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cain, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. King, Mrs. Crosby Miller and many more.

After a honeymoon the couple will live at 2420 Sixteenth Street. The bride is one of the most popular members of the younger set and has been in great demand as a fashion model at local benefits. Her engagement to Mr. Moulton was announced in the late summer.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. V. S. Little, of Washington.

Mrs. West Scores Hit by Serving Chocolate at Tea

Major and Wife Delight Guests by Departure From Usual Custom

By Elizabeth Henney

At a dusk-to-dark tea in their apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue, Maj. and Mrs. Parker W. West entertained yesterday afternoon. Receiving in the foyer with her husband, Mrs. West was gowned in a black crepe floor-length hostess frock, trimmed with an enormous red flower at the waistline. Accenting the red of the flower, she wore two ruby and brilliant clips at the neckline.

In the dining room, the tea table was all in white, centered by a large bowl of chrysanthemums and flanked by tall white tapers in silver candle holders. Departing from the usual custom, and much to the delight of her guests, Mrs. West had one end of the table devoted to chocolate, and dainty cups of the beverage, topped with a frothy foam of whipped cream, were much in demand during the afternoon. Another special, which proved to be most popular, were the tiny hot tea biscuits filled with minced ham.

Tea-Table Aides Listed

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Charles Riggs, who wore soldier blue; Mrs. John Craig Peacock, who was gowned in black lace; Mrs. E. Barrett Prettyman, who topped her floor-length black frock with a scarlet jacket appliqued in a gold thread design, and Mrs. Louis B. Mountfort, who wore black velvet with an appliqued design in gold.

Also assisting were Mrs. Carl Loos, whose black crepe frock had an interesting appliqued design of gold leather leaves around the collar and waistline; Mrs. William Burdick, who wore a floor-length frock of deep lavender, was trimmed at the waist and on the pockets with red, which was further accented by an intriguing six-strand necklace of red beads.

Mrs. Emerson Howe poured during the afternoon, as did Mrs. Gilmer Kerner, Mrs. John McClure, Mrs. C. F. Burton, Mrs. Harold Brooks and Mrs. Newell Ellison.

Senora de De Bayle, wife of the Nicaraguan Minister, was one of the later arrivals, stunningly attired in black with a coat trimmed with silver fox, which she accented with a pillbox hat and a muff trimmed in the same fur. Senora de De Bayle, whose time is much occupied this winter with wedging a course in costume design between her social engagements, closely followed the afternoon's political repercussion-discussions. She said that Latin Americans were intensely interested in the reelection of President Roosevelt, and that in Nicaragua a three-day national holiday and fiesta period had been proclaimed when returns came through.

Diplomatic Corps Well Represented

The Diplomatic Corps was well represented during the afternoon. Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, wore a green ensemble; Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Guatemala, was gowned in red; Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Minister of the Dominican Republic, was costumed in two shades of brown, and Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador, was chic in black.

The Minister of the Legation of South Africa, Ralph William Close, was there, accompanied by Mrs. Close, and others noted during the afternoon included Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Frank Widener, Mrs. Sam Whitaker, Mrs. Henry F. Grady and her daughter, Miss Patricia Grady; Mrs. James Greene, Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. Robert Le Roy and many more.

Cousin Fetes The Villards

Miss Dorothea Villard invited a few friends in for tea yesterday afternoon in honor of her cousin, Harry Villard, of the State Department, and his bride. The Villards were married only a few weeks ago and have just returned to their home on Dent Place from a honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga.

The party took place at Miss Villard's home on N Street, in Georgetown. Mrs. Villard is the former Miss Tamara Gringutes. Yesterday she wore a black dress and a tiny black hat trimmed with red. The hostess was in black with a blue wool top.

Among the guests who dropped in for a bit of refreshment were Mr. and Mrs. Meade Fletcher, she dressed in red; John Foster of the British Embassy; Miss Laura Tuckerman, in green with a matching hat; Mrs. Walter White, whose tiny hat was made entirely of one big pink rose; Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs; Miss Dorothy Detzer, with whom Miss Villard formerly worked in the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; Lieut. Victor Sutro, George Abell, Miss Marcia Umbsen and several others.

Miss Richardson's Dance Postponed To December 30

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dawson Richardson have changed the date of the dance to be given during the Christmas holidays in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Phyllis Richardson.

Originally plans had been made for the fete to take place on December 26, but since the announcement that the White House ball in honor of Miss Joan Morgenthau has been set for that date, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson have moved their party up to Monday, December 30.

The place will be the same—Willard Hall, Fairfax, Va.

Ballet to Benefit Refugee Children

Local children, some of them daughters of high government officials, will take part in a matinee ballet performance November 22 to raise money for the Save the Children Fund of Great Britain. The performance will take place at the National Theater.

Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Justice Douglas, heads the executive committee. Her daughter, Mildred, has a part in the play, which is "Racketty - Packetty House," adapted from a story by Frances Hodgson Burnett. It is to be presented by the Washington Junior Ballet and the Children's Division of the Washington National Ballet.

Other committee members include Mrs. Conway P. Coe, wife of the United States Commissioner of Patents, Mrs. Joseph B. Paul, Mrs. Neville Miller, Mrs. William Carter, Mrs. Charles Goodnow, Mrs. Woodleaf Thomas, Mrs. Roberts Larsen, Mrs. Arthur Hilland and Mrs. William J. Tate.

Youngsters playing leading roles in the production include Joan Mattace, Eleanore Booth, Peggy Wilson, Barbara Cole, Phyllis Chase, Mildred Coe, Katherine Miller, Elva Paul, and Melissa Mossburg. Proceeds from the benefit will be used to evacuate from London not only British children, but child refugees from all nations who are now quartered there.

Miss Jean Slaughter Is Pledged to Alpha Phi

Among those pledged to Alpha Phi, women's national sorority, at the close of formal rushing on the Cornell University campus is Miss Jean Slaughter, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. W. R. Slaughter, 3319 Rowland Place.

Miss Slaughter, who entered the university this fall as a freshman, is enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences. She prepared at the Ithaca High School. Her brother, Willis R. Slaughter, jr., is a junior at the Ithaca, N. Y., school.

Holcomb Dinner Ushers In Marine Dance Series

Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb entertained at a dinner last night before the first of a series of dances at the Marine Barracks. Gen. Holcomb is commandant of the Marine Corps.

Their guests included Maj. Gen. William Upshur, Capt. and Mrs. Austin R. Brunelli, Capt. and Mrs. Edward Hagenah, Capt. and Mrs. Jack Juhan, Col. and Mrs. Benjamin Gally, Col. and Mrs. A. W. Jacobsen, Col. and Mrs. James W. Flett, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. John Rogers and Mrs. Kindleberger Kirby.

Frank Holcomb, son of the hosts, entertained a party of young people at dinner before the dance.

MARRIED

Underwood & Underwood

MRS. ELBERT T. TURNER, who was before her marriage last month in St. Anthony's rectory, Brookland, D. C., Miss Alice Theresa Costello, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. James F. Costello, of Washington. Mr. Turner was graduated from the University of Virginia.

Texas Poet Visits Here

In town for a brief visit is Annie Laurie Trousdale, widely known poet and composer, of Houston, Tex., who will be here for a few days before going on to visit friends in Roanoke, Va., and Greensboro, N. C. From there she will return home.

Miss Trousdale has spent the past two weeks in New York, where she was widely entertained following the publication of her second book of verse, "Beating the Wings." Shortly before she left New York, she entertained at a small tea, having among her guests a number of well-known persons including Pierre Loving, author and commentator, C. D. Batchelor, cartoonist; Gustav Davidson, Lionel Dante, Barbara Coleman, Ed Bodin, and Margaret Penn White, Washington composer.

A former student at the conservatory at Fountainbleau, France, Miss Trousdale is a friend of Nadia Boulanger, who has been enthusiastic about several of her songs.

In private life, Miss Trousdale is Mrs. Lamar Coke. During her Washington visit, she is staying at the Willard Hotel.

Frank Walkers To Fete Guests At Navy Game

The Postmaster General and Mrs. Frank Walker will entertain a party of guests today at the Notre Dame-Navy game in Baltimore. With them will be Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Stafford, Mrs. John Power, Miss Laura Hallie Walker and Miss Joan Sweeney, all of New York.

Mrs. Walker joined Mr. Walker here a few days ago and is busy getting settled in their apartment at the Wardman Park.

Sister to Visit Mrs. Seaton Here

Mrs. Arthur J. Seaton went to New York yesterday to meet her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. La Doux of Spirit Lake, Iowa, who will return to Washington with her today for a visit.

Mr. La Doux is national president of the Coca Cola Association of America, and he and his wife are on an extended trip through the East. They will go from here to Williamsburg, Va., to attend the series of concerts being given there this season.

Patriotic Decorations Mark Grace Church Guild Benefit

Scores of flags provided a patriotic setting for the Autumn Ball held last night at the Sulgrave Club for the benefit of the Guild at Grace Episcopal Church. American flags were also distributed to the guests, who joined in a series of effective cotillion figures.

The Rev. Meade Bolton Magbryde, rector of the church, received the guests. With him was Miss Mary Leroy Stanton, of McColl, S. C., who came to Washington especially for the party. Miss Stanton wore a gown of blue crepe and carried a large arm bouquet of red roses.

With Thomas Rogers Drake, Miss Caroline Wadden and Kent Dyer, Miss Stanton led the cotillion figures. They were climaxed by a grand march into the dining room, where refreshments were served.

Guests at the party included Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Coleman, Mrs. Francis King Cook, Col. and Mrs. Wrisley Brown, Col. Wade H. Cooper, John Cleaton, Miss Marian Miller, Clyde Brown, Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Dollman, John Dunn, Samuel Duval, Miss Gene Rabb, John Henry, Miss Mary Preston, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Essex, Mr. and Mrs. John Dillon Fitzgerald, Frank Fairchild and Miss Nancy Page King.

Others were Mr. and Mrs. Jamese M. Greene, Edward P. Hodges, J. Monro Hunter, Frank Heller, John C. Henry, Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Capt. Thomas J. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Paul King, Frederick J. Lindaeur, Robert Lammond, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mack, Mrs. Martha McKnew, Capt. William McEntee, Leon Norris, Miss Henrietta Padgett, Loran P. Oakes, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Proctor, Mrs. Edwin S. Col. and Mrs. Joseph Clinton Tribby, Gen. and Mrs. H. K. Rutherford, Maj. and Mrs. Davis B. Wills, Mrs. William Wheatley, Clark P. Cole 2d, Miss Rita Lacombe and Charles Hatton.

A ballet presentation of waltzes from "Die Rosenkavalier," featuring the Marion Chace dancers, and a solo by Miss Chace, "Lucrezia Borgia," were highlights of the evening.

Retiring Chile Envoy, Wife Feted Here

Diplomats Frolic At Cajigases' Colorful Party

By Carolyn Bell

Climaxing a continual round of parties for two weeks, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas entertained at the final farewell fete in honor of the retiring Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Cabero, who will sail Monday for their homeland.

The spacious Cajigas home on Sixteenth Street was jammed to the doors with merrymakers between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock, and a goodly number remained on later for supper and dancing.

The Diplomatic Corps is losing one of its smartest dressers in the departure of Senora de Cabero. Yesterday she wore a simple black dress and a five-strand necklace of pearls. A tiny feather cap, in bright kelly green, was spiked with two tall feathers. A huge cluster of orchids completed the ensemble. Mrs. Cajigas, pretty as always, wore a black dinner frock with mink puffs in the long sleeves. Several creamy gardenias were pinned to her frock.

Many Diplomats Attend Party

Diplomats were in the majority yesterday afternoon. With the inevitable cigaretteholder in his hand, the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera chatted with a group. Not far away was Senora de Castillo Najera, smart in a black frock trimmed in jet. The Second Secretary of the Mexican Embassy and Senora de Sierra were there. An exotic looking person, Senora de Sierra wore a black frock edged in turquoise beads. Also there were Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador, Senora de Hasslocher, wife of the Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy, and their son, Ivan, who chatted with a group of pretty girls.

Yellow snapdragons and carnations centered the dining-room table which was loaded down with delicious food. Serving coffee at one end was Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Minister from the Dominican Republic. She wore a smart coffee-colored frock and a wide-brimmed matching hat edged in pheasant feathers. Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister from Guatemala, who poured tea for a short while, wore a smart ensemble in true red.

Cold salmon with mayonnaise vied with country ham as the most popular dish. Huge chocolate cakes and all manner of other sweets were spread. An impromptu bar had been arranged in the hall where guests drank punch or highballs.

Anita Cajigas Wears Gardenias

Striking Anita Cajigas, who wore a smartly draped dinner dress of black crepe, had a creamy gardenia placed in the center of her black curls. A fetching youngster is Miss Herminea Malaret, of Puerto Rico, who is living with Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas. Yesterday she wore a full-skirted blue taffeta frock. Two attractive young ladies—classmates of Anita's at King Smith, were Miss Louise Boatwright and Miss Frankie Taylor. They both had a single red rose pinned to their frocks.

The Ambassador from Venezuela and Senora de Escalante were there, as were Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Rogelio Alfaro, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Senora de Boyd, wife of the Ambassador from Panama, who wore a smart blue and dubonnet outfit; the Minister from Uruguay, Jose Richling, the Minister from Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle.

Wearing three bright pink roses as a hat was pretty Senora de Butendieck. Others there were Mrs. Thomas Dawson, Dr. and Mrs. James Moran, Baroness Von Below, Mrs. Consuedo Seone, Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer, the Charge d'Affaires from Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais, Mrs. J. J. Mack, the Minister from Honduras and Senora de Caceras and many many others.

Parties Honor Alice Hunter, Soon to Be Wed

Many parties are being given in honor of Miss Alice Louise Hunter, whose marriage to Rhodes Kauffman Scherer will take place on November 23. Next Saturday Mrs. Frank Parsons will give a luncheon at the Columbia Country Club. On the same evening Mrs. Roy North will be hostess at a party and shower.

Mrs. Harold Bennett entertained at a crystal shower recently for the bride-elect. Last Saturday, Mrs. Clower Mott gave a luncheon and handerchief shower at her home on North Chelsea Lane in Bethesda. Mrs. Charles M. Hunter 3d, who will be matron of honor for her sister-in-law, entertained at a shower a few days ago.

Wileys Are Guests Of Mrs. Klieforth

Mrs. Alfred Klieforth entertained at a small luncheon yesterday in honor of the American Minister to Latvia and Mrs. John Wiley, who are vacationing in Washington. Mrs. Klieforth is the wife of an American Foreign Service officer stationed at Cologne, Germany.

The other guests included Mrs. McCeney Werlich and Clarence Hewes.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MR. AND MRS. JOUETT SHOUSE will add to the cheer of New Year's day by presenting Mrs. Shouse's daughter, Joan Dodd, to their friends at a tea on the afternoon of January 1 at their house in Georgetown. Pretty Joan will be a welcome addition to the season's debutantes, though she will take her gaiety in snatches because she is still pursuing her studies away at school. As a foretaste of the parties to come, Joan will visit Washington for the dance which the George Garretts are giving on November 30 for Mrs. Garrett's lovely daughter, Elaine Darlington. The Garretts will give a dinner before the dance at the Sulgrave Club for the young set and their out-of-town visitors and Mrs. Shouse is planning to dine a few of her own contemporaries that night.

• • • •

ANOTHER ATTRACTIVE GIRL being introduced by her parents is Mildred Eddy Dunn. Mr. and Mrs. William McKee Dunn will give a tea for their daughter on Friday, November 22, at their home on Eighteenth Street. Mildred graduated from Foxcroft School last June and is the eldest of the delightful Dunn girls and, of course, the first to make her debut.

Her many friends will be delighted to know that Donna Julia Brambilla has returned to her apartment at the Fairfax for the winter.

News comes from Rome that Prince and Princess Marcelio del Drago are the parents of a son. Prince del Drago, when he was stationed at the Italian Embassy here a few years ago, was one of Washington's most popular bachelors.

The First Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Christopher Bramwell entertained at dinner last night, in honor of Genevieve Tabouis, the noted French journalist.

IF INGENUITY and personal bravery are still of value in the modern world—and they are—a man of value was in Washington the other day. He is Anatole Muhlstein, for the past ten years Minister-Counselor of the Polish Embassy in Paris. When the Germans occupied Belgium at the beginning of the last war, Mr. Muhlstein was a student in Brussels and all the long war years he remained there in hiding. He was hiding, not for his own sake, but because he and one or two other daring spirits were authors, publishers, and distributors of a newspaper aimed at informing and encouraging the Belgians.

For weeks at a time Mr. Muhlstein would be literally walled-in to a small tomb-like room while he did the dangerous work of preparing the journal. The name of the paper was the "Flambeau"—or Torch—and the occupying Germans were never able to stop its circulation or discover the authors. But the most mystifying and daring achievement of the fugitive journalists was that they managed to have each issue of the Torch appear on the breakfast-table of the German Governor-General.

• • • •

MR. MUHLSTEIN is Polish but his chic and pretty dark-haired wife is French, being a daughter of Baron Robert de Rothschild. The Muhlsteins will live on Long Island with the Rothschilds who have taken a house there. The other day they came to Washington and were entertained at cocktails by Edward Weintal, former attache of the Polish Embassy.

Among Mr. Weintal's other guests were Mrs. Walter Washington, whose husband is First Secretary of the U. S. Legation in Sweden and who was a classmate of Mr. Weintal at Oxford, the U. S. Minister to Latvia and Mrs. John Wiley, the Yugoslav Minister and Madame Fotitch, Lady Gainsborough and her pretty daughter, Lady Maureen Noel, Prince Wladyslaw Radziwill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warner. Also William Philip Sims, Stephanus Morris, Harold Hinton, Rastko Petrovich and Rafal Lepkowski.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope will entertain informally at luncheon today at the legation on Woodland Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, of Chicago, spent yesterday in Washington en route south for a vacation. Mr. Dewey was recently elected to Congress.

Mrs. Walter Ray Mann, widow of Lieut. Col. Mann, U. S. A., and her daughter, Joan, are spending the week-end at West Point.

Lieut. Comdr. Lorain Anderson, who recently came here for duty, and Mrs. Anderson have taken an apartment at the Kennedy-Warren for the winter.

Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim entertained 24 guests at dinner last night at their residence in honor of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus, who will spend the week-end with them.

Midshipman D. Martin Armstrong is home from the Naval Aacademy to spend the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong, at their home on Wynnwood Road.

Mrs. Willard Barrows, of Chevy Chase, will entertain at dinner and bridge on Monday night in honor of her house guest, Mrs. Jay Lynn Howe, of Boston.

Mrs. Milton Schlessinger spent the past few days in Richmond as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Irving May.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rich are visiting their son, Frank, at Lehigh University this week-end.

Miss Jane Luchs will entertain at a luncheon today in her apartment at 4700 Connecticut Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Saks and Mr. and Mrs. S. Meyer Barnett will be hosts to a large company at dinner this evening at the Woodmont Country Club. They have cards out for another dinner on November 23.

R. B. Clarks Will Give Dinner for Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bancroft Clark will entertain at a dinner next Friday evening in honor of their daughter, Miss Nellie Bancroft Clark, who will be married on November 16 to Jamesm Barton, of Greenville, S. C. Members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests will attend. Among them will be Miss Dorothy Barton, William S. Barton, Sam Barton, all of Greenville, S. C.; James Crocker, of Spartanburg, S. C.

On Tuesday night Miss Phyllis Clark, cousin of the bride-elect, entertained at a surprise shower for her.

Women of Americas Gathering in Capital

Inter-American Commission Will Hold First Session Here Next Week; Many Distinguished Guests Already on Hand

B Jessie Ash Arndt

Distinguished Latin-American women are gathering in Washington to represent their countries next week at the first session of the Inter-American Commission of Women to be held in the United States. The commission, an official institution composed of 21 delegates appointed by their respective governments, studies the problems of women of the Americas with a view toward closer international cooperation.

Headed by Senora de Martinez Guerrero, of Argentina, as chairman, and Senorita Minerva Bernardino, of the Dominican Republic, as vice chairman, the commission comprises some of the foremost women in the American republics.

Among those who have just arrived for the conference is Senora Graciela de Schnake, of Chile, lately the Mayor of Santiago, who has the distinction of being the only woman in this hemisphere to serve as the mayor of the capital of her country.

She was appointed by the President and served for a year and two months before resigning in order to accompany her husband to the Havana Conference, at which he represented Chile as ambassador extraordinary. Since then they have been in this country and Senora de Schanke has visited Washington on several occasions.

Chile Administration Called Sympathetic

She has been active in the People's Party and believes the cause of women's rights is best served when women work side by side with men whose cooperation they need in order to obtain legislation affecting their status. The present administration in Chile is sympathetic with the women's cause, she said, and she looks for definite advancement for it in the immediate future. Her own appointment as Mayor of Santiago and that of other women to important government posts has given them representation in national affairs although they have not yet obtained the vote, she said.

Senora Maria Piedad Castillo de Levi, of Guayaquil, Ecuador, who is also here, is the only woman to serve as a member of a municipal council in her country. She is also president of the Orphans Society and vice president of the Hispanic-American Institute of External Relations.

Since the age of 13, Senora de Levi has written for newspapers. Her late father was editor and publisher, for 48 years, of El Telegrafo, oldest paper in Ecuador. In recent years she has written on political subjects and since girlhood has been widely known as a poet. She is now co-owner of her father's paper.

She has been in New York for the past year with her husband, Ecuadorean representative at the World's Fair. Her daughter, Senorita Piedad Levi Castillo, is here with her and is a gracious interpreter when her mother converses with North American friends who do not know Spanish.

Senora Amalia de Castillo Ledon, of Mexico, who was here last summer doing special work at the headquarters of the commission in the Pan American Building, is noted as an author and playwright and has been a leader in social and child welfare movements in Mexico. She has been instrumental in opening night schools for men and women workers, establishing recreational facilities as well as child protective services, day nurseries, clinics and kitchens where mothers can obtain proper food for their babies.

Urges Collaboration Toward Democracy

She is president of the Women's Pen Club of Mexico and also a member of the Committee to Promote Democracy.

She believes the Inter-American Commission should not only work for women's betterment in the various countries but to bring a larger appreciation throughout the Americas of the principles of freedom and democracy.

A fourth member of the commission just arrived is Senora Elena Mederos de Gonzales, of Havana, who was among the women who appeared before the plenary session of the Pan American Conference in 1928 to ask that the Inter-American Commission of Women be formed. She was appointed a member by the Cuban government in 1930 and has served since. She is president of the Lyceum Club of 600 women in Havana, which is raising funds for a new library.

The Cuban constitution, adopted in June, gives women equal rights, she said, and the maternity laws of the country are considered the best in America. This, she pointed out, puts Cuba in a position to be helpful to the other countries in making similar progress. Senora Carmen B. de Lozada, Bolivian delegate, and Senora Maria C. de Aya, delegate from Colombia, will arrive by plane tomorrow, as will Senorita Luisa Martinez, delegate from Venezuela.

El Salvador is represented by Senora Elena de Castro, Honduras by Senora Mariana de Caceres and Nicaragua by Senora Elena Lagos de De Bayle, all the wives of envoys in Washington. Miss Mary E. Winslow is the United States representative.

Mrs. Wing Entertains Madeira Aides

Mrs. David L. Wing, headmistress of Madeira School, last night entertained at dinner at her home for members of the alumnae council of the school and of the board of directors. The affair was the first event in connection with the annual meeting of the alumnae council which will open this morning at 9 o'clock at Greenway, Va.

The morning session today will be followed by luncheon at the school, a tea at the Sulgrave Club in honor of the council and dinner there followed by an evening session. Tomorrow morning, the council will meet again at Greenway, followed by an informal meeting with Mrs. Wing.

Mrs. Hamlin Wheaton of this city is president of the council; Mrs. T. S. Cox of Williamsburg, Va., vice president; Mrs. Philip Graham of this city, secretary; Miss Barbara Colbron of New York city, treasurer; Miss Leila McKnight of Washington, executive secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Craft of Greenway, assistant executive secretary.

Mrs. John H. Holland of Washington, is alumnae representative on the board of directors of the school; Mrs. Waldron Faulkner of Washington, alumnae fund chairman; Mrs. Hugh W. Rowan, Washington, scholarship chairman; Mrs. Othneil Williams of Winsted, Conn., nominating chairman; Mrs. Charles S. Baker, Washington, special gifts chairman; Mrs. C. M. Granger, Washington, a member of the board of the school.

Luncheon Planned for Next Saturday To Honor Miss Caton, Library Secretary

A LUNCHEON honoring Miss Louise G. Caton, secretary of the Library of Congress, has been planned for Saturday of next week at the Dodge Hotel by secretaries, assistant secretaries and the girls who "pinch hit" in that capacity at the library.

The affair has been arranged to bring together this group of about 50, who worked in close contact with each other when the library was housed in one building.

Hirst Milhollen, of the staff of the Fine Arts Division, who is well known for his etchings of Mexican subjects, will do the place cards.

The committee in charge of the luncheon includes Louise Erk, chairman; Thursa Bakey, Elizabeth Harding, Violette Lofstrand, Irene Madden, Janie E. Mason, Theodore Melone, Mary Richardson, Olive Seltzer and Ethel Walter.

HONOR FORMER REGENT—Miss Janet Richards, former regent of Mary Washington Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be honored at a reception to be given by the chapter Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 6 at the Washington Club.

NEW NATIONAL OFFICERS—Appointment of two Washington women to important national committees of the American Legion Auxiliary, has just been announced.

Mrs. Frederick G. Williams, past national president, has been appointed one of the three members of the code committee which has charge of the codification of the auxiliary's national mandates.

Mrs. Mary B. McMillin has been appointed rehabilitation chairman for Area B and will direct the auxiliary's activities for disabled veterans in the Middle Atlantic States. Mrs. McMillin is a past president of the District department.

The appointments were made by Mrs. Louis J. Lemstra, national president, and ratified by the national executive committee.

PLAN SERVICE—The American War Mothers' annual Armistice Day service will be held at 11 a. m. Monday, at the east front entrance of the Capitol.

Mrs. Robert Eugene Ridenhour, national president, and Mrs. John Eckert, state president of the District, have invited all patriotic organizations and the public to attend.

ENTERTAIN VISITORS—Senora Ana Rosa Martinez Guerrero, a member of the Inter-American Commission of Women, will be guest of honor at the Association of University Women's buffet supper tomorrow evening. Other guests of the club will be Senorita Fernandez Biero and Senorita Pena Salas of Argentina. Miss Evgenia Botkin will be the club hostess.

On Monday, Joe Elmer Morgan, editor and writer, will speak at the club tea, introducing American education week. Miss Agnes Winn will be hostess.

CARD PARTY—Several hundred guests are expected to enjoy the benefit bridge party to be given at 1:30 p. m. on November 18 by the music section of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club at the clubhouse.

Mrs. William F. Henry is chairman and her committee includes Mrs. C. M. Jansky, Mrs. Carl Stuhler, Mrs. Wilber G. Fielder and Mrs. Albert Woodson.

OBSERVE BOOK WEEK—Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, presented a library chapter night program under the direction of Mrs. Anna Sullivan last evening at the Moose Hall, 1414 I Street. This program is given in conjunction with National Book Week, November 11-16.

Mrs. Helen Steinbarger, consultant in Adult Education of the D. C. Public Library, gave a review on current books.

Women's Job Clinic Gets Ready To Aid in Unemployment Fight

First Meeting Scheduled for Tuesday; Psychological Tests to Be Arranged To Help Maladjusted Workers

The first meeting of the Women's Job Clinic sponsored by the Women's Occupational Council has been announced for Tuesday night of next week in Room 203 of Building D at George Washington University, G Street, between Twentieth and Twenty-first.

Clinic meetings will be held every Tuesday evening at 7:30 Dr. Mitchell Dreese, professor of educational psychology, will arrange for psychological tests for women desiring assistance in analysing their vocational aptitudes. The Women's Occupational Council will arrange for consultations with men and women in business and the professions who will advise qualified women how to make the best use of those assets which maturity may develop.

This attack on unemployment among women over 35 is being made in the belief that these women have a valuable contribution to make to the community.

Many women have latent abilities that may be developed through self-analyses, according to Mrs. Marjorie Shearon, chairman of the occupational council.

Invitations to the clinic have been sent to the presidents or other officers of 40 civic, service, business, and professional women's clubs and other civic organizations in the District and to personnel officers in business establishments and Government agencies. Unemployed women and employed women who are vocationally maladjusted have also been notified of the first meeting of the women's job clinic.

This clinic is a pioneer undertaking. While the analytical methods used by Sidney W. Edlund in the Man Marketing Clinic, Inc., of New York, will be followed in a general way, it is expected that new techniques will have to be developed to meet the needs of mature women who are either entering the labor market for the first time or who have recently become unemployed and are meeting with the customary discrimination against women over 35.

Mencken Offers To Face Heckling By Press Women

H. L. Mencken, who seldom if ever speaks before clubs, will address the Women's National Press Club at its luncheon Tuesday at the Willard Hotel, with the cheerful proviso that he will welcome heckling.

The Baltimore writer and wit will touch on the subject, "Why Newspaper People Keep on Being Newspaper People," but he has said that he prefers to spend much of the time in answering questions.

Husbands of club members and other men guests are expected to be in the audience at the luncheon.

Bridge to Benefit Ambulance Corps

Mrs. Horace Chapman Young, recently appointed chairman 8, of the Washington committee, of the British-American Ambulance Corps, by Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, the Washington chairman, has announced her committee will give a benefit bridge party and fashion show on Tuesday, November 19. The affair will be at 2:30 in the Sapphire Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

Tickets are in charge of Mrs. George D. Lane, 3016 Tilden Street Northwest, and will be sold at the Mayflower Hotel after Friday. All proceeds will go toward buying an ambulance to be sent to England or Scotland.

Mrs. S. McKenzie Davison, chairman of the donations committee, and Mrs. Frank Lloyd Yates, vice chairman, have received many gifts to be used as prizes and to be auctioned at the party.

Adjournment Plan Dooms D. C. Bills

Reorganization Fight Would Have to Be Initiated Anew

By James D. Secrest

Prospects of an early adjournment of Congress threaten to shatter the last hope of Senate action on the Kennedy District reorganization bill and to postpone until next year House consideration of clarifying amendments to the District income tax law and settlement of the D. C.-Virginia boundary row.

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, yesterday said that nothing could be done to save the Kennedy bill if present indications of adjournment within a week or ten days materialize.

"However, should Congress decide to remain in session and Senator McCarran still be unable to take charge of hearings, I shall appoint a new chairman of the subcommittee," he said.

McCarran in Hospital

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, has been ill at Naval Hospital since his appointment. Recently, his office stated that he would return to Nevada to recuperate upon leaving the hospital.

If the District reorganization bill has not been passed by the Senate before the Seventy-sixth Congress ends, it probably will go the way of all previous municipal reform measures. Its sponsors, Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and former Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, both will be absent from District legislative councils next year.

Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, was not expected at the Capitol until Monday, but it was apparent that the committee will not present any controversial legislation to the House in the face of an effort by House leaders to force an adjournment.

Airport's Status Involved

The District-Virginia boundary bill, involving the geographical status of the Washington National Airport, is pending before the committee. It was submitted by a subcommittee without recommendation this fall after a brief hearing.

Until the boundary issue is settled, the new flying field will be partially in the District and partially in Virginia. Taxes on gasoline and concessions will vary according to place of sales.

District officials also are anxious to have the income tax law amended along the lines proposed in the Dirksen bill, but as the tax does not again fall due until April 15, there will be time for the new Congress to act.

Arlington Girl Returns to D. C. In Ice Follies

The return of the Ice Follies to Riverside Stadium November 11 will be a homecoming for Charlotte Bracken, one of the loveliest members of the cast of 66. Miss Bracken makes Arlington her home during the few weeks of the year she is not with the musical ice revue, which annually travels from coast to coast. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bracken, of 1900 Nottingham Street.

Miss Bracken

The young skater, one of the chorus of 44 "Ice Follies," is recognized as one of Washington's three outstanding women figure skaters. Until Dorothy Snell turned professional two weeks ago to begin a career as a skating instructor, Charlotte was the only Washingtonian to make a career as a professional of the rink. Like Miss Snell she donned her first pair of skates in her native Minnesota and was attracted to the blades by the famous skating team of Eddie Shipstead and Oscar Johnson, producers of the Ice Follies.

A great majority of the Ice Follies performers come from Minnesota, the State that has produced Shipstead and Johnson, Eddie's younger brother, Roy, Bess Ehrhardt and Heinie Brock. Four years ago they launched what has become the best-known show in the country, later adding stars from other lands.

Bell & Howell Will Open D. C. Office Today

The Bell & Howell Co., largest manufacturer of motion picture equipment in the world, will open its local office today at 1221 G Street Northwest.

Third branch office of the concern in the United States, the Washington unit will be open to the general public at 10 a. m., and visitors will be welcomed from then until 9 p. m.

Earl A. Trager, former chief of the naturalist division, National Park Service, will be manager.

The Bell & Howell Co. specializes in precision motion picture equipment, and the Washington office was established for the express purpose of maintaining a complete display of all the company's equipment, and supervision of all Bell & Howell dealers in this area. A service department will be established for repairing all the company's equipment, and according to tentative plans, a film rental library will be added at a later date.

Dreiser Will Speak At Peace Rally Here

Woman Banker Surrenders, Admits $20,000 Md. Theft

Sought Since Oct. 4, Expectant Mother Gives Self Up

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—An attractive, auburn-haired expectant mother, sought on embezzlement charges since October 4, gave herself up today and pleaded guilty to stealing about $20,000 from the Savings Bank of Nanticoke, at Nanticoke, Md.

Mrs. Margaret Fields, 31, assistant cashier of the bank that closed the day after she disappeared, walked into the office of John W. Downing, State bank commissioner, with her husband, James C. Fields, shortly after noon and surrendered.

A short time afterward, FBI agents took her before United States Commissioner James K. Cullen and she pleaded guilty to a Federal warrant charging her with embezzlement. She was held in default of $10,000 bail for Federal grand jury action Tuesday.

Mrs. Fields said that when she fled from her Salisbury home, she drove to Wilmington, Del., in her husband's car, then took a train to Chicago and later went to Minneapolis, where she has a married sister.

She told Commissioner Cullen she was expecting a child in February or March and decided recently to give herself up to authorities. She took a plane fro n Minneapolis to get here "as quickly as possible" and notified her husband when she arrived.

Asked how she spent the money which she admitted taking over a period of three years, Mrs. Fields said, "I can't point to any one single thing that was ever done with it."

She admitted, however, that she had $750 of it in Minneapolis banks, that some of it was used to buy clothes and part of it went to help buy a home in Salisbury.

Mrs. Fields said she was employed by the bank in November, 1936, and the defalcations began about a year later. She said she was on vacation when she learned bank examiners were checking the accounts. Then, she said, she fled in her husband's car.

She was born in Union City, Tenn., Mrs. Fields said, and attended the University of Minnesota and the University of California for two years. She has been living seven years in Salisbury, where her husband is in the weather-stripping business.

G. Randolph Aiken, assistant United States attorney, said the case would be presented to the Federal grand jury Tuesday and that a hearing before a Federal judge would be held the same day.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Fields was jailed.

Police Hold Five For Questioning In Stabbing

Five men were held by police last night for questioning in the stabbing of Jerry Swisher, 29, of 1219 M Street Northwest.

Police had no knowledge of the stabbing until Swisher applied for treatment early yesterday at Emergency Hospital for a knife slash to his abdomen. He was questioned by Detective Sergts. Jeremiah Flaherty and Frank Ashley and, according to the detectives, would give them no information. The five, all of whom apparently knew of the cutting, were taken into custody when they also refused to answer questions.

The stabbing, police learned, occurred in the 800 block of Fourteenth Street Northwest. Swisher's condition was serious last night.

King Bill Would Give Britain Credit on Food

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, yesterday introduced a bill to modify the Johnson and Neutrality Acts to enable Great Britain to purchase farm products on credit in the United States.

The Johnson Act prevents loans or credits to any nation in default on war debts; the Neutrality Act cuts off credits for belligerents.

Neely, New W. Va. Governor, May Defer Assuming Office

By the Associated Press

Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, predicted yesterday that the next president of the State Senate would serve for a short time as Governor of West Virginia.

He based his opinion upon the position of Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, and Governor-elect, as chairman of the committee which will direct the ceremonies at the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

Neely, he said, probably would wish to retain the honor of directing those ceremonies, especially because they will go down in history as the first third-term inauguration.

"It is highly probable in my opinion," Holt said, "that, considering all circumstances, the president of the Senate will become Governor of West Virginia for a time at least.

"Therefore," he continued, "organization of the State Senate when it convenes early in January will be of highest importance to Senator Neely.

"If an anti-Neely Senator should be chosen as president, of course the probabilities would change."

The State Legislature convenes on Wednesday, January 8, and organization caucuses will be held on the preceding night, well in advance of the State inauguration date—January 13.

Under constitutional provisions Neely, whose Senate term has two more years to run, could, if he wished, defer taking office as Governor for an unlimited length of time, permitting the State Senate president to serve meantime. If such a program were followed, Neely not only would remain in Washington for the national inauguration on January 20, but would attain the high Senate post of chairman of the judiciary committee.

Neely, unavailable for comment in Washington, has made no public statement of his plans for resignation from the Senate and inauguration as Governor.

Md. 'Triangle' Slayer Gets 12-Year Term

Clifford Sentenced For Killing Husband Of Paramour

By the Associated Press

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 8.—A 12-year sentence in the State penitentiary was imposed by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan today upon John H. Clifford, restaurant worker recentely convicted of the "triangle" slaying of Kermit Bailey.

Clifford, accused of shooting Bailey when they and Mrs. Clifford met in Riverside Park last May, was convicted of second-degree murder by a circuit court jury that deliberated 18 hours.

A motion for a new trial, filed several days ago, was withdrawn by Defense Counsel Albert A. Doub, jr. The maximum penalty is 18 years, but Judge Sloan said a more lenient sentence was justified by Clifford's poor health.

Clifford pleaded self-defense at his trial last month, saying that when the three met in the park, Bailey made a threatening movement toward his hip pocket. Other testimony was given to the effect that Bailey was unarmed.

Clifford said that Bailey had told him he and Mrs. Clifford "had been on intimate terms for two years." He said he thought that the question of a divorce and custody of his child—his main concern—were to have been discussed at the park meeting.

Mrs. Clifford, testifying that the three had agreed to meet in the park and discuss the triangular situation, said under cross-examination that she did not love her husband, nor did she love him when they were married.

Navy-Notre Dame Fans Advised on Cab Racketeering

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Public Service Commission served notice today that any "taxicab racketeering" in connection with the Navy-Notre Dame game here tomorrow was a matter for settlement by customers, cabbie—and a cop.

Paul Holland, chief engineer of the commission, noted that the law provides specifically that taxi drivers must charge according to meter rates. A flat charge—frequently $2 is demanded by cab drivers for transportation to Baltimore Stadium when Navy plays here—is illegal.

"The commission itself has no police power in such cases," Holland warned. "Customers who believe they have been overcharged can make an immediate complaint to the nearest officer and demand arrest of the driver."

Holland added that, if no policeman was available, taxi patrons should take the name of the cab driver involved, the cab's license number, the time of day, and other pertinent details and forward the information to the commission, requesting a refund.

Workman Buried For Three Hours In Ditch Cave-in

A 29-year-old Maryland man was treated for a punctured lung at Montgomery County General Hospital last night after he was buried for more than three hours by the cave-in of a ditch in Silver Spring, Md.

William Fraser, colored, of Spencerville, the injured man, and Nat Hill, colored, 40, of Sandy Spring, were laying sewer pipe when the ditch caved in. Fraser was buried under four feet of rocks and mud.

Volunteer firemen, under the direction of Chief John Oden, extricated Fraser after three hours' digging in which they were forced to shovel to a depth of 11 feet. Hill worked his way free unassisted. He was uninjured.

D. C. Baby Girl Feared Kidnaped

The apparent abduction of a 20-month-old colored girl was under investigation by police last night.

No trace has been found of the child, Lorraine Vaughn, since she was taken from her home, 907 Sixth Street Northwest, by a young colored woman, October 28.

Ida Vaughn, mother of the baby, told police the young woman, about 20, had been coming to her home for several weeks and appeared to be fond of the child. On numerous occasions, she said, the visitor took Lorraine and her 3-year-old son walking and to market.

On October 28, Mrs. Vaughn said, the woman took both children with her when she went to the K Street Market. The boy was found some on Seventh Street Northwest. The on Seventh Street Notrhwest. The woman and infant girl had disappeared.

Bombing Fatal To Two Laid To Mistake

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

FIGURES IN TRAGEDY—William Rebhorn, 19, and his sister, Lois, 18, were killed in a bomb blast which shattered their family automobile as they were about to get in the car.

Coal Operator Target Of Lethal Device in Scranton, Police Hint

By the Associated Press

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 8.—Investigators checked tonight the possibility that a bomb which killed a son and daughter of Scranton's health director was intended for a coal company executive whose home was blasted seven years ago.

District Attorney Michael J. Eagen announced this theory as police of at least three cities joined the search for whoever planted a bomb in the family automobile of Dr. Earl H. Rebhorn. As the physician's son, William, 19, and daughter, Lois, 17, were about to enter the car last night, they were blasted to pieces.

Louis Sanner, superintendent of the Volpe Coal Co., whose home was bombed in 1933, lives only a block from the Rebhorns in the fashionable "hill section."

$8,500 Rewards Posted

"It is possible," the district attorney said, "that the person who planted the bomb may have stopped in the wrong block last night."

Meanwhile, reward offers rose quickly in the outraged community until they totaled $8,500. The Lackawanna County Commissioners voted a $5,000 reward after the Scranton Times put up $2,500 and the city and a local merchant $500 each.

Police questioned one suspect but indicated he would be released soon because of new clews.

"How could anybody do a thing like this?" Dr. Rebhorn said in a choked voice as he offered aid to investigators. "Nobody who knew those two kids could have meant it for them. If it had been me it wouldn't have been so much lost. But why should it be done to them, with their whole lives ahead of them?"

Grudge Theories Studied

County Detective Joseph J. Rafter said Scranton police and detectives and explosives experts from New York, Philadelphia and New Jersey were working on these theories:

That the bomb was placed by a former patient nursing a grievance against Dr Rebhorn.

That the killer mistook the Rebhorn car for another.

That Dr. Rebhorn's position as director of public health made him the target of racketeers.

That a former city employe, believing that the physician was responsible for his dismissal, planted the bomb.

Dr. Rebhorn said he had "no known enemies."

Policeman's Killer Sentenced to Chair

Clarence Blocker, 24, colored truck driver, was sentenced in the District Court yesterday to die in the electric chair January 17 for killing Policeman Ivan W. Thompson last June 14.

Blocker was convicted on two counts of first-degree murder. Attorney George E. C. Hayes, who was assigned to defend Blocker, will attack the judgment in the United States Court of Appeals.

Southeast Branch of D.C. Boys Club Displays Prowess at Athletics and Handicraft Art

Throng Sees Exhibit Of Organization's Work Among Youth

Nearly 600 members of the Southeast Branch of the Boys Club of Washington demonstrated handicraft and put on athletic contests for more than 400 relatives and friends last night at the branch's clubhouse at Seventeenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Southeast.

Boys from 6 to 17 took part in the program which was designed to show the work being accomplished by the Community Chest-supported agency.

A swimming meet, a touch football game in the gymnasium, boxing and wrestling were featured. More than 300 persons saw the showing of a Community Chest motion picture. The recreation program was directed by Arthur Fyfe.

Visitors saw a group of boys at work on models of Army and Navy fighting planes and two flying model airplanes propelled by tiny gasoline motors which are fed by 2-ounce mixtures of gas and oil. Paul Querry was in charge of the model-airplane unit.

The education division, headed by Miss Helen Patterson, demonstrated how the club helps members in school homework. The regular evening story hour was held under Miss Patterson's leadership.

E. L. Wheeler was in charge of the crafts work demonstration; Peter deAnna, art, and Ralph Lord, printing. Stanleigh Jenkins, in charge of all vocational activities in the city, was present.

Last night's program was under the general supervision of Charles Reynolds. A dance followed the recreation and work program.

Rabbi Silverstone Addresses Parents

Parents have a great responsibility in developing moral fibre and inspiring courage in children to enable them to face the grim realities of life, Rabbi Harry Silverstone said last night. Speaking on "Youth and Religion" at the resumption of Friday evening services at Tifereth Israel Synagogue, he called upon parents to "inspire children in a faith in a living God, in the ultimate triumph of justice and truth and in the redemption of the human race."

'Shooting' Turns Out To Be Only Marbles

Police investigating a "shooting" last night at the home of Mrs. Harry Cook, 734 Fourth Street Southeast, found that the weapons used were apparently slingshots, and the ammunition was marbles instead of bullets.

While Mrs. Cook sat in her living room, marbles were hurled through windowpanes at the rear of the house.

Officials of the Wheel of Progress announced last night that the scheduled bus trip to Harpers Ferry tomorrow has been canceled because of the Armistice Day week-end. Buses were to leave the Washington Hotel at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Four Men and Two Youths Arrested in Holdup Wave

Four men and two youths were arrested by Detectives George Williams and George Cooper, of the Fourth Precinct, yesterday for a series of holdups which culminated Monday when Herman Edwards, of 5008 Nebraska Avenue Northwest, a rent collector for the Alley Dwelling Authority, was robbed of $92 in the rear of the 1200 block of One-half Street Southwest.

The principals were identified by victims at a line-up last night. The first victim of the series of robberies was Edgar A. Poore, of 458 N Street Southwest, who was robbed and assaulted early in October.

Police also arrested yesterday a 26-year-old colored man, Wallace Martin, of 651 G Street Northwest, who was charged with robbing Henry Reinhardt, of 1916 Seventeenth Street Northwest, of $600 in the Social Security Building at Third Street and Virginia Avenue Southwest, on May 3.

Meanwhile a taxi driver, Joseph Monroe, of 10 Florida Avenue Northwest, leaped from his cab at Fourteenth and F Streets Northwest last night as his passenger, an unidentified colored man, jumped out the other side and faded into crowds on the streets.

Monroe told police his passenger had held him up at the rear of the Catholic University campus, taking $5.20 from him, and commanded him to drive downtown.

Mrs. Clara Glazer, proprietor of a liquor store at 31 Pierce Street Northwest, was robbed of $25 last night at pistol point by a colored youth.

North Randle Highlands Group Works Toward Better Schools

The job of seeing that utilities keep up with growth of a fast-expanding community, in which more than 1,000 new family units were built last year, is shouldered by the young North Randle Highlands Community Citizens Association.

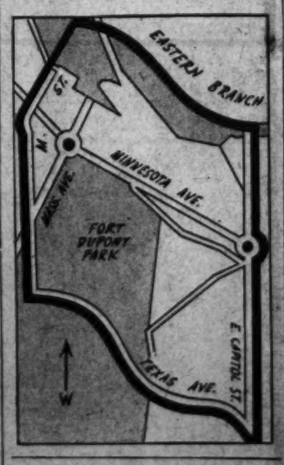
Formed five years ago, the association has achieved all but one of its major objectives, according to President Archie C. Edwards. Streets have been put through, bus service has been improved, and gas, water and light services have been extended, but school facilities are still poor, he said.

In cooperation with other citizens associations in the Southeast Washington area, the body was influential in obtaining the present portable school, with temporary buildings at Minnesota Avenue and E Street Southeast. Now it is seeking improved facilities, promised in part last year, for this elementary school.

Biggest long-range objective of the association is the development of Fort Dupont Park. Improvements are asked this year on the golf course bordering the Anacostia River in the park.

Other aims include the eventual construction of a community center for the community, completion of the grading and paving of extensions of Massachusetst and Branch Avenues, and a playground in the vicinity of Fort Dupont Park.

Although they favor suffrage for Washington, members believe that "on the whole the present District government is very satisfactory and efficient," President Edwards reported. "If we need new streets, lights, transportation, etc., we can usually get them merely by asking," he observed.



Edwards is somewhat of an authority on city government, having once worked for the municipality in Seattle, Wash. At present, he is the chief statistician of the Civil Service Commission and chairman of the new Federal employes recreation council.

Current officers include A. C. Edwards, president; Thomas Bethel, vice president; Mrs. Rose M. Thomas and Mrs. A. J. Maxwell, secretaries; and Mrs. Pratt Chronliger. Federation delegates are Bethel and Harry W. F. Glemser.

Park Planned At Site of Old Navy Hospital

Roosevelt Reveals Colonnade May Be Constructed There To Provide Offices

While the Fine Arts Commission yesterday approved several improvements for existing Capital parks, President Roosevelt revealed that the site of the old Naval Hospital, eventually to be razed, will be cleared for a new park. He also said a colonnade may be constructed there.

Speaking at his press conference, President Roosevelt said the colonnade, which has been considered by Government architects and engineers, might be used partly for office space for agencies with interest mutual with the War and Navy Departments. These departments are to be housed in new buildings on either side of the park site.

The Naval Hospital will move to Bethesda, Md., when the new center there is completed.

Awaits Highway Report

Government architects, informed of President Roosevelt's disclosure, which came in answer to a question, said they had heard of the colonnade plan many months ago but had assumed that it was shelved.

Asked if the Government was going to contribute funds for building the contemplated defense highway between Baltimore and Washington, the President said that last month Gov. O'Conor of Maryland had talked to him about the matter and that the White House awaited a report on it.

The Fine Arts Commission, meanwhile, approved designs for a new Government heating plant, a pumping station to be erected in Rock Creek Park, a group of murals for the Social Security Board building and a bicycle concession stand which will be built in East Potomac Park.

Louis Simon, supervising architect of the Public Buildings Administration, submitted plans for the west central heating plant, to be situated at Twenty-ninth and K Streets Northwest. It will be 210 by 110 feet and 90 feet tall.

New Pumping Station

The new pumping station is to replace the one which had to be removed in connection with the roadway straightening project beneath Massachusetts Avenue Bridge.

Another replacement is the bicycle concession stand which will be constructed at the head of Washington Channel. The one situated at the Tidal Basin had to go because of landscape changes effected by work on the Jefferson Memorial.

Ben Shahan is the artist who will paint the Social Security Building murals approved yesterday by the Fine Arts Commission. Members of the group made an inspection tour of the nearly completed structure, soon to be occupied by the National Defense Advisory Commission, and expressed satisfaction with it.

The arts group also voted to have the four equestrian sculptural groups which are planned for the east approach to Arlington Memorial Bridge and the entrance to Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway executed in bronze, rather than stone.

Norwegian War May Have Undone Nazis, Says Evang

Norway's two-month resistance to the Nazi invasion may be an indirect factor contributing to an ultimate British victory, Dr. Karl Evang, Norwegian director of public health, declared last night in a lecture at Pierce Hall, Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest.

To an audience including Crown Princess Martha, Evang said the Nazi high command had revealed its invasion methods in the Scandinavian push.

The two months required to subdue Norway were not "two months in vain" because they may have thrown the German juggernaut sufficiently behind its schedule to prove its eventual undoing.

Introducing Evang, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Norwegian minister, declared: "The Norwegians fought and they still fight. Although they are under the iron heel of the invader, they fight with the weapons of the spirit."

President Cites U. S. Sympathy For Luxembourg

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt voiced encouragement to the people of Luxembourg in their determination to regain full independence in receiving yesterday Hugues le Gallais, who has been charge d'affaires here, for the presentation of his letters of credence as Minister of Luxembourg. The United States has continued to recognize the grand duchy since its conquest by Germany.

"In this tragic hour in the history of your country," Mr. Roosevelt said to the minister, "the sympathy of the United States goes out to the people of Luxembourg, who may take comfort in the assurance that the people of the United States desire nothing more than to see them happy once more in full independence under their gracious sovereign."

In a statement, the minister said the occupation was far worse than during the last war, "because a Nazi administration is trying to Germanize the country."

"My fellow countrymen," he added, "are under terrible pressure; judges, lawyers, etc., are being sent to Germany to be taught the Nazi way of life, but I know all this will be of no avail. The people of Luxembourg are free men and will remain free."

Three D. C. Men, Two Women, Who Won Free Flying Courses, to Be Feted Armistice Day

Littell, of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics; Representative Melvin J. Maas (Republican), Minnesota, and Louis R. Inwood, assistant director of the Safety Bureau, Civil Aeronautics Board

Five District people, two girls and three men, were chosen last night as candidates for five flying courses on the basis of their answers to 75 questions on aviation. They are:

Luis Marden, 2113 Key Boulevard, Apartment 977, Arlington, Va.

Nils Randers-Pehrson, 6419 Ridge Drive, Brookmont, D. C.

Fay Heard, 1700 Rhode Island Avenue, Northwest.

Cheshire Cox, 2507 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Of several hundred who entered the contest October 16, only 76 went the whole route. Nevertheless, the three judges worked until late last night, checking the answers and gradually narrowing the field to the five winners.

The winners, who will be notified of their success today by the Aero Club of Washington, will be guests of honor Monday night at the Aero Club's Armistice Day ball at the Raleigh Hotel. There they will meet each other and Arthur Godfrey, one of the sponsors of the contest and dance to the music of the NBC Orchestra.

Judges were Representative Melvin J. Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve aviation; Louis R. Inwood, assistant director of the Safety Bureau, Civil Aeronautics Board, and R. E. Littell, of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. The two latter substituted for their chiefs, Jerome Lederer and William P. MacCracken, who were called out of the city.

The flying courses, which will include a complete ground course and eight hours of dual flight instruction for each winner, were sponsored by The Washington Post, Arthur Godfrey, the Aero Club, Columbus University Junior College and Beacon Airport. Each winner must undergo the standard physical examination for a CAA private pilot license and, should any be eliminated, his or her place will be taken by the next in order in the contest.

D.C. Officials and Civic Leaders Do Honor To Maj. Brown for Reduction in Auto Deaths

PATROLBOY PINS MEDAL ON POLICE CHIEF—Left to right—Burton W. Marsh, of the American Automobile Assoiation; Mickey Curtin, captain of Hine Junior High School's safety patrol, presenting Chief of Police Brown with a medal for having performed distinguished service in school safety, and Henry Patriarca, of the Police Boys Club

For his efforts toward reduction of traffic deaths in the District, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, was honored yesterday by a group of city officials and civic leaders. The group met at the Willard Hotel under auspices of the District of Columbia Motor Club.

Burton W. Marsh, head of the American Automobile Association's traffic engineering and safety department, extolled Maj. Brown for instituting the police coordinator system in District public schools whereby a police officer in each precinct is assigned to aiding school safety patrols.

"His foresight and leadership have saved many child lives and prevented many child injuries," Marsh said.

He pointed out that during Maj. Brown's tenure of office "traffic fatalities have steadily decreased since 1934 from 135 to 84 in 1939, and with a yet lower record so far this year." Downward trends in crime also were emphasized.

The record of Richmond B. Keech, corporation counsel, was commended by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, and William H. Garrison, retired police inspector, who "broke in" Maj. Brown when he was a rookie.

Mickey Curtin, 13, captain of the schoolboy patrol of the Hine Junior High School, presented a medal to the major on behalf of the school patrols in Washington.

John L. Vandegrift, chairman of the advisory board of the D. C. Motor Club, presided over the luncheon. Guests included:

Inspectors W. E. Holmes and Arthur E. Miller and Capt. Milton D. Smith, Metropolitan Police Department; Commissioner David McCoach, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Francis G. Addison, jr., Bishop James E. Freeman, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Judge Walter J. Casey, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst and John Ihlder.

700 Christian Endeavor Youths Are Urged To Accept Greater Spiritual Responsibility

Seven hundred Christian Endeavorers were urged last night to accept greater spiritual responsibility and to strengthen their moral convictions and faith.

Representing about 100 societies from six States and the District, they met at Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, Ninth and Maryland Avenue Northeast, and Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D Streets Northeast, for the opening of the eighth annual Middle Atlantic Regional Endeavor Conference.

Addressing the adult and young people's section at Keller Church, Dr. Charles L. Hussey, of Philadelphia, said many evil forces were trying today to encourage domestic infidelities and break down Christian faith and morals, and point out that "we can't make our lives count unless we cast them into the great stream of tradition."

Speaking before the high school age group at the same hour at the other church, the Rev. Harold Cheyney, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Newark, N. J., and former field secretary of the Maryland Endeavor Union, called upon delegates to assume more personal responsibility in their programs. One of the faults of the modern church, he said, is that many members are willing to hold responsible offices without doing any of the required duties.

Miss Pauline Shoemaker and Rex Barger led the assemblies of the young people-adults and high school groups, of which they are respective District presidents.

As the convention opened at the two churches, discussions were held on Officers, Devotional and Quiet Hour, Lookout and Publicity, Missionary and Stewardship, Recreation, Citizenship and Junior Superintendents. Delegates attended from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, the District and Northern Virginia.

An amusing sidelight was revealed by the Rev. Harold J. Mumper, pastor of Keller Church, who pointed out that the church is temporarily without an organ, because the old one has been dismantled, and the new one has been delayed because certain organ factory employes have gone into military service.

At the high school age assembly at the Ninth Street Church, three Endeavor groups were honored for having the highest attendance at meetings during October. Mount Rainier Christian group received first award, Chevy Chase Baptist, the second, and Potomac Heights Christian, the third.

Both sections met at Ninth Street Church later in the evening for a social gathering.

High spot of today's program will be a fellowship banquet at 6 p. m. at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H Streets Northwest, with the principal speaker as Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, and president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor.

A sunrise service will be held tomorrow at 8 a. m. on the west steps of the Capitol, where Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church here, and new chaplain of the District Police and Firemen's Society, will speak.

Northwood Park To Join Civic Unit

The Northwood Park (Md.) Citizens Association last night voted to join the Montgomery County Civic Federation at a meeting held at the Indian Spring Country Club.

Elected as delegates to the federation were Stanley Willis, William Wright and Owsley Vose; alternates, Harry B. Horne, Percy W. LeDuc and Leroy Gritzan.

Following a talk by Rock Kirkham, National Boy Scout executive, the association voted to sponsor the formation of a scout troop at Four Corners, Md. Arthur Fillius, a magician, entertained the gathering.

Brightwood Citizens Ask For Bus Line

New Fifth Street Route to Takoma, D. C., Sought With Sunday Service

Inauguration of a schedule insuring a bus every ten minutes out Fifth Street Northwest to Takoma D. C., and Sunday bus service over that route were urged last night by members of the Brightwood Citizens Association, who also reiterated their request for a crosstown bus through Rock Creek Park.

The crosstown bus would save teachers of Paul Junior High School, at Eighth and Oglethorpe Streets Northwest, an hour each morning in coming to school, Principal Thomas Ferry asserted.

To follow through a previous association request that renewal of the permit of a slaughterhouse at the rear of 812 Kennedy Street Northwest be denied, a committee of three was appointed by President Charles W. Ray. Committee Members Samuel A. Swiggett, J. W. Ferriter and A. Y. Casanova will take the problem up with District Health Department officials, to whom the association was referred by the Commissioners.

Dr. Thomas J. Holmes, principal of Calvin Coolidge High School, who attended last night's meeting, was made an honorary member of the Brightwood association by unanimous vote of its members.

Members admitted into the citizens' body last night were Mrs. Kenneth R. Peirce, of 806 Kennedy Street Northwest, and Mrs. Elian McD. Reed, of 907 Jefferson Street Northwest.

Association members voted to recommend a stop sign at the Southwest corner of the Rittenhouse Street and Piney Branch Road Northwest intersection, and to thank Traffic Director Van Duzer for traffic lights recently placed within the Brightwood area.

Community Center At Silver Spring Elects

H. Brooks Perring was elected president of the Silver Spring (Md.) Community Center last night at a meeting held at the Montgomery-Blair High School. He succeeds William F. Carlin.

Elected vice president of the group was Frank B. Proctor. William B. McKinnie was elected secretary and Miss Louise Whitney, treasurer. Elected to the board of directors to serve with the president and vice president were Carlin, Mrs. John C. Keele, president of the Silver Spring Women's Club, and William B. Marks, principal of the Takoma-Silver Spring High School.

William Hall, landscape architect for the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, showed layout drawings for the proposed community center field in the rear of the Silver Spring Armory on Montgomery Avenue.

It was announced that work on the project will begin shortly under the sponsorship of the National Youth Administration. The field, which will include a baseball diamond, football gridiron, bandstand and other recreational facilities, will be completed at no cost to the county except for engineering supervision, drainage and sanitation, it was pointed out.

The possible formation of a stamp club in Silver Spring also was discussed.

Mrs. Neff Chosen President of New Church Society

Mrs. J. Luther Neff, of 3738 Jenifer Street Northwest, wife of the pastor of Wesley Methodist Church in Chevy Chase, was chosen president of the new Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Washington West District, Methodist Church, at its organization meeting yesterday at Woodside Methodist Church, Silver Spring.

MRS. NEFF

Fifty-three Societies of Christian Service in the West Washington District, with a charter membership of 3,700 women, sent representatives to the meeting, at which Mrs. Samuel McIntosh, of Foundry Methodist Church, was named vice president; Mrs. Leo H. Paulger, of Foundry, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John H. Ray, Emory Church, recording secretary; and Miss Charlotte Seaton, St. Paul's, treasurer.

Following legislation of the new Methodist Church, all women's work in congregations is being merged into Societies of Christian Service.

Navy Coach Predicts Close Battle With Irish

Midshipmen Keyed Up To Stop Irish

62,000 Fans to Jam Stadium at Baltimore For Power vs. Power Battle This Afternoon

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Nov. 8.—From every conceivable standpoint that Navy-Notre Dame ball game tomorrow in Baltimore will be a "honey."

First of all, ideal weather is in prospect for the 62,000 who grabbed off every available ticket for Maryland's biggest and most colorful football contest of the year.

The power vs. power clash of Notre Dame's unbeaten eleven and the Navy's best gridiron machine in years will provide rabid football fans with ample reason for going through the motions of every play in the stands. The kick-off is slated for 2 p. m.

Even the most unconcerned woman—who may not understand the intracacies of the game like the "Monday morning" quarterbacks—will have something to cheer about.

The largest regiment in the Academy's history—2,596 men—will parade before Federal, State and Baltimore City officials to the tune of martial music furnished by the Academy's Band and Drum and Bugle Corps. The regiment also will perform eight card tricks between halves and Bill VIII, the Navy goat, too, will entertain.

Fashions To Be Seen

If that's not enough in the way of side entertainment, then there's always the fashion display put on annually by Maryland women at the Navy-Notre Dame game.

It goes without saying that the peanut peddlers and automobile parkers will do a landoffice business.

Maj. Emery (Swede) Larson, Navy's headcoach, today predicted a "real tough, close battle." Notre Dame, he said is "bound to be improved over Saturday's letdown against Army."

The Middies, too, will be fighting to avenge themselves for the defeat last week inflicted by Pennsylvania.

Navy's hopes were heightened today by the announcement that Joe Sliwka, regular right guard, has recuperated from his cold and will be able to play. He will not start, however.

Middies in Drill

The Sailors staged a signal practice today with Bob Leonard, placement kicker par excellence, sharpening up his toeing in case his team might need an extra 3 points via field goal.

The reserve line is composed of Bob Zoeller and Lars Wanggaard, ends; Ken Steen and Dick Opp, tackles; Sliwka and Vic Rowney, guards, and Hal Harwood, center.

Probable Line-ups

| Notre Dame. | Position. | Navy. |
|---|---|---|
| Dove | L.E. | Foster |
| Gallagher | L.T. | Fleihmann |
| Kelly | L.G. | Vitucci |
| O'Reilly | Center | Sims |
| Gubanich | R.G. | Svendsen |
| Ziemba | R.T. | Chewning |
| O'Brien | R.E. | Froude |

Notre Dame Cancels 'Secret' Drill Here

Coach Elmer Layden, of Notre Dame, took one glance at hundreds of curious fans in Griffith Stadium yesterday and canceled what was programmed as the Irish's "secret practice."

The Notre Dame squad, 36 strong, contented itself with mere limbering-up drills and field-goal kicking practice.

The slender Irish coach, bundled in a greatcoat in the chill wind, refused to hazard any guess of the result at Baltimore today, where his team meets Navy.

"I'll be satisfied with any score, but there's one condition—it must be in our favor," he said.

Advised that Navy showed to advantage last week against Penn except when Navy backs were throwing passes that could be and were intercepted, Layden smiled.

"I hope Swede Larson will use that same play against us," he said.

Layden stated that Milt Piepul, crashing fullback, would definitely be in the game tomorrow despite an injury that kept him idle last week. "We need him in there," he said. "The only place where we are more than two deep is in student managers. We've got a great squad of those."

End of Hoya-Terp Grid Relations Seen

Today's Game and 1941 Meeting Expected to Be Last Unless Maryland Improves Brand of Football

By Jack Munhall

Georgetown and Maryland meet at 2:30 this afternoon at College Park to renew for the seventh time in modern history this vicinity's fiercest football feud, but ere dusk this evening there likely will have been struck another blow which soon must result in the smashing of gridiron relations between Hoyas and Terps.

Georgetown for two years has been out of Maryland's football class and there is no reason to believe that the cycle will again swing back to the Old Liners, as attested by the 33-0 licking Hoya frosh dealt Terrapin yearlings yesterday.

The Hoyas will enter today's game as prohibitive favorites to inflict upon Maryland a defeat far worse than last year's 20-0 rout, and there should be no doubt in the mind of any sports fan that such a situation can not long endure.

Maryland Must Build Up

If Georgetown and Maryland are to continue what has always been a cordial and successful football rivalry and which was until 1939 a very close one, then Maryland has got to build up to Georgetown's strength on the gridiron.

The Hoyas have definitely gone "big time" in football. It is no secret. School officials, alumni and students all want a winning team at the Hilltop and no legitimate means is being overlooked to achieve this aim. Georgetown has a fine coaching staff, headed by Jack Hagerty, and it is getting top-notch material.

In contrast, behold Maryland with its constantly ebbing gridiron tide. Whereas Georgetown is making rapid strides, Maryland is falling back. Last year the Terps, failing to win a single major game, experienced their worst football season in modern times. This year their record is as bad, or worse, if you judge it on comparative scores. Hampden-Sydney started the Terps' 1940 downfall with a stunning 7-6 upset in the opening game. Since Maryland has been walloped by Penn, 51-0, beaten, 19-6, by Virginia, and held to a 6-to-0 victory by a poor Western Maryland team.

Terps Are Keyed Up

Thus since Georgetown is out of Maryland's football class, and Maryland is showing no signs of approximating a parity in strength which would again make their football game the feature of the local season, it takes no mystic power to guess the two will play no more after 1941. Next year's game already is scheduled for November 8. It will be Georgetown's home game and probably will be played at Griffith Stadium.

Withal, today's game may not be quite as lopsided as one might expect. As Al Woods, spokesman for the three Terp coaches, put it, Maryland will play its best game of the season against Georgetown.

But, as Woods added, it won't be good enough. Still there are two important reasons why the margin of Georgetown's victory may not be more than three or four touchdowns. One is that the Hoyas won't go "all out," what with Boston College next on the slate in a game that will mean everything to

Stieg's Horse Is Second in Garden Show

Hi-Ho Beaten Out By Dr. Lang's Entry After Jump-Offs

By Anne Hagner

Madison Square Garden, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The National Horse Show moved into its second day with more than customary excitement for matinee time in Madison Square Garden as Dr. E. J. Laing's Foggy Morn won the current phase of the Knockdown-and-Out championship event over Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho after a tough session of jump-offs.

Miss Stieg's mare, only District of Columbia entry at the show, clicked over the course in great form for the first trip around, tying with Dr. Laing's chestnut and Walbri Hall Farm's Marina, ridden by Janey Briggs. In the jump-off, however, Hi-Ho knocked down the first fence of the tricky in-and-out, thus bowing to Foggy Morn's clean performance.

Miss Stieg's Horse Fails

Hi-Ho's ribbon winning came just a few hours after she went astray in the elimination for the difficult "pen" event this morning, when she failed to take off for a tight post and rail fence and gave her young owner-rider a taste of Garden tanbark. Although Hi-Ho suffered a small cut on her knee in the mishap, Miss Stieg hopped back up and finished the course with only one-half a fault. The fall eliminated her from the "pen" finals, but fate evened the score by qualifying her for the knockdown-and-out championship, to be held next Tuesday evening, by virtue of her later performance.

Mrs. Renwick Wins

Totally a "dark horse" in preclass predictions, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Renwick's Pamuck, from Charlottesville, Va., pulled a surprise victory by winning the coveted Frank Melville Memorial Challenge Trophy, for working hunters.

The well-mannered chestnut, making his first bid for big-time show honors, turned in a beautiful

'Skins Inept Drills Worry Ray Flaherty

Coach Fears Dodgers Will Win, Unless His Team Perks Up

His Redskins may be leading the league and they may be the toast of Washington fans, but Head Coach Ray Flaherty is not entirely delighted with his ball team. He said so yesterday as the Redskin squad filed into the dressing room after a workout at Griffith Stadium.

"If they go into Sunday's game against Brooklyn with no more enthusiasm than they're showing in practice this week, we'll get licked," said Flaherty.

The Redskins' coach, who can moan with the best in the latter days of any week, was obviously displeased with his squad. "Practice is getting to be work for 'em now. They don't go at it with the same zip they had early in the season. This always happens to every football team. We're ruined if we can't shake it off."

No matter what the league records say about the comparative abilities of the Redskins and the Brooklyn Club, Flaherty is convinced that his team will have to render one of its peak performances to beat back the Dodgers.

"They gave us a battle of it earlier in the season," he said, "and they have too many good football players to be taken lightly. They're a dangerous club as far as I'm concerned. Any team with Ace Parker in its backfield is."

Contributing to Flaherty's serious mien, no doubt, is the fact that Sunday's game is, in one respect, the most crucial battle of the season for the Redskins. It is possible for the Washington club to clinch the Eastern division championship if it beats the Dodgers and the New York Giants are licked on the same day.

There will be no change in Flaherty's strategy as far as his starting team is concerned. The backfield, featuring Sammy Baugh and Jimmy Johnston, will take the field at the start and be replaced at the end of the first period by the No. 2 team, featuring Frank Filchock and Dick Todd in the backfield.

Several thousand Washington fans will accompany the Redskins to Brooklyn, leaving on special trains this afternoon and tomorrow morning. Ebbetts Field is already a sell-out, according to Brooklyn reports. The Redskin players will entrain today at 4 p. m., unaccompanied by Flaherty. He will see the first half of the Navy-Notre Dame game at Baltimore before making connections with the Redskins' train.

Nats Let Contract For Night Baseball

Seven Games Will Be Played at Stadium; $130,000 Lighting System To Be Installed; League Grants Permission

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

An about-face by Clark Griffith has assured night baseball for Washington next season. The Nats will play seven home games under the Griffith Stadium floodlights which will be installed at a cost of $130,000.

The Nats' owner announced yesterday that he had surrendered to the trend toward night ball in the big leagues after stubbornly resisting it for five years, during which he often declared "It isn't natural."

At a luncheon at the Willard Hotel, Edward B. Eynon, secretary-treasurer of the Nats, announced that installation of the lighting system would begin at once. Griffith, who was to have attended the luncheon given for officials of the contract company and the sports-writing press, was detained at home by illness.

Permission has already been received by the Washington Club from the American League for the scheduling of seven night games in 1941, Mr. Eynon stated. Night games will be played in midweek. A league rule limits each club's home games at night to seven.

Last spring Griffith melted in his attitude toward the lights and planned their installation for the 1940 season, but he suddenly junked the scheme. A battle with the contractors over the cost found Griffith bitter.

"It's a hold-up," said Griffith at that time. "They want too much money. Anyway, I never did like night ball."

He estimated that the overall cost of the installation of lights at that time would be $150,000.

Latest in Equipment

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. won the contracts to install the lights, which will develop 180,000,000 candle-power and will give Griffith Sta-

Brown Rated Slight Choice Over Army

Special Dispatch to The Post

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Beaten only by Colgate's powerful eleven, Brown ruled a slight favorite to trip Army on the Michie Stadium gridiron here tomorrow afternoon.

The Bruins' tentative starting line-up includes nine lettermen from last year's squad. Arnold Eggert, left guard, was a reserve in 1939 and Hal Detwiler, left halfback, saw little service, but all the others are experienced players.

Brown is at peak physical strength, and will invade West Point boasting victories over Holy Cross, Yale, Tufts, Rhode Island State and Wesleyan.

Army, too, is almost free of injuries for this, the final game at Michie Stadium this season. Only Wingbacks Kearie Berry and Dick Hennessy were hurt in the Notre Dame game. Hennessy is lost for the year, but Berry will be in shape in two weeks.

Famed Grid Trophy, Center of Controversy For 37 Years, at Stake in Game With Michigan

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—Balanced on a precarious perch in this feud between Michigan and Minnesota football teams here Saturday is an old brown jug of the days, when a water boy needed as much beef and brawn to lug it around as the players themselves.

One of the most famous football trophies in the country, the jug has been the center of controversy between the two teams since 1903.

The jug was forgotten in the Michigan dressing room after a memorable 6-to-6 tie in 1909 and was found by Oscar Munson, now equipment custodian.

In 1909, the next meeting between the two teams, the jug was made a permanent trophy. Watching the game Saturday will be Munson, Fielding Yost, Michigan athletic director, and Doc Cooke, retired Minnesota athletic figure, all of whom were instrumental in making it a bone of contention.

Since 1909 Minnesota has won the jug 9 times and Michigan 14. The Gophers have had it six years in a row now with two apparently evenly balanced teams fighting for its possession in the top attraction of the country tomorrow.

For Tommy Harmon, Michigan's great All-American halfback, there'll be something besides the brown jug and a Michigan victory on his mind Saturday. He'll be out for a little personal vengeance. Minnesota has stopped him cold. In two straight years he hasn't produced a score against the Gophers.

Dutch Girl Claims New Swimming Record

Amsterdam, Nov. 8 (AP).—A world swimming record for the 500-meter breaststroke was claimed today by Jopie Waalberg, Dutch girl, who was clocked in 7:49.9. The recognized mark of 7:58.8 was set by Inge Sorensen, of Denmark, in February, 1939.

G. U.-Maryland Harriers Compete at College Park

As a prelude to the Georgetown-Maryland varsity football game this afternoon at College Park, freshman and varsity cross-country teams of the two schools will clash in the morning.

The frosh are scheduled to get away at 10:30 a. m., and the varsity runners a half hour later.

Minnesota Rooters Gather Here Today

The sixth football party of the Minnesota State Society of Washington will be held today at 2400 Sixteenth Street Northwest, starting at 2:45 p. m., with the play-by-play account of the Minnesota-Michigan game as a main attraction. All alumni of either school are cordially invited.

Murrays Play Ballston

The Ballston Skulls will play host to the Murray A. C. tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the Ballston stadium field. In a preliminary game, Barcraft Boys Club will engage Lyon Park at 1 p. m.

Tommy Harmon Captures Youth Vote Easily

Eager just to touch their hero, admiring Minnesota youngsters swarmed around Tommy Harmon, of Michigan, yesterday during a lull in the Wolverines' practice for today's game with Minnesota. Harmon seems to be enjoying the mauling, as evidenced by his broad grin

With Shirley Povich

POVICH

"Dear Mr. Povich," writes a lady who appends neither her name or telephone number, "I find myself utterly at a loss these days when the conversation turns to football. I don't know a first down from a field goal and am embarrassed no end when with my football-minded friends.

"Reading the sports pages hasn't helped. Just when I was beginning to believe that I am familiar with some of the football terminology I come face-to-face with something the football writers call a mouse-trap play. Yesterday, I decided to give up, but today I am determined all over again to learn something about football.

"Yours is such a kind, honest face that I feel sure you will help me. Would you be kind enough to acquaint me with the football lexicon?"

Sure.

DEEP REVERSE—That which happened to Willkie in the Bronx after his success Upstate.

THROWN FOR A LOSS—Usually associated with an Italian military maneuver in Greece which the official communique calls "an advance on all fronts."

STATUE OF LIBERTY PLAY—France's gift to American football; renovated each year by any team that can find a sucker for it.

THE MOUSE-TRAP PLAY—Better known as Abie's Irish Rose, because the world beat a path to its door.

ILLEGAL PASS—A play that is apt to land a masher in the jug unless the girl smiles at a point more than 5 yards behind the line of scrimmage.

QUICK-KICK—The first bleat of a new-born babe as he notes the state of the Nation.

OFFSIDE—The position of the samplers of public opinion who on Tuesday morning were predicting the defeat of the third term.

ILLEGAL USE OF HANDS—The antics of the woman driver who is waving to a friend, flicking the ashes off her cigarette or signaling a left turn just before she turns right.

CLIPPING—Transoceanic flight in a clipper. A new word.

TOUCHBACK—The ten bucks you never expected to see again.

HORN ON THE PLAY—Merely a trick expression of the man on the public address system who knows it all and will tell you what was wrong as soon as he finds out himself.

SINGLE WING TO RIGHT—For dinner guests too bashful to come right out and ask for a drumstick.

OLD ARMY GAME—Conservative football; usually a scoreless tie; the kind of college football that has made pro football popular.

FORWARD PASS—A pass in a forward direction.

LATERAL PASS—A pass in a lateral direction.

BRENNER PASS—A pass in the Balkans' direction, after a long huddle.

DEAD BALL—A quaint expression used to denote the fact that the ball is dead.

FIELD GENERAL—The quarterback who has every right to be on the field as distinguished from the field Marshall.

SHADOW OF GOAL POSTS—No place for any self-respecting team to be if the other side has the ball.

COACHING FROM SIDELINES—The unethical tactics that have raised the modern soliloquy: To beef, or not to beef.

AERIAL PYROTECHNICS—Just the same as and no different from air attack.

NOTRE DAME SHIFT—We did hear, somewhere, that Twentieth Century-Fox was outbidding Warner Brothers.

ALL-AMERICANS—What those Slavic boys become after they drop a few vowels and a half-yard of consonants.

UNBEATEN AND UNTIED TEAM—Usually a team with an easy schedule and always worried about next week.

6-2-2-2 DEFENSE—You'll have to ask the radio announcers. It's either a secret weapon, or there are 12 men on the field.

WE WUZ ROBBED—Exclamation of the inebriated fan who thinks his team got a dirty deal from the referee on a field goal attempt. He saw three balls and three sets of goal posts and he's darn sure one of those balls went through one set of those posts.

SEA OF MUD—What a football writer calls the field whenever it is anything but lightning fast.

Eyes of Grid World On 3 Games Today

Minnesota-Michigan, Texas A. & M.-S. M. U. and Stanford-Washington Battles Top Day's Schedule

By Bill Boni,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 8.—Good things come in threes, they say, and so far as football is concerned it certainly is true tomorrow.

There will be a lot of other games played, but there are three which dominate the program—Minnesota-Michigan at Minneapolis, before an expected record sellout crowd of 63,900; Texas A. and M.-Southern Methodist, with 27,500 due to be on hand at Dallas, and Stanford-Washington at Palo Alto, where 75,000 will sit in on a battle for the West's Rose Bowl nomination and Coast Conference title.

One glance at the records shows why these are games of outstanding import. Minnesota and Michigan, which probably will settle the Western Conference championship, are unbeaten and untied; Texas A. and M. has won 17 straight while S. M. U. has been tied once but is undefeated for the year; Stanford has the West Coast's only big-time clean slate, and Washington has won 'em all since its 19-14 defeat by Minnesota in its first game of the year.

Any one of these games can go either way without startling anybody, but here's the way we think they, and the other leading battles, will go (home teams first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Minnesota-Michigan (63,900)—Coach Bernie Bierman says this year's Gophers still haven't hit their peak. Last year Minnesota held Tommy Harmon to a net gain of 30 yards. Minnesota has what is probably the toughest line Michigan has faced, and some very fine backs of its own behind it. This vote goes to Minnesota.

Stanford-Washington (75,000)—The Huskies laid off a week to get ready for tis one. Their defense appears to be stouter, Stanford has proved its ability to come from behind. Rain may hurt the Stanford hipper-dipper. Hey, Mr. Weatherman—Washington.

Texas A. and M.-Southern Methodist (27,500—The Aggies won on a break a year ago in sloppy going. The same setup is predicted for

Conn Will Risk 175-Lb. Title Again

New York, Nov. 8 (INS).—Billy Conn, who is working his way up through the heavyweight hanks in the hope of getting a bout with Champion Joe Louis, may defend his light-heavyweight title once more before abdicating his throne, it was learned tonight.

Negotiations have been opened to match Tommy Tucker, of New York, with Conn in a 15-round title match in the Chicago Stadium in January. Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, is expected to confer with Promoter Make Jacobs some time next week. Jimmy Johnston, Tucker's pilot, already has agreed to the match.

Rut Coffey Off To Hagerstown Job

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., Nov. 8.—E. R. (Rut) Coffey, diminutive Winchester golf pro, will pack up for the last time in Winchester, tomorrow, and pull away in his trailer for Hagerstown, Md., where he was recently appointed pro at the Fountain Head Club, an 18-hole layout. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Coffey.

For the last seven winters, Mr. and Mrs. Coffey have packed and gone to Florida for the winter but always they returned in the spring to resume their work in Winchester.

George Washington Rated Favorite Against Bucknell Today

8,000 Fans Expected for Homecoming

Kickoff Scheduled For 2 P. M. in Colonials' First Local Day Game

George Washington's football team will come out of the dark, so to speak, this afternoon when it plays Bucknell at Griffith Stadium in its first local daylight game of the season. This is the Colonials' ninth annual homecoming engagement and a crowd of 8,000 is expected for the kickoff at 2 o'clock.

The Colonial's, sporting a so-so record of four victories in six starts, will be 8-5 favorites to defeat the Bisons who have been losing close decisions to strong opponents. George Washington's best victories to date were 20-18 over Manhattan, and 19-0 over West Virginia. Bucknell hasn't won a major game, but extended Penn State, 9-0, and Temple, 10-7, before losing.

The prospect for this afternoon is a wide-open game with both teams utilizing fast-charging lines to best advantage. George Washington's forward wall was something less than airtight against Wake Forest last week, but Coach Gene Shields has drilled his charges hard all week and great improvement is expected.

Star Players Out

Each team will be minus a star player. Sam Babich, Colonial quarterback and a good blocker, has not responded as expected to treatments for a charleyhorse and may not play.

Bucknell will be without the services of Melvin Knupp, star halfback, who is suffering a rib injury received last week in the Temple game. G. W. Coach Bill Reinhart is hoping this is not a "bear story" for in scouting Bucknell against Temple he pronounced Knupp one of the best backs on the field.

With Knupp out of the lineup, Bucknell's ground attack would be considerably weakened. Therefore the Bisons are expected to pass frequently. And since the Colonials have concentrated on passing drills all week, an aerial duel looms today. Bucknell's passing attack will feature the throwing of Walter Wenrick, while G. W. has a trio of fair flippers, Ed Williamoski, Ken Batson and Tom Grady.

Seventh Renewal of Series

This is the seventh game of the George Washington-Bucknell series, begun in 1907, and the visitors hold a 4-1 edge in victories, one game having ended in a tie.

The Bucknell team arrived yesterday afternoon and was quartered at the New Colonial Hotel. The school's 75-piece band is scheduled to arrive this morning to be on hand for the game.

American U. Frosh Routed By Bullis, 32-6

Bud Hume Stars For Winners, Scoring Three Touchdowns

American University's budding football stock dropped quite a few points yesterday because the Eagle frosh in their season's opener took a 32-to-6 shellacking from Bullis Prep on the home field.

"Bud" Hume, Bullis quarterback, was the game's outstanding star, scoring three touchdowns himself and passing to two more. He ran back the kickoff opening the third period 70 yards to one score and galloped 55 yards in the second quarter to another.

Ernest McCarthy scored the Eagles' touchdown from the 2-yard line after a 70-yard fourth period drive.

It was the third victory in four games for Bullis, which lost to the Navy Plebes and beat St. Mary's Frosh and Blackstone (Pa.) Military Academy.

Marlboro Soccermen Blank Oxon Hill, 5-0

Marlboro High School's soccer team won its fourth victory of the season by blanking Oxon Hill High, 5 to 0, yesterday on the Marlboro field. It marked the second time this year that Oxon Hill had bowed to Marlboro.

The scoring was led by Ed Dorsey and Buddy Moore who tallied two and three goals, respectively. The defensive stars were Dick Farrell and Ambrose Baden.

This Is How Trojans Treat Football Bonfire Saboteurs

Incensed University of Southern California students who watched helplessly, while a big pile of material intended for a football bon-fire rally tonight went up in flames, took sweet revenge on two captured U. C. L. A. students accused of setting the premature blaze. ## The Dook Will Defend His Hunt Title Today

1939 Champion and Milano II Co-Favorites In Feature Event at Middleburg; Outstanding Horses Compete

Special Dispatch to The Post

Middleburg, Va., Nov. 8.—Richard E. Riegel's The Dook, 1939 winner of the Glenwood National Steeplechase, 3-mile brush race, will be on hand tomorrow to defend his title in the feature event at the eighth fall meeting of the Middleburg Hunt Race Association at the Glenwood Park course. He will find stiff competition in Milano, II, owned by Mrs. Louis E. Stoddard, jr., of Long Island.

The two rank as favorites in the classic number.

Milano II has twice run in the English Grand National, once carrying Mr. Stoddard, jr., for a turn and a half of the big course. He ran in the 1940 renewal of the English race and only arrived as a war refugee in this country in August. He was a winner in the Gladwood Cup, 2½-mile brush race, at West Hills, Long Island, last Saturday.

Parma Well Liked

Another well-liked horse in the field of nine that make up the Glenwood National is L. W. Robinson, jr.'s, Parma, a campaigner that all but took the National Cup last September in Fair Hills, Md., until his rider made a mistake in the course and dashed away from the final jump.

A racing atmosphere fills the town of Middleburg and surrounding community as owners, trainers and riders arrive. The course is in excellent shape and the races promise to be a highlight in the current hunting season. Sporting and society people are expected to attend in large numbers.

The R. Penn Smith, jr., Challenge Plate, 3½-mile timber race, has attracted one of the greatest timber horses in America, Blockade, owned by C. E. Tuttle, of Baltimore. Blockade, three times winner of the Maryland Hunt Cup, recently captured the New Jersey Hunt Cup. He will be ridden by Frederick Colwill. Strong contenders in the field of three will be Hugh J. O'Donovan's Justa Racket and Mrs. F. M. Gould's Hold Forth.

The Mellons Compete

The Richard K. Mellons, of Pittsburgh, and the Paul Mellons, of Upperville, have entered a large number of horses. The Pittsburgher's Never Surprised is a favorite in the Saughton Lodge event. This imported gelding is trained by J. E. Ryan and was a double winner at Rolling Rock. Other entries include Bulveta, Dispenser and Longchamp, all winners this year. They will contest with the Rokeby Stables of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mellon, whose entries are Meeting House, East Liberty and Flying Friar.

John Hay Whitney's The McClain and Sweetie Pie and Mrs. William Bromley's Shot Gun are favorites for the Brookhill, 1¼-mile flat race and last number on the program.

The first race, the Oakum, 1½ miles over hurdles, will be called at 1:30 o'clock. There are six events on the card. The feature race, the Glenwood National, is the fifth race on the program, with the R. Penn Smith, jr., preceding. The Loudoun County Hospital will benefit from the meet. Admission is free.

Marshall Routs Detroit Tech Eleven, 67 to 0

Fullback Hunt Leads Way With Four Scores To Run Total to 114

By the Associated Press

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 8.—The Detroit Tech Dynamics were something short of dynamic today as Marshall rolled to a 67-0 whitewashing in which Fullback Jackie Hunt, of the Herd, shot his scoring total for the season to 114 points.

Hunt contributed 4 of his teams' 10 touchdowns on gallops of 3, 50, 19 and 73 yards, and scored another after taking a lateral from Walter Henson, sub for Harley Kuhl, on a play which covered 49 yards.

These, with touchdowns sandwiched in by Jim Roberts, who recovered Hunt's fumble over the goal line for the first score of the game, Andy D'Antoni, Kuhl and Henson, who tallied twice, added up to a total of 576 yards the Herd gained by rushing and passing.

Tech, meanwhile, was thrown for a net loss of 9 yards for its afternoon's efforts before a crowd of 4,000, and never seriously threatened to score.

The Dynamics had, in Johnny Musto, however, the best kicker on the field and twice his punts led to scoring opportunities within the 20-yard line, but both times the Tech marches were cut short by pass interceptions by the alert Marshall secondary.

The Herd counted 19 first downs to 4 for the Michigan eleven.

Scoring touchdowns—Hunt (5), Henson (sub for Hunt) (2), Roberts, D'Antoni, Kuhl. Points from try after touchdowns—Searing (sub for Pearcy) (4), Mattiford (3). Referee—Kistler (Salem). Umpire—Winters (Ohio Wesleyan). Head linesman—Chaltin (Illinois). Field judge—Taylor (Salem).

Turiello Sick; Sub to Fight Burley Here

Charley Burley, the Nation's No. 2 ranking welterweight, arrived here late last night to wind up workouts for his 10-round feature battle Monday night at Turner's Arena, and promptly was faced with a switch in opponents.

Promoters of the scrap received word yesterday from Eddie Mead, manager of Saverio Turiello, that his man would be unable to fill his contract because of a case of grippe. Frantic telephone calls and telegrams finally located one Milo Theodorescu, a Rumanian refugee, and he was tossed into the breach.

Monday's highlight, therefore, will be Burley versus Theodorescu, with the colored Burley still favored. Both fighters will drill for the public today at the Arena, Burley at 1 p. m. and Theodorescu at 2:30.

A year has elapsed since local fans witnessed the newcomer to the card, but he may be remembered as a knock-out victor over Baltimore's Charlie Gilley. Phil Furr, the District's plasterer-turned-boxer, also stood toe to toe with Milo, barely eking out a decision.

'Oh, Happy Day' Pretty Girl Returns Punt for Victory

By the Associated Press

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 8.—A sweet 50-yard punt return by a petite blond halfback proved the margin of victory today for her sorority team as University of South Carolina co-eds did their bit for "Bundles for Britain" with a benefit football game.

Pretty Doris Nash, of Charlotte, N. C., playing safety for the Pi Beta Phis, grabbed a quick kick in the first quarter at midfield and raced to the Delta Delta Delta goal for the touchdown. An end run added the extra point and ended the scoring.

Tackling was banned and a ball carrier was stopped when touched by an opponent, but there was rough contact and several players were casualties.

C. U. Rated Underdog Against Tulsa

Hurricanes Outweigh Washington Eleven; Sachon C. U. Hope

Special Dispatch to The Post

Tulsa, Nov. 7.—Outweighed about 7 pounds per man, Catholic University will be the underdog in today's important game with the beefy Tulsa eleven, conqueror of Texas Christian and Detroit.

The Cardinals, seeking to break the Hurricane's four-game winning streak and at the same time take a game that would mean much to them in national publicity, will be facing a Tulsa line that averages slightly more than 200 pounds and a backfield aggregating 180 pounds.

As usual, C. U.'s hopes for an upset triumph are vested largely in Quarterback Pete Sachon, triple-threat All-America candidate, who has starred in every game to date, leading the Cards to victories over St. Anselm, West Virginia Wesleyan and Miami.

The Catholic University squad arrived here today after a stop-over in St. Louis for a practice yesterday and Coach "Dutch" Bergman immediately hustled his team through a drill at the scene of tomorrow's game.

Each team is once beaten, Catholic University by Detroit, and Tulsa by Texas A. & M. In addition the Cardinals' record is marred by a scoreless tie with St. Vincent. Since losing to the Aggies Tulsa has won in succession over Creighton, St. Louis, T. C. U. and Detroit. An opening game victory over Washburn makes the Hurricane record five victory in six games.

Capon's Six-Man Team Wins Finale

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 8.—The six-man football team of Capon Bridge (W. Va.) High School, coached by Mike Mitchell, former Shepherd State Teachers College star, finished it's season yesterday on its home field by trouncing the Cardinals of Shepherdstown (W. Va.) High School, 36-6.

The contest was a return match for a game played earlier in the season at Shepherdstown and gave the Mitchell-coached aggregation an even break in the two games.

The victory was the second in five days for Capon Bridge.

Strider and Starry were outstanding for Shepherdstown.

Line-ups:

| Capon Bridge. | Position. | Shepherdstown. |
|---|---|---|
| Johnson | L.E. | Starry |
| Combs | Center | Bartlett |
| Conard | R.E. | Rogers |
| Nelson | L.H. | Orndorff |
| Bond | R.H. | Strider |
| Wotring | F.B. | Walper |

Referees—Abbey (Shepherd). Umpire—Slonaker (Shepherd). Head linesman—Duff (Shepherd). Scoring: Capon Bridge—Bond (2), Nelson (3), Conrad. Shepherdstown—Starry.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

This looks like a great day for the charwomen, laundry maids, 4-year-old moppets and scatter-brained burlesque girls who always make the football experts look like bums by picking 15 out of 15 in newspaper football contests. The experts, sweating over their charts, diagrams, graphs, and comparative scores list, are lucky to bat .500 in the prediction league. But give that line-up of tough games to a backstairs maid who thinks a wingback is a homing pigeon and if she doesn't knock over 15 winners in a row it will be because she crossed herself up by stopping to think.

CONSIDINE

All of the above is a cumbersome way of backing into telling you that we are today searching through the Forty-second Street penny arcades looking for an African Bushman to tell us the winners of the Michigan-Minnesota, Stanford-Washington, Texas A. and M.-S. M. U., Army-Brown, California-Southern California, Manhattan-Marquette and Fordham-Purdue games. We already know the score of the Notre Dame-Navy game. Notre Dame will win, 3-2. But those other games are terrific posers. If it weren't such a novel way of putting things, we would come out fearlessly here and now and state that, in all these games, the teams that get the breaks will be the teams that win the laurels.

Our scouts report that Michigan will be hurt by the fact that Capt. Forrest Evashevski is in really bad shape. But it is not his famed blocking for Tommy Harmon that will be missed. It is his great defensive play, backing up the line. Our scouts think that George Franck will run and out-Harmon Harmon. Another tip we get is that Purdue will be at its full strength for the first time this year, when it meets Fordham—and the Boilermakers must have been pretty tough short of full strength, for even without Mike Byelene they lost to Ohio State and to Wisconsin in the last 22 seconds. Charley Maag, of the Buckeyes, who shouldn't have been in there, beat them 17-14 with a field goal, and Wisconsin, on the last play of the game, scored on a pass play that tied the count 13-13. With the game over, but the try for the extra point still forthcoming, Wisconsin kicked and won 14-13.

Our coast spy, Bob Cahn, says that Stanford is over-rated. He says that Coach Shaughnessy has taken an average team, given it some Chicago Bears hocus-pocus, and mystified a coast conference which had been playing Standard power football for years. Washington, best of the power teams out there, has had time to scout the antics of the Stanfords. As For Texas A. and M.—S. M. U., Texas will be trying to do something that no Southwestern Conference team ever did—repeat as a pennant winner twice in a row. It's taboo to do that, down there, but what's left of a taboo when Jarring John Kimbrough smacks it around?

Blindfold yourself, get a pin, stick it through your entry blank in the contest, or pool, and lunge.

P. S.—We dropped into Washington last night to attend that Georgetown smoker at the Mayflower. And, as expected, found the old grads much more interested in next week's Boston College game than in the Maryland game of today. Found them exuding optimism, too.

It seems to us that the old grads, who can be pardoned for their enthusiasm in view of the success of the Hoyas, are banking too much on a victory over the Eagles. It will be no disgrace to the Georgetown has been playing. Herb Kopf says they're the biggest for Boston College happens to have one of the truly great teams. It is impressively unbeaten in a faster league than the one in which Georgetown has been playing. Herb Hopf says they're the biggest team in the country and fast.

There is little chance that Georgetown will catch Boston College napping. Kopf said the Eagles cuffed his Manhattan team around as if they thought his bunch was Georgetown—which indicates that the Eagles are spitting on their hands and looking forward to next Saturday's game with almost as much relish as Georgetown is showing. Boston College probably will be a 2-to-1 favorite in Boston.

But, somehow, we're going to string along with the Hoyas, even if Boston College knows it must lick them to get a Bowl bid. Maybe Georgetown is one of those Destiny clubs that the flowery writers like to write about. Let's hope so, but if Boston College does live up to the East's expectations, and wins, it will not undo the fame of a Georgetown team that came from nothing to some punkins with a minimum of credit.

Harvard Square Wins Two-Year-Old Feature at Pimlico

Ocean Blue, Favorite, Is Second

Hanger's Juvenile Takes Sagamore 'Cap by 2 Lengths; Misty Isle Is Third

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 8.—Over the same track where his sire, Bostonian, won the Preakness in the mud, Harvard Square, a 2-year-old gelding, upset the best calculations of the favorite players by winning the fourth running of the $2,500 added Sagamore Handicap today. Drawing out at every jump, the juvenile, owned by Arnold Hanger, New York construction engineer, led Crispin Oglebay's highly touted Ocean Blue to the imaginary wire by two lengths. Three lengths farther back came Joseph E. Widener's Misty Isle to be third in the field of 11 competing at 6 furlongs.

Harvard Square paid $15.70 chiefly because the majority of the shivering 7,000 fans believed Ocean Blue could not lose the race. The Blue Larkspur colt had run away from cheaper company in 1:12 in his debut. Today's time was 1:12 2-5 but the odds-on choice just lacked punch to match that of his gelded rival. Ocean Blue had marched postward as an odds-on favorite after 1 to 4 was quoted on him at one stage of the wagering.

Responded to Drive

Ocean Blue did turn back all the speed horses in the gang and appeared to be headed for a comfortable lead. Harvard Square, however, was allowed to race easily early and then responded to a drive to circle the leaders and go on to displace Ocean Blue. Misty Isle was hard handled but was held safe when the real test came. Hy Cop flattered his backers by outrunning the gang to the first turn but he was through when Ocean Blue was put to a drive.

Despite defeat Ocean Blue remains a very promising 2-year-old and is expected to carry colors in the 1941 Kentucky Derby. He was given a hard hand ride today but Jockey Eddie Arcaro did not abuse him in the second start of his career. The Milky Way Farm's After Dawn, which showed such excellent form at Laurel, was off poorly and failed to rally.

Maydig, an invader from Kentucky, upset the favorites in the fifth race to pay a $46.60 mutuel while performing for C. H. Emerson. Jockey R. L. Vedder sent him around his field and he won by three and a half lengths with the A. C. C. Stable's Ace Call second and Bright Rebel, owned by Marcus Freud, third in a limit field of a dozen.

The program opened wtih a foul claim that was not allowed. J. H. Stotler's Toddle Top won the test of a mile and 70 yards but swerved in front of Wise Brave, a tiring favorite, at the sixteenth pole. Jockey Carroll Bierman, who made the choice, made an objection against the winner but the stewards, after long deliberation, made the result official. The race was between the pair from the start and Toddle Top had the best part of a length lead when he swung into the rail. Bierman stood up in the saddle but most observers believed he overdid it. Toddle Top paid $12.50 and was ridden by Jockey W. D. Wright.

Double Pays $58.50

There was a $58.50 pay-off in the daily double after the Short Brook Farm's Cuckoo-Man won the second race by a half length from Rhoda Christmas' Cheer Me. Jockey Eddie Arcaro took Cuckoo-Man, the choice, to the front early and swung out entering the stretch while Cheer Me was saving ground. The latter moved up menacingly but hung in the final sixteenth. Hazel W was a distant third in the field of 12. The winner paid $5.70.

Kenneth N. Gilpin's Fatty, a $15 shot, won the day's steeplechase event by five lengths under a good ride by Jockey J. Brooks. The Rokeby Stable's Greenwich Time was second two lengths ahead of Montpelier's Santi Quaranti, the favorite in the starting field of ten. Forest Charm set the early pace, but lost his rider at the sixth fence.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FATTY, $15.00, $5.90, $3.70; GREENWICH TIME, $7.10, $4.20; SANTI QUARANTI, $2.60.

FATTY, in thick of forward contention from start, displaced SANTI QUARANTI to take lead, drew out gradually and was kept to drive to end. GREENWICH TIME was not hurried for mile, rallied when placed to drive, but was held safe by winner. SANTI QUARANTI took lead after three-quarters, could not resist FATTY and was weakening at close. DANNY DEEVER made several bad landings.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:51½. Off at once. Winner, A. K. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDLE ENDS, $14.70, $6.90, $4.70; KNITETTA, $6.60, $4.80; SOMALI, $9.40.

CANDLE ENDS, well placed from start, disposed of PIRATE SHIP to take command approaching half pole and drew out to win with speed in reserve. KNITETTA was well placed throughout and held on gamely in final drive. SOMALI, slow to begin, worked way to contention gradually on outside and showed good effort.

FIFTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:22. Off at once. Winner, C. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAYDIG, $46.60, $16.70, $9.90; ACE CALL, $9.90, $10.30; BRIGHT REBEL, $13.10.

MAYDIG, within striking distance from start, came around leaders to take command in bold fashion and drew out to win with speed in reserve. ACE CALL, sluggish early, came between horses with rush in stretch and closed fastest of all. BRIGHT REBEL was outrun early and made up ground on outside.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500 added. The Sagamore Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:52. Off at once. Winner, A. Stamer's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HARVARD SQUARE, $15.50, $5.00, $3.40; OCEAN BLUE, $3.00, $2.40; MISTY ISLE, $2.90.

HARVARD SQUARE, not hurried in early stages, came around horses to take command and was kept to drive to end. OCEAN BLUE was rated while following closest in pursuit of HY-COP'S pace, took command approaching stretch, but could not resist winner while under hand drive. MISTY ISLE was hard ridden and had no excuses.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. The Gunpowder. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:27. Off 4:28½. Winner, Belair Stud's b. c. (3), by Gallant Fox—Brown Betty II. Trained by G. Tappen. Value to winner, $880; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUSKY FOX, $5.80, $3.30, $2.80; VINTAGE PORT, $3.20, $2.90; PREDICATE, $4.90.

DUSKY FOX, confidently handled, was allowed to settle into best stride, came wide for racing room, took command easily and won with speed in reserve. VINTAGE PORT was rated in first flight, closed willingly under drive, but was no match for winner. PREDICATE closed with good energy. SON ALTESSE was made much use of forcing and setting pace and weakened.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. The Rustic Handicap, Grade C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:57. Off 4:57½. Winner, Milky Way Farm's b. c. (4), by Bull Dog—Wild Waters. Trained by R. Waldron. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:46⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UP THE CREEK, $10.80, $5.70, $3.30; BAR FLY, $14.10, $6.60; MOSCOW II, $3.70.

ROSETOWN, last away and allowed to settle into best stride, worked way to contention on backstretch, took lead approaching stretch, but bore out badly, carrying UP THE CREEK with her, for which she was disqualified. UP THE CREEK came to outside to improve position, but Bierman was unable to do him justice while bothered by ROSETOWN. BAR FLY moved around horses to reach contention, was taken up and sent to inside when ROSETOWN bore out and held on gamely.

By Bill Burnett

A mere 3-0 victory over Eastern apparently was not enough for Jackie Walsh, Tech High's 150-pound triple-threater, as the interhigh clubs met on a wind-swept Manual Trainer gridiron yesterday.

By way of showing his dissatisfaction, the slender quarterback hurled two touchdown passes in less than a minute of the final quarter, accounting for the greater part of a 16-0 final count.

Less than 2,000 spectators braved the bitter cold to witness Walsh's great performance, in a game which virtually clinched Tech's place in the interhigh championship game against Western and left the Trainers unbeaten in series play. But fans who turned out saw one of the best scholastic jobs of calling signals this year, on Walsh's part, backed up by Tech's knack for making the most of breaks and Sonny Morisette's educated toe.

Morisette Provides Three-Pointer

Morisette's portion of the scoring was a field goal midway of the third period, breaking an 0-0 deadlock—that appeared likely to be the final outcome—and a perfect placement after Walsh's final toss into scoring territory.

The chunky back, drafted from the bench when the Trainer's star plunger, Carelton Smallwood, rehurt his ankle in the first quarter, thus took credit for his second field goal of the season. He is the only schoolboy with a three-pointer on his record. Other efforts to Morisette's credit yesterday were two intercepted passes, good for a total of 40 yards, and a 43-yard dash off tackle to the Eastern 16, where one step on the sideline ruined a touchdown.

It was his latter excursion which set up Morisette's own successful shattering of the scoreless status of the game in the third quarter.

From the 16, where officials decided Morisette had touched the side stripe, Tech moved in three down to the 8. Back to the 15 stepped Morisette and kicked a perfect goal with the wind favoring him. In the second stanza he had tried the same stunt, but his boot from the 35-yard line into the howling wind wasn't vaguely close.

With the start of the final eight minutes, fans thought Tech would lay back and protect its precious lead. The Trainers, however, set out to get insurance.

Eastern had only one yard to pick up on fourth down on its own 21 and elected to run the ball after the change of goals. It was a costly error, for Moe Shulman was stopped in his tracks. A Walsh pass to Vern Hollidge over the center netted a first down on the 7, and there the young quarterback's talent was displayed.

Again Walsh hurled over the line, but the ball was knocked down. With Tide pass defenders well bunched, Walsh then tossed wide to the left to Hollidge on the 5, and that was one touchdown. Morisette's placement was blocked.

Morisette Grabs Pass

After the kickoff, and Eastern had tried one running play from its own 35, Morisette again stepped in to set up the game's final score. He grabbed Shulman's pass, the third of the day stolen from the lanky first-year man, and pushed and pulled his way to the Tide 15. A bullet-like Walsh pass on the first play from that point again rang the bell. It was as simple as that. Bill Dellastatious snagged it on the 8 and was over easily.

Costly to Eastern was the inability of its regular field general, Eddie Teague, to get into action. His damaged shoulder was the cause. As a result the team was guilty of numerous errors in judgment, and also lacked the spark which had been supplied by Teague as it rang up three earlier victories in the series.

Parkers Beaten By Hyattsville

After battling four periods to an 0-0 tie, Hyattsville High School soccer booters grabbed a 2-0 decision from Maryland Park High, in an overtime game yesterday on the Parkers' field. The game was played in a high gale. The winning goal was kicked by Bill Ware from the windward side of the goal posts. Until then the contest had been a nip-and-tuck battle.

This particular drive by Tech's Bill Dellastatious in the third quarter of yesterday's game with Eastern was halted, but not until a 5-yard gain had been registered. Thompson (28), Bob Pieri, Byers (20) and Manilli (32), all of Eastern, are coming in here to be sure the ball is downed. Tech wound up with a 16-0 victory

St. Albans Defeats Landon, 13-7, for Title

Winners Claim Private School Football Championship by Comeback Victory; Landon Scores First, Threatens Late

Trimming a scrappy but overpowered Landon eleven, 13 to 7, St. Albans clinched the mythical private school championship of the District of Columbia yesterday at the losers' stadium. The victory was St. Albans' eighth in the 11-year rivalry between the two schools.

Although beaten, the boys from Bradley Hill dominated the play in the first half. Their only tally came during the first few moments of the game.

Johnny Sager, Landon's passing ace, heaved an aerial from the Saints' 40 that fell into the hands of Brawner on the 25. Again fading back, Sager tossed a pass that was pulled down by Baker, who stepped across the goal unmolested. Sager then passed to Colvin for the extra point.

Throughout the first quarter the team in brown valiantly held highly favored St. Albans scoreless, but in the closing minutes of the half the Saints came to life. Chewning, from Landon's 36, tossed a pass to Fullback Cromelin on the Browns' 4-yard stripe, and then Joe Heiser plunged through guard for St. Albans' first touchdown. Chewning was stopped at the line of scrimmage on his rushing attempt for the extra point.

As the second half started, the Chewning-to-Cromelin combination began working again. After Heiser had advanced the ball to the Landon 8-yard marker, Chewning stepped back and shot a quick pass to Cromelin, who twisted his way through a maze of tacklers for the Saints' final tally. Chewning's placement was good.

As the end of the game approached, the boys in brown made two desperate attempts to score, once advancing the ball to the Saints' 8-yard line, but an alert St. Albans pass defense foiled the two thrusts with interceptions. The game ended as the Saints seemed about to score another touchdown.

Wilson Pulls Upset, Beats Riders, 7 to 0

Blocked Kick Leads To Only Score; Funk Registers Touchdown

For the first time in three years a Woodrow Wilson eleven walked off the field victorious in an interhigh contest yesterday, the Green and White upsetting a highly favored Roosevelt High School eleven, 7-0, at Wilson's new stadium before a crowd of 2,000.

A blocked kick by Right Guard Clifford Haack provided the winning margin for Wilson, which had lost heavily twice before this year. It was in the latter part of the opening period when Haack broke through the center of the Rough Riders' line and blocked a kick by Fullback Bernie Kolker on Roosevelt's 30. Phil Funk, rangy Wilson end, picked the pigskin out of the air and ran 30 yards for the only score of the afternoon. Carl Saine place-kicked the extra point.

It was the first game in which Funk had participated, having just become eligible last week. He easily was the outstanding star of the game. He caught a number of passes, and played a bang-up defensive game.

Wilson completely outplayed the Rough Riders in every department, making nine first downs to the Upshur Streeters' three. Wilson was inside the 25-yard line four times, once reaching the 4 on sensational ball carrying of Charlie Voight.

Outstanding play of the game was pulled by Roosevelt in the closing minutes. Quarterback Bob Stein threw a pass to End Dick Goodman which was good for 62 yards. The play brought the Rough Riders to Wilson's 26. This threat was cut short, however, when Wilson Halfback Jim Crain intercepted a Rider pass on his own 25. The game ended three plays later.

Sick Student Goes On Strike, Demand Right to See Game

By the Associated Press

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 8.—A University of Michigan student fled his cot in the student infirmary today, climbed a cable leading from the adjacent university power plant, and defied police and firemen for a half hour from atop a transformer—all because he wanted to see a football game.

Clad only in a hospital gown and shivering in the 40-degree cold, the student, an 18-year-old freshman, shouted to a crowd beneath his perch that university physicians contemplated his transfer to a private hospital. He would descend, he shouted, only upon assurance that he would be released in time to attend the Northwestern-Michigan football game here next week.

Police and firemen cut the entire power supply of the university campus for 20 minutes, while they climbed other cables and poles, surrounded the freshman and brought him, forcibly but safely, back to earth.

Washington Gun Club Will Hold Shoot Today

Washington Gun Club, following its usual custom, will stage a two-event shoot today over its traps at Bennings, first firing being set for 2 p. m. Visitors and members alike are eligible for prizes which will be over a 16-yard distance and on a handicap basis.

Ida Simmons Loser of Team Match Here

Women's Champion, Pannell Are Beaten by Miss Lynn and Freschi

Ida Simmons, women's duckpin champion, was on the losing end in a special three-game match last night at Clarendon Bowling Center. Teamed with Cletus Pannell, Arlington Recreation assistant manager, Miss Simmons rolled against Margaret Lynn and Joe Freschi. Scores for the special match were:

Margaret Lynn 128 105 116—349
Joe Freschi.... 113 136 134—383—732
Ida Simmons.. 119 107 103—329
Cletus Pannell 131 119 117—367—696

Miss Simmons for the past week has been instructing women on how to bowl at Eddie Goldberg's Clarendon drives.

Isemann Memorial

In memory of the late George L. Isemann, the Armistice Day mixed doubles tournament will be inaugurated tomorrow at Gene Raney's alleys in Hagerstown, Md., with entries already listed from a great many sections. A number of Washington duos have entered, among them the best the District has to offer, including Astor Clarke and Luck Rose, Lucile Young and Bob Micciotti, Caroline Hiser and Perce Wolfe, and a number of others.

Gene Raney, owner of the Hagerstown drives, is well known in Washington. Starting at the old Chevy Chase Lake Amusement Park a number of years ago, Raney now is owner of up-to-the-minute drives located in Hagerstown, Md., and Chambersburg, Pa.

The lists are still open for any Washington or nearby doubles teams and will remain so up to the beginning of the tournament Sunday morning.

Murray Near Mark

Lawrence Murray of Standard Brands utilized a triple-headed strike and three spares last night to post a 170, second high of the season in the Northeast Temple Bowling League. His team won two games from Nestle's Chocolate.

Frager's Hardware whitewashed Bright Star, Jimmy's Grill swept three from Kavakos Grill, and McKee Pontiac took big team score and set with 603 and 1,692, and won three from I. C. E. Club.

Croggon Sets Record

Zickie Croggon, Federal Litho, set a new record in the Brookland Ladies Loop by knocking the pins for a count of 145 and then going on to roll a set of 363. Eleanor Nugent, Gartrell's Champs, tied the set high, however, and helped her team take highs and set new season records of 552 and 1,548. Martha Biggs, also of Gartrell's, had a near-high set of 539. Gulf Service whitewashed Moore Hardware in three straight and went into first place in the standing.

Marie Spates of Arcade Pontiac and Mary Esten, Greyhounds, were the leading ladies in the Ladies Independent rolling last night on the Arcadia drives. Mrs. Spates' 144 took high individual game honors while Mary Esten's nice 357 garnered the set high. The Greyhounds were too good for the other quintets, taking game and set with counts of 568 and 1,619, respectively, but lost the odd game to Chestnut Farms.

Farmer, Daily News, was the standout in the Chevy Chase Commercial meet at Ice Palace with highs of 156-410. Farmer's scores helped his team take high game honors with 634. The Hot Shoppes won three games and rolled high team set of 1,799. City Motors and the Daily News boys also won all three from opponents.

Georgetown's Frosh Swamp Terp Yearlings

Sikorski, Georgydeah Star as Little Hoyas Triumph by 33 to 0

Georgetown's mighty frosh football machine rolled over the Maryland yearlings yesterday at Byrd Stadium to pile up a 33-0 score at College Park.

Led by Capt. Sikorski and Fullback Georgydeak the Hoya cubs added a tally in the first period and came back, after a scoreless second stanza, to add one more in the third, topped by 20 points in the final period. The Hoya running attack was too much for the little Liners who were unable to get their ground gaining department to click at all.

In the opening period Duffy, Hoya end, blocked Mont's attempted kick on the Terp 35. After three line bucks for a first down, Riegis, Hilltopper halfback, passed to Georgydeak on the Terrapin 1-yard line. Georgydeak ripped through center for the score and Riegis' attempted conversion was blocked by Maryland's Diggs Miller.

After a scoreless second stanza, the Hoyas added the second touchdown when Georgydeak dashed off left tackle and into the open for 31 yards and the score. Riegis passed to Georgydeak for the extra point, putting the little Hoyas ahead, 13-0.

The baby Hoya attack gained momentum in the final session and registered three more tallies. Georgydeak passed to Sikorski to send the score to 20 points. The next Georgetown thrust was another pass by Quarterback Sikorski to Skiepek for the score. Sikorski's conversion was low.

The final tally came when a Terp pass backfired on the Hoya 30-yard stripe and Kulikowski romped 70 yards for the score. The Hoyas, second string back booted the extra point between the uprights for the final blow on a 33-0 score.

Little Generals Beat Indians Of Anacostia

W. and L. High Takes 33-0 Victory From District Gridders

After being held scoreless for the opening period, Washington and Lee High's Generals turned on plenty of steam to rout a much lighter Anacostia high eleven, 33 to 0, yesterday on the Anacostia field before several hundred shivering fans.

With Russ Arnaud and Leo Urbanski carrying the brunt of the attack, the Generals scored twice in quick succession in the second period. Arnaud brought back an Indian punt 40 yards to the Anacostia 14, and Urbanski took it over after two tries. Merrill Hoover's first attempt for the extra point went wide, but the Indians were off side and on the second attempt, he made good and the Generals took a 7-to-0 lead.

After Anacostia took the ball on the kick-off and failed to gain on two tries through the line, a pass was attempted, but was intercepted by Urbanski on the 20. Two slices through the line brought the ball up to the 6. Arnaud carried it to pay dirt from there. Hoover again converted.

The teams battled on even terms most of the third quarter until a couple of Washington and Lee passes clicked to bring the oval within scoring distance and Arnaud tallied again, this time from the 3-yard stripe. The try for extra point was no good.

Two intercepted passes in the last period gave the boys from Arlington two more touchdowns. Warren Kelley grabbed an Anacostia lateral on the 40 and went the distance unmolested. Johnson's kick from placement was good. The other interception was made by Shepherd near the end of the game. He caught Barrett's wild heave on the 15 and carried over to pay dirt. Hoover missed the try for the extra point.

The heavier Generals registered nine first downs to the Indians' three. Spencer and Nolte showed best for the losers.

Hyattsville Girls, G.W. High Tie, 0-0

Playing in cold wind, Hyattsville High School girls' field hockey team and George Washington High of Alexandria, last night battled to 0-0 tie on the Prince Georges County Field, although the game was fairly well played despite the weather.

Two weeks ago at Alexandria the two teams also played a tie, the final count being 2-all. Boswell, of Hyattsville, was outstanding last night, with several spectacular passing spurts, and Goalie Reeves, of the same team, "killed" several would-be G. W. scores.

Peckingpaugh Would Welcome Cleveland Managerial Job

Fired as Indians' Pilot in 1933, Former Nat Shortstop Would Like Second Chance

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—Roger Peckinpaugh, a leading candidate for Cleveland manager in 1941, is a brave man.

He isn't scared of those big bad Indians.

"My understanding is the trouble was all between Oscar Vitt and the players," Peckinpaugh calmly commented today, "Vitt is gone now so I don't see why a new manager would have any difficulties."

Peckinpaugh was discussing a Cleveland news story quoting "two usually reliable sources" as saying Peck—fired as Cleveland manager in 1933 because the team was losing—had been chosen to pilot the 1941 club.

"I hape that's right," the former shortstop said. "I would be glad to have the job. Right now you know as much about it as I do. I haven't signed a contract and I haven't talked with Mr. Bradley (President Alva Bradley) recently. I know I'm still in the running."

Bradley plans to announce the new manager next Tuesday. He reiterated today Peckinpaugh was "one of three leading candidates," and named Luke Sewell, Indian coach, as another.

"There's something in the wind that prevents my talking about that third man at this time," Bradley added.

Peckinpaugh managed the Indians five and a half seasons, winning 416 and losing 402. The Redskins finished third, fourth three times and seventh.

A Clevelander, Peckinpaugh formerly played with the Indians and has also managed Kansas City and New Orleans. He was named most valuable player in the American League in 1925 while with Washington.

When Bradley fired Peckinpaugh in 1933 he told him:

"I still feel that you have the ability to be a successful manager, but if we don't win under you we'll have to try someone else."

Maroons Defeat Apprentice, 22-18, After Leading, 22-0

By the Associated Press

Newport News, Va., Nov. 8.—Roanoke College's Maroons rolled up a half-time margin of 22-0 against the Apprentice School in the A's grid finale here tonight and appeared on the way to a complete rout, but later had to call on all the defensive skill at their command to stave off defeat and emerge victorious by a final 22-18 count.

With Charley Andrews and Bill Hancock ripping off lengthy gains throughout the first half, Roanoke took advantage of every Apprentice lapse to amass their one-sided halftime margin.

The second half was a different story, however, as the A's with John Sargent and Cordell Woolwine, the latter a speed merchant from Princeton, W. Va., leading the way behind excellent blocking, tallied once in the third period and twice in the final canto before being halted on the Roanoke 27 as the game ended.

It took the A's but ten plays to go 71 yards for their opening score, Jim Baxter plunging for the tally from the 4-yard line.

Gonzaga Bows To G. W. High Under Lights

Presidents Stand Off Late Thrusts to Beat D. C. Eleven, 7 to 6

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Nov. 8.—On the strength of two superb goal line stands, in which they held their opponents in check from the 5-yard line, George Washington High School gridmen gained a 7-6 decision over Gonzaga High in a bitterly fought battle before 3,500 fans here tonight.

The Presidents were called on to repulse Gonzaga threats several times in the second half but the most serious thrusts came in the last quarter when the visitors were on the short end of a 7-6 count, and strove desperately to win with a passing attack that had the G. W. secondary on the run for the final 20 minutes of the contest.

Gonzaga's chance for victory faded with less than a minute to play, when Elmer Raba's attempted field goal went wide after the purple had been held for three downs inside the G. W. 5-yard line. Only a few minutes earlier, the Purple had moved inside the Presidents' 10-yard line, only to be repulsed by four determined G. W. defensive stands.

Gonzaga was clearly outplayed in the first half of the game. But a decisive break led to the G. W. score early in the second quarter. Raba fumbled when he was hit hard by G. W. linesmen on his own 29, and Ed Hanback recovered for the Presidents to set up the score. Plunges by Fones and Shelton netted a first down on the 8, and after Fones picked up 2 yards on a line plunge, Shelton went over for the score on a wide end sweep.

The Presidents and the Purple battled on even terms for the remainder of the second quarter, but early in the third Gonzaga's passing attack paid off when the visitors marched to the 6-yard line on a series of passes from Raba to Murphy. A pass and a line plunge failed to net any yardage, but on the third attempt, Mulvihill plowed through tackle for the Gonzaga score, Raba's kick went wide, and the Purple lost a chance to tie.

The Presidents were on the defense constantly in the last quarter as the Raba-Murphy passing combination sent Gonzaga deep into G. W. territory time and time again, but on each occasion the Presidents braced and held for downs. The most serious Gonzaga threats came in the last three minutes of the game when the Purple twice wormed its way inside the G. W. 10-yard line, but determined G. W. defense stymied the visitors' victory bid.

Star Back of Bulls Draws Suspension

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8 (AP).—Jack LaBay, fullback and star placekicker of the Columbus Bulls of the American Professional Football League, has been suspended indefinitely for "insubordination," Coach Phil Bucklew disclosed today.

Bucklew declined to elaborate but commented that "no one man is more important than the ball club."

Local Hockey Six Schedules 63 Contests

D. C. Club Now Training in Canada; Start Play Friday

The Washington Eagles, the Capital City's entry in the Eastern Amateur Hockey League, will open their home league campaign with the New York Rovers at Riverside Stadium on November 26.

The Eagles' league schedule, released yesterday by Owner Severine G. Loeffler, lists 63 games, with three open dates yet to be filled.

The Washington six, now finishing their preseason training in Canada, open their league season at Boston Garden Friday and Saturday against the Olympics, a newcomer this year to the Eastern League. From Boston Washington will move over to Baltimore for a Sunday engagement before opening here.

It was announced that the Wills Trophy Series, involving Eastern league teams and barnstorming Canadian sixes, has been postponed for the duratio nof the war, but competition in the Hershey Cup, Atlantic City and Walker Cup series will continue as usual.

performance over the winding course to turn back nearly 40 of the country's best hunters. Mrs. Renwick had the mount on the 6-year-old thoroughbred to win a leg on the bowl, which must be won three times for permanent possession and is regarded as one of the Garden's most important trophies.

Pamuck's triumph defeated another well-known former Virginia horse, 11-year-old Henry Buhl's Sally Port, who was shown all over the Old Dominion by Mr. and Mrs. George Greenhalgh's Springsbury Farm, in Berryville. Third went to Sunnybrook Stables' Joshua, who scored over last year's Madison Square champion, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Untermyer's Illuminator.

Most interesting note of morning showing was the smooth performance in the "pen" class of Eleanor Moffett with her grand little hunter-jumper Candolette, from Asheville, N. C. The pair, grandstand favorites at the recent Warrenton and Columbus shows near Washington, were head and shoulders better than anything else in the class and stood at the head of the qualified list for the Saturday afternoon finals of the event. This morning's clear score will be added to Saturday's performance for awards, so Candolette is a reigning favorite to win the blue.

Mexican Lead

In the international low-seat competition, feature of the Garden's flash-and-glamour department, the Mexican army team's quartet took a commanding lead over Chilean, Colombian and United States representatives by the scoring of a total of 16 faults, considerably aided by clean performances from Azteca and Resorte.

The Chileans, headed by Maj. Eduardo Yanez, were close behind their northern neighbors with 17½ faults, with Cuba's 19 taking third place. The United States officers were fourth with 29 faults, after a series of fairly dismal performances.

The Mayton Stable, from Port Chester, N. Y., was victorious in the "Rocket" event, for open horses, when Bartender and Cappy Smith combined to outleap Mr. and Mrs. J. Hale Steinman's Gossip, with 11-year-old Peggy Mills aboard. District show followers remember Gossip as a participant in the 6-foot jumping duel in the Washington Horse Show last spring.

Hi-Ho and Happy Stieg had another dose of ill fortune as they hit the third fence in the "Rocket" after jumping high, wide and handsomely over the first two.

Chief activity tomorrow will be devoted to children's horsemanship classes, but open jumper fans will be on hand in midafternoon for the finals of the "Pen." The third day of the knockdown-and-out competition continues tomorrow night at 7:30.

Entire Packer Squad To Fly to Giant Game

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Coach Earl (Curly) Lambeau announced today the Green Bay Packers, national pro champions, would fly to New York for their football game with the Giants Sunday, November 17, in two chartered planes.

This is the first time in the history of the national league that an entire squad has traveled by plane.

Georgetown in national ranking and "bowl" recognition. The second reason is that there is honor among football coaches; at least most of them.

Boys in Top Shape

Neither Coach Hagerty nor the Georgetown team has any desire to humiliate Maryland. They want to win, naturally, and they want to win impressively enough so that their prestige will not be lowered. A margin of three or four touchdowns will suffice both ways.

Both teams will be in top condition for the battle. Maryland's backfield aces, fleet Joe Murphy and Mearle DuVall, are recovered from leg injuries and ready to gamble on a reckless forward passing attack which is the Terrapins' only chance to make a creditable showing. The Terps will travel backwards when they rush Georgetown's two big lines, but with DuVall and Murphy passing, they might pick up sizable gains and even a score through the air.

Georgetown plans to start its regular line-up and establish a comfortable lead as soon as possible. When this is done the regulars will be yanked perhaps not to return and risk injuries which would be disastrous with Boston College up. Then the Hoyas reserves will get a lengthy chance to contribute to G. U.'s record, which now stands at 22 games without defeat.

It is Georgetown's homecoming game and a crowd of 10,000 is expected to turn out for a next to final look at what may be the greatest team in Hilltop history. G. U.'s only other scheduled home game will be its finale of the season with George Washington November 23.

Captains for today's game will be Bill Wixted, Georgetown's senior end, and Bob Smith, Maryland's senior center.

W.-L. Jayvees Beat Fairfax Eleven, 18-0

Fairfax, Nov. 8.—The Fairfax High junior varsity succumbed, 18-0, to a crack Washington-Lee jayvee eleven here today in a bitter struggle on the losers' field. Wolfslager, Arlington halfback, paced the Generals by accounting for two touchdowns.

Wolfslager bolted through tackle in the first quarter, eluded the secondary, and raced 18 yards to the first touchdown. In the second stanza Wolfslager, on a beautiful exhibition of broken-field running, dashed 40 yards to a score.

Fitzgerald registered the final goal in the third period, when he took Wolfslager's 35-yard aerial on the 5-yard line and leaped into the end zone. The Generals were threatened only in the fourth quarter when Fairfax smashed its way to the 2-yard stripe. Arlington's line held and it punted out of danger.

Nats to Play Night Ball Here

From eight 150-foot towers, 790 floodlights will diffuse their brilliance over the field, eliminating all shadows, company officials stated. A feature of the installation will be the absence of any light towers on the playing field.

Four of the towers will be erected on top of the grandstand, two of them straddling home place. A tower will be erected beyond third and first base and another tower will rise from the rear of the left-center bleachers. The tower in right field will be erected beyond the high right-field fence.

More than 7 miles of wiring and conduit and switching equipment will be used in the construction and the capacity of nearly 1,500,000 watts, if directed in a single beam, would enable newspapers to be read 18 miles from the light source.

Just Like Daylight

The stadium will be 16 times as bright as the flood-lighted dome of the Capitol when all power is in use, officials stated.

Both fans and players will be able to follow night games and the progress of the ball as easily as by sunlight, it was stated.

Since night baseball was pioneered in the majors by the Cincinnati Club in 1935, teams from both leagues have fallen steadily in line after viewing the popularity and increased attendance at night play. It is estimated that night games attract from 200 to 400 per cent more customers than daylight games.

The Nats' capitulation to night ball leaves only two clubs in the American League without lighted stadiums—the Yankees and Red Sox. Plans have been made for Detroit to be included in the night-game circuit.

According to Washington Club officials, night ball will not commence here until the summer months of June and July when the weather is more propitious than during the spring or late fall. Tentative plans are that the games will start at 8:30 p. m.

G. W. Will Play More Night Games

John Busick, director to publicity for George Washington University, last night welcomed the installation of lights at Griffith Stadium, and said that it undoubtedly would mean more night football for the Colonial teams.

He said there was a strong possibility that next year's Georgetown-George Washington game would be held under the lights, although he pointed out that, since it will be Georgetown's home game, the Hoyas would have their way about that.

Charlotte Hall Midgets In 13 to 13 Deadlock

Charlotte Hall, Md., Nov. 8.—Charlotte Hall Military Academy's midget football team and Leonard Hall School battled to a bitter 13-13 deadlock here this afternoon in a game which saw the Little Cadets being scored upon for the first time this season.

Jimmy Strine, Leonard Hall star, was poison to Charlotte Hall all afternoon, running back the opening kick-off 95 yards for a score, then taking a pass and romping 55 yards to score in the last minute of play.

Local Women Win Bridge League Trophy

Mrs. Campbell And Mrs. Eberson in First Major Victory

By Marion H. Barre
The Post's Bridge Editor

The first championship concluded in the District Bridge Tournament, at the Shoreham Hotel, resulted in a local victory that restored the Columbia Trophy for women's pairs to the Washington Bridge League. Heroines of the occasion were Mrs. H. G. Campbell and Mrs. Frederick Eberson. It was a first major victory for both. They were playing in a chance partnership, made up just before the game.

Entering the finals with a load of 19 match points, the winners defeated Mrs. J. E. Folline and Mrs. A. J. Rosenbloom by a margin of 13½ points. These Richmond stars, who were the defending titlists, did not relinquish the trophy without a struggle. After finishing seventh in the opening round they surged up steadily in the finals, scoring a total of 442 points to 455½ for the Eberson-Campbell team.

The intercity partnership of Mrs. H. C. White, Washington, and Mrs. Leon Landauer, Norfolk, Va., ranked third with 428 points. Other honor positions went to local women: Mrs. Alma Byrne and Mrs. Rose Robins tying Mrs. W. de St. Aubin and Mrs. Burton Palmer for fourth place, with Mrs. Roy Hackett and Mrs. Marian H. Barre next.

A Baltimore partnership was leading the mixed pair field at the beginning of the finals for the Capital Cup, which is now held by Mrs. Folline and Dr. Arthur Salasky, also of Richmond. The leaders were Mrs. Stanley Newman and Edward Pierson, with Mrs. Edward Behrend, Baltimore, and A. P. Stockvis, Washington, trailing 4 points behind. Miss Mabel Tobin and S. G. Churchill, Washington League members, were third in the race. Mrs. Landauer and Leroy Thurtell, another intercity partnership, fourth, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Murray Hall, fifth.

Fascists to Join Parley, Their First, With Moscow

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 8.—A parley between German, Soviet and Italian ministers to discuss the part Moscow will play in the European war is expected to be held next week, it was learned today. If it materializes it will be the first time that an Italian foreign minister has faced a Soviet colleague since the beginning of the Fascist regime. The departure from this precedent is in itself a sufficient illustration of the importance of the subjects to be discussed.

It is believed to have been agreed on by Rome and Berlin foreign office heads early this week. Where it will occur could not be learned, although it was suggested it might be somewhere in Germany.

Italian circles make no mystery of the fact that there has been a distinct improvement in Italo-Soviet relations. The fact that Foreign Minister Count Ciano attended an official reception at the Soviet Embassy yesterday and the prominence given this in today's press is taken as sufficient proof that a rapprochement is in sight and the Italian public is being prepared for likely political developments between Rome and Moscow.

Reich Blames U. S. In Refusing to Give Ship Safe Conduct

Berlin, Nov. 8 (AP).—Authorized sources asserted today that the United States had herself to blame in part for Germany's inability to guarantee safe conduct of an American vessel to remove several hundred Americans still in the British Isles.

They pointed out that American authorities chose to disregard German advice in the case of the United States Army transport American Legion, which passed through the German-proclaimed danger zone around Britain whereas Germany had suggested another route.

Because of the United States action in this case, authorized Germans declared, the Reich could assume no responsibility for safety of a refugee ship to and from Britain.

They asserted that no question whatever of unfriendliness to the United States was involved. Pointing to weapons of war beyond human direction—mines strewn about Britain by Germany—these quarters said safe conduct was impossible.

Arabs Map Plans To Resist Axis

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 8 (AP).—Formation of an Arab bloc to resist any Axis aggression in the Near East was being discussed here tonight coincident with a state visit to King Farouk's court by the Emir Abdullah of Transjordan.

Well-informed sources said Transjordan, Iraq and Saudi Arabia would be parties to such a pact with the support of Arabs in Palestine and Syria. Egypt would not be asked to join until details have been worked out, these sources said.

D. C. Guard Officer Raised to Captain

First Lieut. George E. Levings, commanding the 104th Ordnance Company, District National Guard, has been promoted to captain, Col. C. A. Dravo, adjutant general of the District, announced yesterday.

Col. Dravo also announced that the following captains will be examined for promotion to major: William F. Jorgensen, 121st Engineers; Cooper B. Rhodes, headquarters company, Twenty-ninth Division, and Robert J. Martin, 260th Coast Artillery. Second Lieut. Eugene E. Howley, 372nd Infantry, will be examined for promotion to first lieutenant.

Archbishop, 9 Others Urge Aid to Britain

Additional Prominen. Catholics Join Move Against Hitlerism

Ten more prominent Catholics, headed by Archbishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland, have signed the statement urging United States give all possible help to Great Britain.

The original statement of October 27 condemned Hitlerism as "ruthless without honor" and stated that "under this threat none of the conflicts that have divided Western civilization should be permitted to obscure this transcendent issue," which, they said, is that:

"We believe that there is only one way in which we can prevent our kind of a civilization from falling under the dominion of Hitler's evil despotism and ultimately going down into the pit beneath it. We must give all possible help to Great Britain in order that she may carry on the war to victory, lest we be left to face the dictators of Europe and Asia alone."

In adding his signature to the statement, Archbishop Schrembs wrote:

"I am returning with my signature the statement which so splendidly presents our Catholic attitude. I approve it most heartily."

Other new signers were: The Rev. Charles Spence, Cincinnati, Ohio; Pedro de Cordoba, Los Angeles, Calif.; Euphemia Van Rensselear Wyatt, New York City; Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren, New York City; Reginald Townsend, New York City; Prof. Eugene H. Byrne, Barnard College; Mrs. Edward M. Pickman, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Suydam Cutting, New York, and Mrs. L. Carbery Ritchie, Spring Lake, N. J.

Hoare Reaffirms Britain's Rights In Tangier Zone

London, Nov. 8.—It is understood Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, saw Generalissimo Franco, Spanish chief of state, yesterday and reserved Great Britain's rights in Tangier, which Spain recently took over.

The Ambassador is also believed to have asked for clarification of Spain's intention about the international zone and to have asked for information about an Italian submarine which recently entered port there.

It is made clear, however, the Ambassador did not protest about Spain's Tangier declaration but pointed out Britain had certain rights there.

When Tangier was occupied June 14 by Spanish Moroccan troops by agreement with the International Assembly on which Britain was represented, Spain asserted the step had been taken only to preserve order, and the international status of the zone would continue.

Carol Besieged For His Memoirs

Lisbon, Nov. 8 (AP).—Dethroned Carol II of Rumania has been deluged with American offers for the memoirs he is writing during his current enforced stay in Spain but close friends here said today, "nobody will ever see them until he dies."

The former monarch's associates said he has paintakingly kept a day-to-day diary of his spectacular life and is using it to refresh his memory as he writes.

Versailles Expected To Be French Capital

Versailles, France (via Berlin), Nov. 2 (delayed) (AP).—Authoritative sources reported today that Versailles soon would become the seat of the French government.

Most German troops have been withdrawn and renovation and installation of utility facilities has begun.

Why Should Rome Be Spared? Shaw Asks

London (Saturday), Nov. 9 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw joined the "bomb Rome" chorus today.

"I should not weep if Rome were bombed," the famous wit told the Daily Mirror. "London with its monuments and works of art—good and bad—have been bombed. Why not Rome?"

U. S. Firms Use Nazi Agents, Bolivian Says

Publisher Charges Profits From Sales Go Into Propaganda

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Nov. 8.—Guillermo Gutierrez, director of the newspaper Razon in La Paz, capital of Bolivia, said in an interview today that leading American manufacturers and exporters are represented in Bolivia by German or pro-German importers who use part of the profits from the sale of American goods to finance pro-Nazi, anti-democratic, anti-British and anti-American propaganda.

Gutierrez named some of these importers as follows:

C. F. Gundlach, agent for General Motors, Pilot Radio, Wanderer Bicycles and "fifty other American companies"—William Krupp, one of the Gundlach high executives, according to Senor Gutierrez, being also a high executive of the German committee of press and propaganda.

Bohem Zirecks, agent for R. C. A.-Victor and other American firms.

Kyllman & Bauer, one of whose partners, Wilhelm Kyllman, according to Guiterrez, is or was Nazi party leader for La Paz—agent for many American products.

Bernardo Elsner and Juan Elsner, importers of general merchandise, largely from the United States.

According to Gutierrez, his newspaper has lost 60 per cent of its advertising since the war started because it has held true to its long-standing pro-democratic, pro-British and pro-American principles and has held fast against all efforts at persuasion, bribery and intimidation from Nazi sources. He declared that most of the other newspapers and nearly all the radio stations of Bolivia are pro-Nazi, publishing both the German Transocean and Italian Stefani "news" services, which he said were really propaganda agencies for the totalitarian powers, and receiving large amounts of Nazi-controlled advertising.

He asserted that the principal Bolivian importers are Germans or pro-Germans who dominate the German committee of press and propaganda, which, he said, works closely with the German legation at La Paz.

Willkie Clubs' Policy Waits Word From Chieftain

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Leaders of the Willkie-for-President Clubs were reported working today to keep the organizations going, but pending word from the Republican standard bearer they did not know what role they might play during the next four years.

Wendell L. Willkie has been advised of the clubs' continued activity, his associates said tonight, and has not expressed any opinion on the situation.

Willkie conferred during the day with Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the Republican finance committee; Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican), of Ohio; Samuel F. Pryor, jr., Republican campaign manager for the East, and other party leaders.

Leaders of the Willkie-for-President Clubs expect to receive some indication of Willkie's wishes regarding their future work when he addresses the Nation by radio from 10:30 to 11 p. m. (E. S. T.) Monday.

In that speech Willkie is expected, by well-informed friends, to pledge support for the Administration in the fields of foreign policy and national defense but to call also for a vigilant party of opposition.

Never Heard Of Peace Move, President Says

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt yesterday disclaimed, at a press conference, knoweidge of several reports connecting his name with foreign negotiations, particularly one concerning possible moves by him toward a peace settlement in Europe.

He dismissed with a remark that he had never heard of it, a question based on reports a new peace move might be anticipated under which Germany would withdraw from Norway, Belgium and Holland.

He went on to say that he was sure that a United Press dispatch from London about an agreement on Singapore between Great Britain, Australia and the United States did not come from high official sources, as the dispatch said it did.

Magyar Deputies Report Nazi Plot To Kidnap Horthy

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 8 (AP).—A conspiracy to kidnap Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungarian regent, and put "Hungary's Hitler," Ferenc Szalasi, into power was attributed to five Nazi Party deputies today by a parliamentary committee.

The committee recommended that the five be denied parliamentary immunity from prosecution.

The plot, according to the committee's findings, was hatched last July and called for possible assassination of the minister of interior, the seizure of control of the capital by terrorism and the abduction of Horthy with the intention of requiring him to appoint Szalasi as premier.

British Ship Afire, Calls for Help

New York, Nov. 8 (INS).—Mackay Radio tonight reported picking up an S O S from the British merchant steamer Ridley, afire in the Atlantic 340 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands off the west coast of Africa. The vessel's distress call stated she required immediate assistance.

Lloyd's registry lists the Ridley as a vessel of 4,863 tons, operated by Stephens, Sutton, Ltd., of Newcastle on Tyne.

C. I. O. Asks NLRB Enforce Wagner Act In Weirton Case

The Congress of Industrial Organizations asked the Labor Board for a speedy decision "enforcing the Wagner Act" against the Weirton Steel Co. after counsel for the company had voiced opposition to a proposed order finding the firm had violated the act.

Anthony W. Smith, C. I. O. attorney, taking but 15 minutes before the board to answer three hours of company argument, asked for prompt final action in the 3-year-old case, declaring:

"We have an organizing job to finish (in Weirton) and are awaiting full enforcement of the law."

Earlier John E. Laughlin, of the company's legal staff, argued that 17 C. I. O. workers who claimed they were evicted from the Weirton mills in 1937 for union sympathies were not entitled to reinstatement with back pay as proposed in the board's tentative order.

Laughlin contended that the men went into the plant "to make trouble" and were ejected by fellow employes. He expressed the opinion the ejected workers wanted to make a case for the board on which they could collect back pay.

Smith said this was "absurd."

Union Votes Support Of Lewis' Program

Members of the Railroad Retirement Board, Local 13, United Federal Workers of America, yesterday voted to support the program of the C. I. O. under John L. Lewis at the coming C. I. O. convention in Pittsburgh.

The resolution declared Lewis' statement that he will resign from the presidency of the C. I. O. "has been seized upon by the press and other interests inimical to the labor movement in an effort to cripple the C. I. O. and its program."

Profit-Taking Halts Rise, Sends Stocks Downward

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Market traders "cashed" large blocks of stocks today, skimming profits from Thursday's sharp upturn and sending quotations of leaders down a few cents to $2 a share.

The previous session's trend, in which prices jumped as much as $8 a share, continued at the opening. For a time the ticker tape lagged as much as three minutes behind transactions on the floor.

Then the rise halted and the rate of trade slowed. About 1,700,000 shares were transferred in the five hours. The approach of the long Armistice Day week-end holiday was regarded as a contributing factor to the set-back.

2 Loyalist Cabinet Members to Die

Madrid, Nov. 8 (AP).—Julian Zugazagotia, former member of the cabinet of republican Spain, and Antonio Cruz Salido, one time republican secretary of war, are scheduled to be executed at dawn tomorrow.

They and three other men prominent in the defeated republican regime were sentenced to death by a court-martial October 22. When the others are to die has not been announced.

Carl Nolting to Lead Nimrods on Elk Hunt

Pearisburg, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—Carl Nolting, chairman of the Virginia Game Commission, will lead the big game hunters in their annual quest for elk when the three days hunting season opens November 11. M. D. Hart, executive secretary of the commission, is also expected to participate.

More than 100 special stamps, which are required as a prerequisite to hunting elk, in addition to the regular hunting license, have been sold at the county clerk's office.

Commodities' Rise Continues To Year's Tops

Liberal Profit-Taking Curbs Fres hClimb In Wheat Prices

By the Associated Press

Commodity prices, on the average, rose to the year's highest levels despite liberal profit taking yesterday.

The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale spot staples, based on 1926 as 100, rose to 76.28 from 76.21 Thursday and set a new top for the year for the third day in a row.

December wheat futures at Chicago sold at the highest since last May before traders cashed in profits and quotations wavered. Final levels were ⅝ to 1⅛ cents a bushel higher. Corn ended unchanged to ¼ up.

Cotton Moves Higher

An increase in the Government estimate for the size of the new crop was a drag on the cotton market at New York but the list advanced 10 to 35 cents a bale on reports of huge sales of cotton textiles.

Lead futures moved up .12 to .17 of a cent a pound in the wake of a lift in spot metal to the highest since 1937. Others in the plus column included zinc, Rio coffee, domestic sugar and cocoa.

Copper turned downward, along with hides, world sugar, cottonseed oil and Santos coffee. Straits tin, wool tops and silk were mixed.

Cautious profit taking quelled a vigorous buying spirit in the grain pits but prices of principal cereals continued to forge ahead to new highs for the past six months in some cases.

Caution Is Evident

A setback in securities, scheduling of a speech by Hitler, uncertainty about inflationary trends and revival of peace rumors were developments popularizing extreme caution. Despite this, there was enough buying fuel to lift prices a cent or more in some pits, with enlarged public participation improving the liquidity of the market and bolstering trading volume.

Wheat closed ⅞@1½ higher than yesterday, December 87⅞@87¾, May 87@86⅞; corn unchanged to ½ up, December 62¾@62½, May 63¼@63⅜; oats ⅝@1⅛ higher; soybeans 1@1¾ up; rye ½@¾ lower and lard unchanged to 3 lower.

Maximum wheat gains of 1@1½ cents carried December up to 88⅜, highest since the mid-May market collapse. May and July wheat, December and May oats, July rye and all soybean contracts hit new highs for the season. Later, profit taking caused wheat to slump as much as ⅞ cent below the previous close at one stage but July contracts were stronger, dut partly to their sharp discount under nearby deliveries.

Heavy Buying Jams Principal Textile Market

Key Prices Move Up; Many Mills Refuse Additional Orders

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 8.—The trading capacities of Worth Street, the Nation's main textile market, were jammed today by a fresh rush of orders for cotton, rayon and woolen goods.

The demands were a continuation of yesterday's late action in which 20,000,000 yards of cotton cloth were ordered, representing one of the busiest days in the history of the trading center.

Prices on key constructions yesterday advanced ⅛ to ¼ cent a yard. Today they moved up another ⅛ cent. Mill capacities were reported filled through the remainder of this year and many mills were reported refusing additional orders.

Cotton Estimate Revised Higher On Nov. 1 Basis

By the Associated Press

A United States cotton crop of 12,847,000 bales was forecast yesterday by the Agriculture Department, based upon indications of November 1. This was an increase of 106,000 bales over a similar forecast made a month ago.

A crop of this size would be the largest since the 1937 record one of 18,946,000 bales and would compare with last year's production of 11,817,000.

The department reported that up to Thursday, 1,444,441 bales of this year's crop had been stored by growers under Government price-bolstering loans totalling $89,860,641. This is in addition to 8,700,000 bales of surplus cotton from previous crops either owned by the Government or stored under Government loans to growers.

The indicated yield for the country as a whole was estimated at 252.1 pounds per acre—the second largest of record and 14.2 pounds greater than last year.

October Output Of TVA Reaches New High Level

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 8 (AP).—The Tennessee Valley Authority established a new record for generation of electric power in October, producing 520,478,000 kilowatt hours as compared to the previous high of 438,683,000 kilowatt hours last August.

The increase was partly seasonal, TVA said, but resulted primarily from greater power deliveries to the Aluminum Company of America plant at Alcoa, Tenn., and to the Commonwealth & Southern companies in Alabama and Georgia.

The authority said the growing demand was due to "the increasing tempo of national defense activities in the Tennessee Valley and adjacent regions."

Boston Wool

Boston, Nov. 8 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Very little interest was being shown in domestic wools on the Boston market today. Only occasional sales were reported on moderate quantities of fine territory wools urgently needed to complete existing contracts. Asking prices of fine domestic wools were maintained firmly, but some houses were lowering their asking prices on the medium grades of wool.

WALL STREET by Frederick Gardner

Stocks Suffer Profit-Taking Hangover After Spree; Losses Range to 2 Points

New York, Nov. 8.—Bounding stock market leaders of yesterday backed down in today's session as traders cashed profits in preparation for the week-end which will be lengthened further by Monday's Armistice Day closing.

The inflation spur, touched off by the Treasury move to hike the national debt limit, seemed less of a motivating factor, brokers said, and, in view of Thursday's sharpest bulge since the war boom of September a year ago, most speculative contingents inclined to go home with at least a portion of their winnings.

The list churned rapidly at the start in slightly higher territory with blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares, putting the ticker tape as much as 3 minutes behind for a while. Selling then became more urgent and eventually losses of fractions to more than 2 points predominated. Many issues, however, managed to finish above the day's lows.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .5 of a point at 46.1 after the runup of the day before of 2 points flat, best advance since September 5, last year. Dealings slowed on the retreat and transfers totalled 1,750,930 shares against 2,083,060 yesterday.

Some thought was given to warnings by financial commentators that inflation psychology might be exaggerated owing to the likelihood mounting taxes would be a deflationary offset and that the Government would act to prevent any excessive rise in prices.

Business news generally was good but U. S. Steel, disclosing October shipments were the second best in the company's history, ended off 1¼ at 73¾ after edging to a year's new top in the forenoon. General Motors also dropped a point despite announcement October sales for this concern hit a record for the month.

Curtiss-Wright voted an initial 50-cent dividend on the common and these shares moved forward. Wright - Aeronautical, a 10-share trading units and Curtiss-Wright subsidiary, was up 5 on a small turnover.

Chrysler was down 2⅝, although production for the automotive industry as a whole this week was placed at the best level since 1937.

Other losers included Bethlehem Steel, Crucible, Youngstown Sheet, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric, Dow Chemical, U. S. Gypsum, Great Northern, Texas Corp., Anaconda, Sears Roebuck, Western Union and North American.

The market was one of the broadest for the year to date, 926 individual issues being traded compared with 904 Thursday.

Aluminum of America fell 3¼ in the Curb and lesser setbacks were suffered by American Gas, American Cyanamid "B," Electric Bond & Share, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil and Phoenix Securities. On the upside were Bell Aircraft, Creole Petroleum, N. J. Zinc and Colts Patent Fire Arms. Volume here aggregated 271,000 shares versus 265,000 in the previous session.

Bonds paid only scant attention to the reactionary trend in stocks, moving ahead by small degrees in virtually every section of the corporate list.

Total transactions of $10,626,000, face value, as against $12,245,925 yesterday, were among the largest in a single session this year.

A feature was the performance of United States Treasury, which ended as much as 29/32 point ahead in small dealings.

City of New York loans proved extremely popular, the 3s of '80 lifting 1½ points to 102½ on sales of 795 bonds.

Employe Tells How Hopson Doubled Cash

Outlay of $295,567 Brought in $335,000 Profit, Court Hears

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 8.—Howard C. Hopson and his partner, John L. Mange, invested $295,567 in 1922 and within two years, a witness testified today, they turned that investment into a $335,000 profit and ownership of the $1,000,000,000 Associated Gas and Electric system.

Charles A. Daugherty, an employe of Hopson and official of many of the Associated system's subsidiaries, described in the Federal trial of Hopson and two others on conspiracy and mail fraud charges the financial deals by which he said Hopson became the "guiding genius" of the vast holding company system. Mange is not a defendant.

In March of 1922, the Government witness said, Associated Utilities, the private company of Hopson and Mange, purchased for $48,000 the controlling interest in the Ovid Electric Corporation and the Tompkins County Power Company.

Sold for $370,000

On the following day, Daugherty testified, the stock of the two concerns was sold to the New York State Gas and Electric Company for $370,000. The purchaser, he said, was then a subsidiary of the Associated system, and Mange was its president.

With part of the profits, the witness said, the partners bought a controlling block of common stock of the Associated Gas and Electric system, an organization which then had a book value of $6,000,000.

Using the remainder of their profit on the first deal, Daugherty said, the partners purchased the Standard Light, Heat and Power Co. for $100,000 and three days later sold that stock to Mange's New York State Gas & Electric Co. for $295,000.

Profit Exceeds Outlay

By then, the witness said, Hopson and Mange had control of the Associated system and their outlay in cash amounted to $295,567, a figure which he said brought them a net profit of $335,000 within two years and complete control of the system.

Much of the profit then listed, Daugherty said, came from a $440,000 dividend on common stock declared in 1924, after the system's certificate of incorporation had been changed to remove a ban on common stock dividends until after preferred stockholders had been paid their dividends.

Counsel for Attorneys Garrett A. Brownback an Charles M. Travis, codefendants on trial with Hopson, suggested to the witness that at the time of the dividends the system had millions of dollars in surplus capital.

"Write-Up" Suggested

Daugherty replied that the incorporation certificate was changed before payment of the dividends, to permit such payments to be made out of surplus capital instead of being limited to earnings, and added that the system's big surplus apparently had been due to a "write-up" of company assets.

Daugherty said that the 6,000 shares of Associated stock originally secured by Hopson and Mange ultimately was increased to 300,000 shares of Class B, or management, stock.

Under Hopson's management, Daugherty said, the system also issued a "Class A," nonvoting common stock of which 5,000,000 shares were purchased by the public for as high as $72 a share in 1929. The stock now is listed at 12½ cents a share, he testified.

Premarital Test Proposal Hearing Set for Nov. 18

A public hearing will be held November 18 at 10 a. m. in the District Building on Health Officer George C. Ruhland's proposal to require a premarital examination of all applicants.

Dr. Ruhland also has included a proposal to ban common-law marriages in his suggested legislation which will be discussed at the hearing. The District Medical Society this week indorsed Dr. Ruhland's proposals.

The hearing will be conducted by a five-man board appointed by the Commissioners.

Following the hearing, the committee will submit a report and recommendations to the Commissioners.

Aircraft Engineers Plan to Speed Up Defense Program

St. Louis, Nov. 8 (AP).—Engineers representing 22 major aircraft companies throughout the United States met here today and formed an organization intended to speed up the defense program by promoting standardization of airplane parts and manufacturing methods.

Members of the new organization, to be known as the Aircraft Standards Committee, actually have been functioning in separate committees on the East and West Coasts for 18 months, but this was the first effort to correlate the work of the two groups, a committee spokesman said.

It was stated the committee plans to study various manufacturing processes and parts designs, exclusive of motors, with a view of making many parts interchangeable.

N. Y. Governorship, Presidency, Said To Be Dewey's Aim

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The World Telegram says that Thomas E. Dewey will not accept renomination for district attorney next year, but plans to seek the Republican nomination for Governor in 1942, and, if he wins the Governorship, to go after the party's nomination for President in 1944.

Dewey made an unsuccessful race for Governor two years ago against Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

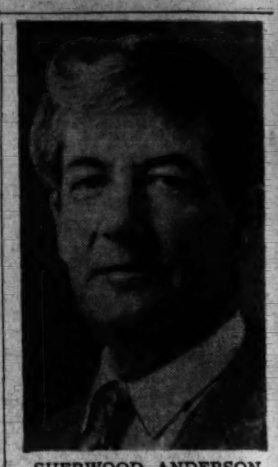
Asserts Female U. S. Worker Is Material For Great Book



SHERWOOD ANDERSON

Sherwood Anderson, the author, country editor, observer of rural habits and thinking, complained here yesterday that rural opinion, once important in the Nation, exists no more. The city man and the farmer think alike.

He blamed the movies, the automobile and the radio. And seeing the situation hopeless, beyond even talk, turned to his own field of livelihood with the opinion that an unborn and great novel is going begging for the writing here in Washington.

The heroine, victim of whatever the central character might turn out to be, is now working in one of the Federal bureaus here, Anderson thinks. He suspects that she came to Washington from some inland American small town with high hopes, got engulfed among the growing wave of similar girls and . . .

That's what he wants some Washingtonian to say—what happened to the girl. He thinks her life, as told in the story, should be tackled only by someone who knows the town, the workings of the bureaus, the small happinesses that come, the frustrations. He sees no point in getting cynical in the story. The writer should take the girl sympathetically, he thinks.

There are possibilities for a great story in the environment and in the lives in the departments all over town, he said. He said that he couldn't attempt it although he believed a market for such a story is open and waiting.

Successful himself, Anderson argued against young writers "holding to the illusion" that successful writers "just hit." The only way to "hit," he said, is to keep on writing. "I wrote for ten years before doing anything. It's exactly like having a baby. You get full of a theme and want immediately to get rid of it." It takes time, he said he found out for himself.

Adelbert Jordan, Retired Postal Employe, Dies

Adelbert C. Jordan, 69, retired employe of the United States Postoffice Department, Washington, died on Thursday at his home at Bethesda, Md., following a brief illness.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Jordan, Bethesda; a daughter, Mrs. Marian Moody, wife of Dr. Terrell Moody, Gaithersburg, Md., and a sister, Mrs. John Dalbey, Cowan, Tenn.

The funeral will take place at 2 p. m. Monday from the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, Bethesda, Burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg.

Mr. Jordan was a native of Kansas City, Mo. Before coming to Bethesda two years ago, he lived in Washington and Gaithersburg. He was connected with the Postoffice Department about 30 years, retiring three years ago.

Appeals Court Asked to Stifle 'Frivolous' Cases

The United States Court of Appeals here was asked yesterday to clamp down on "frivolous" appeals prosecuted without payment of costs.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran and Assistant District Attorneys Dennis McCarthy and Bernard Margolius told the court that such appeals frequently cost the taxpayers hundreds of dollars, congest the docket of the court and consume the time of the justices.

The prosecutors advanced their proposal in attacking the appeal of Jerome Clark, colored, from an order refusing him a writ of habeas corpus. Clark previously sued Assistant District Attorney Allan J. Krouse for $50,000 because Krouse prosecuted and convicted him of embezzlement. The District Court dismissed Clark's suit, holding that an official could not be sued for doing his duty.

Sentence Deferred Against Blount in Roosevelt Threat

Justice F. Dickinson Letts of the District Court yesterday deferred the sentence of Edward DeRoulhac Blount, 30, for threatening to kill President Roosevelt.

Justice Letts said a number of citizens had asked to be heard in regard to the sentence to be imposed on the socially prominent Blount, who is liable to a maximum of five years in jail and $1,000 fine for each of two threats to which he pleaded guilty.

In deferring the sentence, Justice Letts said:

"Just who will appear I cannot say, nor do I know whether they wish to make representations in the direction of leniency or severity."

Last Rites Today For Capt. Ireland, U. S. Cartographer

Funeral services for Capt. Emory I. Ireland, 67, cartographer in the Agriculture Department, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the Pumphrey funeral home, 7005 Wisconsin Avenue, Bethesda, Md., followed by burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

Capt. Ireland died Thursday of a heart attack at his home, 3916 McKinley Street Northwest.

He served as a captain of engineers in France during the World War. In 1936 he was transferred to the Agriculture Department.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Ireland, a daughter, Miss Katherine R. Ireland, both of Washington, and a son, Emory Ireland, of Pittsburgh.

Congressional Wind Dies Down To 8-Page Record

The first Congressional Record to appear after the election established what may be a record in brevity for the Record. It was only eight pages.

Despite the short semiweekly sessions that have been held for several weeks, the Record has been running heavily because of extensions of remarks, usually political addresses.

Thursday's Record, which appeared yesterday, had only five pages of extensions.

100 School Officials Open Convention At Catholic U.

More than 100 diocesan superintendants of Catholic schools throughout the United States met at Catholic University yesterday at the annual department conclave of the National Catholic Educational Association and urged that more Federal funds be allocated to Catholic schools.

Resolutions commended "a growing number of States" which are furnishing free transportation, health services and textbooks to students of Catholic schools, and urged that "a just share of the funds annually expended by Federal and State governments" go toward maintenance of such institutions.

Speakers at the session included the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, director of the educational department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and the Very Rev. Thomas V. Moore, of Catholic University.

Senate Probers To Study 'Vicious' Vote Literature

By the Associated Press

Politicians and public-spirited citizens were requested yesterday to send all examples of "scurrilous and vicious campaign literature" used this year to the special Senate committee appointed to police the national contests.

Chairman Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, issuing the request, said the material would be used to give the "American people a complete picture of this type of campaign methods."

"Every campaign has developed some of this undercover material, but this one apparently produced more than ever," the Senator told reporters. "The committee will ask both national political headquarters to furnish copies of this scurrilous campaign literature."

He said the Senate committee also wanted to assemble "advertisements and pamphlets designed to make special appeal to racial or religious prejudices."

SUPERMAN

The "Master" Again

BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

ASTONISHED TO SEE THE TWO FLEEING CRIMINALS ENTER THE PUBLIC LIBRARY, SUPERMAN TRAILS THEM ALONG A DESERTED CORRIDOR...
ANYONE LOOKING?
AS THE SAFECRACKER PRESSES A CONCEALED BUTTON, A PORTION OF THE WALL SLIDES ASIDE, REVEALING A STEEP STAIRWAY....
THEY'RE DESCENDING TO A SECRET ROOM BENEATH THE BASEMENT OF THE BUILDING!
CLOSING THE PANEL BEHIND THEM, THE TWO DESCEND TO THE ROOM BELOW WHERE THEY REPORT TO THE ENRAGED BENTON....
THE GIRL GAVE US A FALSE COMBINATION!
A GUY WITH AMAZING STRENGTH SHOWED UP AND WE HAD TO RUN FOR OUR LIVES!
SUPERMAN AGAIN! HE'S INTERFERED LONG ENOUGH! THE "MASTER" WILL KNOW HOW TO DEAL WITH HIM!

OF ALL THE ROTTEN LUCK— THE ONE PERSON WHO COULD IDENTIFY THE MAN WITH A SQUINT EYE, KILLED IN A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT!
I'M BEGINNING TO WONDER— I DON'T THINK IT WAS AN ACCIDENT!
WE'VE TRACED THE NUMBERS ON THAT HIT AND RUN CAR, INSPECTOR THEY BELONG ON A GREEN PEERCAR SEDAN—
THEN THAT WITNESS WAS RIGHT— HE SAID IT WAS A GREEN PEERCAR. HE SAW— THE BOY THOUGHT IT WAS A BLUE JEFFERSON EIGHT—
WELL HE DIDN'T SEE THIS GREEN PEERCAR— IT'S BEEN IN THE GARAGE ALL DAY WITH BOTH NUMBERS MISSING—
THEY WERE STOLEN BEFORE THE ACCIDENT!
WHAT? WELL THERE ARE PLENTY OF OTHER GREEN PEERCARS— WE'LL HAVE TO FIND THE RIGHT ONE!

The Post Radio Time Table

9:15 a. m., WJSV—Mary Haworth, The Post's matchless advice columnist, commences a new series of Saturday morning talks. As in her column, Miss Haworth will present letters seeking her advice and then offer her suggestions.

FOOTBALL GAMES: 2 p. m., WMAL—Ray Michael describes the George Washington-Bucknell game. 2:45, WRC and WJSV—Minnesota vs. Michigan. 3:45 WOL—Navy-Notre Dame. 4:30, WMAL—Texas A. and M. versus Southern Methodist.

5:45, WJSV—Dr. James T. Shotwell, Bryce professor of the History of International Relations at Columbia University, under the auspices of the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace, advances ideas already stated in his previous series, "Which Way to Lasting Peace?"

7, WJSV—How are the poll experts feeling this week? Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion; Claude Robinson, president of the Opinion Research Corporation; Edward L. Bernays and Dr. Gregory Zilboorg join Dr. Lyman Bryson for a discussion of the psychological and economic reasons behind Tuesday's elections.

7, WRC—Russell Colgate, national chairman of the Laymen's Crusade for Christian Education, speaks from New York, with Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, and Dr. Roy G. Ross, general secretary of the International Council of Religious Education, talking from Boston.

9, WRC—"Life With Father" celebrates its first anniversary with Mother and Father of the three current companies. Dramatic editors will do the M. C.-ing for this novel Barn Dance feature. Burns Mantle introduces Dorothy Stickney and Howard Lindsay of the New York company; Ashton Stevens presents Lillian Gish and Percy Waram from Chicago and Elliott Norton brings Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern to a Boston mike. Observe there is no "Washington" company because of that stupid clause in the District's Child Labor Law!

9:35, WMAL—Aaron Copland's ballet, "Billy the Kid," is presented for the first time as an orchestral suite by the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Hans Wilhelm Steinberg. Also programmed are the Night Music for Mahler's Seventh Symphony; Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor and two Johann Strauss works—"Tritsch-Tratsch Polka" and "Roses from the South."

10:15, WJSV—The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J. president of Fordham University, marks "Fordham's Hundred Years" and the 400th anniversary of the Jesuits in this country.

11:30, WMAL—Festivities of George Washington University's Homecoming Week-end.

Grin and Bear It

That popular radio quiz called "Take It or Leave It," in which each of the contestants stands a chance to win $64 by answering a series of questions put to him by a genial and witty gentleman, name of Bob Hawk, is to originate from Washington this Sunday—from the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, to be specific.

It's pretty safe to call "Take It or Leave It" a popular show because Mr. Hawk writes to us from Pittsburgh, where it originated last week on its tour of the country, that more than 4,500 people showed up at the studios to see it in person.

From the way requests have been pouring into WJSV the past few weeks as soon as people heard that it was to come from Washington and also the way that Mr. Hawk's sponsors (Eversharp pencils) have been likewise besieged, it looks as if Pittsburgh has nothing on Washington.

Contestants for Bob's shows are selected from the studio audience. Seven questions are offered to each person on a subject of his or her own choice. On the first correct answer they get $1. For each correct answer after that their reward is doubled until at the seventh and final, when the total amounts to the $64. If any question is missed along the way, though, the money is forfeited and goes to the Red Cross.

It is, without doubt, one of the greatest audience participation shows ever devised, just as much fun for the participants as for the audience. Oh yes, the broadcast is at 10 p. m.

Contract Bridge

Two women players who appear properly decorative and still manage to gain the final rounds of long, strenuous contests are Mrs. R. C. (Sally) Young and Mrs. A. M. (Helen) Sobel. They captured a top score on today's hand in the women's pair championship at Asbury Park not long ago, which title they held for two consecutive years, but failed to take again this time.

Well Played

The two women stars bid ambitiously to three no trump, and Mrs. Sobel managed to make it through weak defense and an endplay. West opened her fourth-best heart. Mrs. Sobel took East's nine with her queen. She played the king of diamonds, and East's ace won. The ten of hearts forced the cover of the king; West played the ace, then the jack and, switching again, West led the four of spades. Mrs. Sobel let this ride to her queen; she cashed the eight of hearts and ran the established diamonds. West now was forced to strip down to the blank ace of clubs to hold the king and one spade; Mrs. Sobel led a club, ducking in her hand. West won the ace, but was forced to lead a spade into dummy's ace-jack. Mrs. Sobel made three no trump, losing a diamond, two hearts and a club.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Back In Your Teeth, Toots? — BY MILTON CANIFF

IF ALL WENT WELL, HU SHEE AND HER GUARDS SHOULD BE AT THE BANK BY THIS HOUR.... AND THE DRAGON LADY'S NOTES WILL BE LEFT ALONG THE TRAIL!
WHEN THE RANSOM CAR RETURNS, IT WILL CARRY AN ARMED FORCE IN ITS WAKE!....THE SILVER ONE DOES NOT APPEAR OVERLY INTERESTED!
CAN IT BE SHE FEARS THAT WHEN THE HANDSOME RYAN RETURNS WITH HU SHEE, HER WINDOW LEDGE ROMANCE WITH THE GALLANT DUDE HENNICK WILL CAUSE COMPLICATIONS?
CAN IT BE THAT THE GALLANT DRAGON LADY FEARS THE WINDOW LEDGE ROMANCE IS BUT A PASSING FANCY — AND THAT THE RICH AMERICAN GIRL WILL SUCCEED IN DOING ALL RIGHT WITH THE HANDSOME RYAN?

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

..AND THERE YOU HAVE IT, BILL! $100,000 IN BONDS MISSING! I WAS THE LAST PERSON KNOWN TO HAVE HAD THEM OUT OF THE VAULT, AND THE BANK PRESIDENT HAS GIVEN ME THREE DAYS TO REPLACE THEM!
I KNOW, SLIM..THEY WAS PUBLIC UTILITY BONDS, AN' A PACKAGE OF OLD PAPER WAS FOUND IN PLACE OF 'EM IN TH' ENVELOPE!
WHY! HOW COULD YOU KNOW THAT?
BECAUSE LEACH, TH' TRAMP THAT YOU SAY NEVER WORKED HERE, TOLD YER MOTHER HE SAW TH' BONDS STOLEN! AN' THAT AIN'T ALL!
HE CLAIMS HE SAW YOU STEAL 'EM! THAT'S WHAT I BEEN TRYIN' T' TELL YA!

DONALD DUCK — The Fleet Must Be In — BY WALT DISNEY

MICKEY FINN — As Usual! — BY LANK LEONARD

WELL, INSPECTOR, WHAT DID YOU WANT TO SEE ME ABOUT?
STOLEN CARS!
I DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU MEAN, INSPECTOR!
OH, YES, YOU DO! YOU'RE THE BRAINS OF THE MOB THAT'S BEEN SWIPIN' CARS ALL OVER TOWN! SIT DOWN!
I KNOW ALL ABOUT IT, DAW! HOW YOU'VE BEEN BUYIN' UP WRECKS AND SWITCHING MOTORS! HOW YOU'VE BEEN STRIPPING CARS OF ALL VALUABLE PARTS—AND DUMPING WHAT'S LEFT OF 'EM IN A CERTAIN LAKE UP IN THE COUNTRY! I KNOW THE GARAGE YOU'RE USIN'—AND I KNOW THAT YOU'RE CLEANIN' UP!!!
NOW DO I HAVE TO REPEAT ALL THAT TO THE D.A.—OR AM I IN?
YOU'RE IN!

DIXIE DUGAN — First Down — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — The Invader — BY FRANK MARTINEK

THAT'S A NASTY GASH ON WINSLOW'S HEAD
CAN YOU TALK, SKIPPER? WHERE'S THE GANG? WHAT'S THEIR PLOT AGAINST THE NAVAL POWER PLANT?
NO USE!
AT THIS MOMENT—WITHIN A STONE'S THROW OF THE HOUSE—A TRAINLOAD BEGINS MOVING INTO THE NAVY YARD
AND NESTLING UNNOTICED AMONG ITS FELLOWS IS A CERTAIN CHUNK OF COAL LOADED WITH DEATH-DESTINED FOR THE BUNKERS OF THE POWER PLANT

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

WE BROUGHT ALONG A COMPLETE WARDROBE FOR YOU, MR. STEVE! AND A VALET, OF COURSE!
THANKS! I'LL WEAR WHAT I'VE GOT ON—AND I THINK I CAN BUTTON MY SHIRT WITHOUT HELP!
AS YOU WISH, SIR! BUT IF YOU NEED ANYTHING TO MAKE YOUR VOYAGE HOME MORE PLEASANT, SIR—?
THE ONLY WISH I'D MAKE IS ONE YOU COULDN'T GRANT!
UGH! WAHOO DON'T UNDERSTAND! WE GOTTUM FINE BIG CANOE TO TAKE US HOME! EVER'BODY JUMP TO WAIT ON YOU! BUT YOU GOTTUM FACE LONG AS UM HOSS! WHY?
KNOCK! KNOCK! KNOCK!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — BY FRANK MARTINEK

THERE, COMMISSIONER, IS THE MAN WHO'S BEEN USING INDIANS FOR SLAVE LABOR IN THE MINE!
THE INDIAN BUREAU IS DEEPLY INDEBTED TO YOU SERGEANT KING!
CRANE WILL ANSWER FOR THE MURDER OF RED FOX, BUT TWO OF HIS GUARDS ESCAPED!
WE CAUGHT THEM ON THE ROAD TO KRAG LANDING. MY MEN WILL TURN THEM OVER TO YOU, SERGEANT!
MY BROTHERS NOT FORGET THAT YOU GAVE THEM FROM DEATH, KING
YOU OWE YOUR LIVES MORE TO HEROISM OF YOUR DEAD BROTHER, RED-FOX!
GEE, KING—I MISSED ALL THE EXCITEMENT!
YOU DID YOUR PART, KID. NOW LET'S GET TO HEADQUARTERS, BEFORE THEY START LOOKING FOR US!
